DAWES WARNS BONUS WOULD BRING DISASTER

Claims Depression Is Passing.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Public confidence has at last been restored and the country is heading back to prosperity, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, told the house ways and means committee today.

But a 2 billion 460 million dollar inflation of the currency to finance immediate cash redemption of the soldier bonus would destroy the credit of the government at home and abroad and bring upon the country an even greater economic disaster than that of 1929, the redoubtable general asserted with all the sulphurous emphasis of the famous "Hell Maria" vocabulary.

Finds Depression Lifting.

The Chicago banker, himself a world war veteran and member of the American Legion, delivered himself of sizzling condemnation of politicians, stock market gamblers, half baked economic theorists, and many other men and institutions to the accompaniment of much gesticulation and brandishing of the upside down pipe between the dais on which sat the members of the committee and the audience, composed mainly of veterans.

"Down here in the Reconstruction Finance corporation," he blurted out in response to committee questioning, "we are in a position to know that things are getting better in this country, in a damn sight better position to know what is going on than are those fellows in that security peanut stand in Wall street. Bank failures are falling off. The banks are beginning to make loans again.

Attacks Patman Plan.

"It makes no difference what Wall street thinks down there where that peanut gambling is going on. You can take it from me we are approaching prosperity. The mass attitude of the people has changed from pessimism to optimism, but, of course, it will take time to realize the full results. Business is a ponderous machine and takes time to get in motion."

The general, pacing back and forth, frequently paused and aimed his pipe like a pistol, in the faces of Congressman Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], author of the principal cash bonus bill, and former Senator Robert Owen of Oklahoma, author of another inflation plan. After it was all over there was widespread comment among congressmen to the effect that Gen Dawes had administered a solar plexus blow to the bonus bill. Many representatives expressed doubts that the bill would be passed by the house Some of the leaders of the veterans privately confessed their feeling that the measure is as good as dead.

Restore Higher Prices.

The Dawes utterance and a subsequent statement by E. W. Kemmerer noted finance authority, also constitute the most serious check so far encountered by the movement for inflation of the currency as a measure for checking deflation and restoring higher commodity prices. Dr. Kemmerer asserted that such inflation as that proposed in the Patman bill would start another wave of hoarding, cause heavy foreign withdrawals of gold, and precipitate a flight of capital from the United States.

Gen. Dawes began by analyzing the Patman bill providing for redemption of the adjusted service certificates at face value, less the amount of loans and interest.

Warns Against Fiat Money.

"Funds for this," he said, "would be provided by the issuance of legal tender, noninterest bearing, unsecured treasury notes amounting to over two billion dollars. No provision is made for the redemption of notes, or the maintenance of gold reserves. It would be, in effect, an issue of fiat currency. Such an issue of currency, in my judgment, would have a disastrous effect upon the country's currency system, upon the credit of the federal government and upon the entire credit structure of our country. The claim is made that the issue of this currency would so augment our money supply as to relieve the existing pressure upon debtors, expand credits and add to the purchasing power of the people. In my judgment, the important and real effect would be the contrary. The relief of the debtor class, the increase of purchasing power of the people, the

FOREIGN SHORTS REVEALED BY SENATE EXPOSE

Arthur Cutten One of Sellers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—The senate committee handling the short selling inquiry snapped the lid from its Wall street "bear" cage today with a bang that sent reverberations echoing throughout Europe as well as the United States.

While the banking committee's action in making public the more important names on the Whitney list of 24,000 shorts as of April 8 disclosed few headline names so far as this country is concerned, it served to throw the international spotlight upon the bear activities of foreign operators, principally of French origin.

Committee members hinted also that a speeding up of its investigating machinery during the next few days may show widely known American financiers or politicians hiding behind the dummy names which appeared so frequently upon the list of short sellers as submitted last week by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange.

Arthur Cutten on List.

Prominent among the names appearing on the short selling list were those of Raymond Patenotre, a member of the French chamber of deputies and a nonresident alien; the Travelers' Bank of Paris, and B. C. Neidecker, an operator reported to represent a French concern. The appearance of these names interspersed among such widely known Americans as Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago and New York millionaire grain and stock operator; Harry Content, prominent member of a New York brokerage house, and T. M. Howell, Wall street operator short 39,200 shares of General Motors, immediately roused a buzz of speculation in congress as well as the other end of the capital.

A check disclosed that Mr. Patenotre, the son of Mrs. Elverson Patenotre, Philadelphia publisher and widow of the former ambassador from France, was in the United States with Premier Laval when the French statesman paid his good will visit to the United States last October. His short account amounted to 6,912 shares. Mr. Neidecker's account was 16,600 shares, while that of the Travelers' bank was above 40,000.

Percy Rockefeller Called.

Whether the disclosure of foreign short selling activities at a time when the administration and senatorial spokesmen were charging bear raiders with causing the depression and the stock market crashes will have reverberations at the state department was not disclosed tonight. There seems no doubt the presence of these and several other foreign names on the bear list will have congressional echoes.

After the publication of the names and the conclusion of today's hearing Chairman Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.] announced the whole inquiry is to be greatly extended in an effort to pierce the fog surrounding the identity of the big shorts during the market col-

J. W. KEIFER, LAST OF GENERALS IN CIVIL WAR, IS DEAD

Springfield, O., April 22 [Friday.]—(AP)—The last of the civil war generals, J. Warren Keifer, 96 years old, died at his home here early today of the infirmities of advanced age.

Gen. Keifer, formerly speaker of the national house of representatives, lapsed into a coma yesterday and never recovered consciousness. Two sons survive him, W. W. Keifer of Springfield, and Joseph W. Keifer Jr. of Bostwick, Neb.

Prominent for more than half a century as a soldier, statesman, and historian, Gen. Keifer was known as Springfield's foremost citizen.

Gen. Keifer was born in Clark county, O., and was educated at Antioch college. He enlisted as a private at the beginning of the civil war and after six days' service was elected a major. He participated in compaigns in West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama, and was wounded four times. At the battle of the wilderness he was severely wounded but continued to lead his men in several fierce engagements. He was made a major general in recognition of his gallant conduct in the campaign that resulted in the surrender of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

In the war with Spain he was appointed a major general of volunteers. Between the two wars he practiced law and served in congress four consecutive terms after 1877, being elected speaker in 1881. He returned to congress in 1905 and served three terms.

STOCKS ADVANCE $1 TO $3 IN QUIET DAY OF TRADING

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Aided by easing credit rates which sooner or later are expected to stimulate business recovery, stocks and bonds rallied today. Shares closed with the best advance in a week, net gains in numerous leaders ranging from $1 to $3.

Publication of the senate committee's list of short sellers found the advance under way, but Wall street assumed that some offerings had been prompted by that disclosure. Trading was quiet and transactions barely exceeded 1,100,000 shares.

With the Bank of England reducing its discount rate to 3 per cent from 3½, the market here rather looked for a cut by the New York federal reserve bank. Although none was made, banking and brokerage circles believed such actior would not be long delayed, since the present 3 per cent rate is well below open market money rates. Bankers acceptance dealers again raised their prices on those securities. It was the fifth increase in a month.

The federal reserve system continued its drive against deflation by adding roughly $93,000,000 to its portfolio of United States government securities, compared with $100,000,000 a week ago.

Delay Massie Murder Trial for Alienist

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JUDGE CHARLES S. DAVIS. [Acme Photo.]

The motion for the two day recess was made by Prosecutor John C. Kelley. Dr. Bowers also will examine the testimony of Lieut. Massie, who admitted responsibility for the killing and testified his mind became a blank at the time of the shooting of Joseph Kahahawai and that it remained that way for some hours afterward.

A Rebuttal Witness.

The prosecution is preparing to use the alienist as a rebuttal witness. Today's request for additional time came after the defense had ended its case yesterday with the spectacular appearance of Mrs. Thalia Massie, young wife of the naval lieutenant and alleged victim of rape in which Kahahawai allegedly confessed participation.

Clarence Darrow, chief of the defense counsel, did not object to the delay.

With the testimony of Dr. Bowers and probably of Dr. Robert Faus, city and county physician, the prosecution is expected to close the rebuttal and the trial of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Massie, and two sailors will enter its final phase on Monday. The case is expected to go to the jury about Wednesday. Darrow is planning to use one entire session of court for his closing plea to the jury, which, it is regarded, will be the last great effort of his career.

Talk of Acquittal Heard.

For the first time since the trial began, or even before, talk of the possibility of an acquittal is heard in the streets and hotels. The terrific impact which the stories told by Massie and his wife had on the sympathies of the jury is felt to be difficult to combat, and the prosecution's only chance for a conviction now, it is thought, is to hold three or four men on their side in the jury room, thereby causing a mistrial.

Most members of the jury will hardly fail to vote to set free the young naval officer, who has gone through such long months of hell and darkness, on the proof that whatever may be the fact of the guilt of Kahahawai in the rape of Mrs. Massie, Lieut. Massie was thoroughly justified in believing it, and that Mrs. Massie is perfectly sincere in believing it today. The issue here, it is felt, is not the guilt or innocence of the defendants in the rape case.

The question of the effect on the jury by Mrs. Massie's action yesterday when she looked Prosecutor Kelley straight in the eyes and tore up a paper which he had passed her for identification is a matter of conjecture. It is agreed that she should not have done this. Her own lawyers were amazed at her action, but it is felt she will be forgiven in view of her emotional state at the time, and that the action might react in her favor.

It was as if she were defying all the Hawaiian world that has put her on secret trial in tearooms and at bridge parties in these long months rather than aid in tracing and convicting her assaulters.

Chicago Youth Meets Tragic End in Jungle

Word reached Thomas J. Walsh, 5340 Kenmore avenue, an auditor for the Commonwealth Edison company, yesterday of the death of his son, Thomas Jr., 26 years old, who succumbed to starvation, and probably tropical fever, in the jungles of Ecuador, South America, on Jan. 29.

The brief letter telling of the tragedy came from Harold Foard of West Virginia, Walsh's companion. They had been exploring territory never before entered by white men in a search for valuable ore deposits. Foard buried his friend's body in the hot, steamy thickets where he died, and struggled on alone until a friendly Indian found him exhausted and led him to civilization.

Illinois U. Graduate.

Young Walsh was a graduate of Loyola High school and the University of Illinois, where he received the degrees of bachelor and master of science. For two years after his graduation in 1929 he was stationed in Oroya, Peru, as a chemist for the Cerre de Pasco Copper corporation.

The expedition which brought his death had been elaborately planned. Its tragic failure was told in Foard's letter to Walsh's mother. Inclosed was a note that young Walsh had scrawled when he found himself too weak to continue with his companion. Each wrote to his mother with the understanding that if one died the other would strive to deliver the message. Under a deep emotional strain, and perhaps half-delirious, Walsh wrote:

"Mother: I am making Foard go on for aid . . . Can't move . . . God save us . . . Please help Foard marry Clarissa [a girl in Lima, Peru] . . . He is your son now. Dad, I am dead—save mother."

Follows Several Disasters.

The tragedy climaxed a series of disasters experienced by the two explorers. Foard and Walsh left Lima, Peru, about the middle of November. The last word Mrs. Walsh had while her son was alive was contained in a cable sent from Huanuco, Peru, on Nov. 26. It said he and Foard were leaving civilization. Foard's letter said they traveled for the first six days on the Maranon river, accompanied by a small company of porters.

They released the porters after a week and traveled alone in a specially constructed boat sent them from New York. After two weeks' travel their boat was wrecked and their supplies lost. They were left with but one rifle and a few cartridges in an almost impenetrable jungle.

Suffer Untold Hardships.

Foard wrote that they suffered untold hardships for the next five weeks, or until the end of January, all the time trying to find their way to civilization. At last Walsh said he could go on no longer. Foard's letter indicated that they were barely able to sustain life on game they shot and on fruits and herbs. They had reached the region of the Pauté river in Ecuador, from Foard's description, a vast jungle inhabited only by Indians, when Walsh collapsed.

He could not walk, Foard wrote, and begged the latter to go on for help. That night both slept and the next morning Foard had difficulty in waking Walsh. A drink of water aroused him temporarily, but a few moments later he died in the arms of his friend.

Digs Rough Grave.

Foard dug a rough grave, buried his friend and went on alone. He wandered for five days, until the friendly native found him. Eventually he reached Monzon, Peru, where the letter to Mrs. Walsh was mailed on March 12.

The mother yesterday was trying to communicate with the American consul at Lima in an effort to have the body reclaimed and sent here for burial. The son was an only child. He had set out on the expedition to gather data to aid him in getting the doctor of philosophy degree in science. Young Walsh obtained knowledge of the territory he and Foard invaded from the Field Museum of Natural History, his mother said.

Killed by Train While Pursuing Taunting Boys

Frank Bonkoski, 37 years old, 2359 North Seeley avenue, according to his neighbors, never could endure the joking of mischievous boys. Yesterday a group of them gathered in front of his home and taunted him until he became desperate and pursued them. The chase led to the Chicago and North Western tracks a half block away. All the boys crossed safely, but just as Bonkoski stepped on the tracks a suburban passenger train struck and killed him.

MOONEY DENIED PARDON; GUILTY, ROLPH BELIEVES

California Governor Heeds Advisers.

MATT J. SULLIVAN. [Acme Photo.]

The governor's action followed the unanimous recommendation of his legal advisers on the Mooney case. Judge Matt I. Sullivan, former chief justice of the State Supreme court, and Lewis F. Byington, San Francisco attorney.

Rejection of Mooney's pardon application was announced by the governor from his Sacramento office this afternoon in a thousand word statement outlining his reasons and expressing his belief in the guilt of Mooney.

Report Made Public.

In announcing his denial of the pardon to the convicted San Francisco Preparedness day bomber the governor made public the 25,000 word report prepared by Judge Sullivan on the Mooney case and all phases of the bombing outrage, including the copartnership of Mooney and Warren K. Billings in crimes of violence. The Sullivan report said there had been no evidence discovered indicating Mooney's innocence and recommended that he be refused a pardon.

Mooney and Billings are serving life sentences in San Quentin prison as a result of their convictions for participation in the 1916 Preparedness day outrage, which caused the death of ten persons and injured about fifty others.

Recommendation Made Public.

The Sullivan report was accompanied by a letter of transmission signed by Sullivan which read as follows:

"We have made a careful examination of all records relative to the conviction of Thomas J. Mooney. We have also sought and obtained information from various other sources to enable us to arrive at a just conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the petitioner and the propriety of granting or withholding your executive clemency.

"We, therefore, recommend that Thomas J. Mooney's application for unconditional pardon be denied."

Governor Reads Statement.

The governor read this statement accompanying the denial of pardon in the outer offices of his executive quarters in the capitol building at Sacramento. Matt I. Sullivan flanked him on one side and Gov. Balzer of Nevada on the other. Ringed about them were state officials and others. Facing the governor were batteries of cameras, movie machines, and sound recording apparatus.

In the next room, Mrs. Mary Mooney, the prisoner's mother, and Miss Mary Mooney, his sister, were within hearing distance as the governor read his decision.

The governor reviewed his consideration of the case and said he had approached the hearing of Mooney's plea for a pardon, presented by Mayor James J. Walker of New York, "with an open mind and in a spirit of absolute fairness and without any bias or prejudice of any kind against Thomas J. Mooney."

Before U. S. High Court.

Gov. Rolph recalled that Mooney's case had been presented to the California Supreme court four times and once to the United States Supreme court. He also pointed out that three of his predecessors in the governor's chair, William D. Stephen, Friend W. Richardson, and C. C. Young, had denied Mooney's application for a pardon.

"For the reasons indicated," the governor declared, "the application of Thomas J. Mooney for a pardon is hereby denied."

No mention was made of commuting the life sentence that Mooney is serving. This means, it was pointed out, that Mooney will continue to remain in prison unless he is pardoned or his sentence commuted by some later governor.

Refers to Walker's Plea.

In his report Sullivan referred to the efforts of Mayor Walker and others to obtain a pardon for Mooney.

"We are much interested in the eloquent appeals by the distinguished

TIE ARTIST AND HER LANDLORD; GET $1,000 LOOT

Two armed men entered a studio building at 205 East Superior street late last night and after tying up Miss Alice Johns, an artist, and her landlord, Gordon Smith, escaped with jewelry, money, and clothing for a total of about $1,000, including Miss Johns' $600 ring.

The robbers, lurking in a hallway, seized Smith as he entered the building and made him take them to the apartment of Miss Johns. She was tied with a rope to her kitchen stove and Smith was bound to a table. Miss Johns freed herself about an hour after they left and notified the police.

counsel for Mooney at the hearing of his application for pardon before the governor and his advisers, but we believe, however, that they must have been ignorant of the past life of Mooney, his record as a dynamiter, his public and private utterances in favor of anarchy and revolution, his publication of the 'Revolt,' his connection with the blast and the blasters," Sullivan said.

Sullivan told Frank P. Walsh, counsel for Mooney, that the latter's comparison of Mooney to the "Carpenter of Nazareth" was "inappropriate in view of the character of his client." He added that Mooney "is known to all Californians to be a Red, an anarchist, and a dynamiter."

Learns Fate on "Grapevine."

Mooney had learned his fate before he was brought into the office of Warden James B. Holohan for official notification. Radio sets and the prison "grapevine" system of communication had broadcast the information. Apprised of the governor's decision, Mooney nodded and said to newspapermen:

"There is only one thing I can say at this time. This decision makes me the outstanding figure in the world labor movement today. It makes me a crucified symbol of struggling labor."

Attacks His "Enemies."

Barred by prison regulations from commenting directly at San Quentin on the action of Gov. Rolph, Mooney later through the Mooney molders' defense committee issued a statement attacking his so-called enemies.

Through this agency he declared he had no chance of obtaining a fair and impartial hearing from "representatives of as unprincipled a bunch of pirates as ever scuttled a ship." Mooney said that "the cards were stacked and the dice loaded" against him.

"This decision," he said, "proves the utter impossibility of any militant worker ever securing justice at the hands of capitalistically controlled courts, governors and other politicians."

Gov. Rolph's Decision.

The text of the governor's decision follows:

"On Dec. 1, 1931, an application for a pardon was made on behalf of Thomas J. Mooney by his attorneys, the Hon. Frank P. Walsh, the Hon. James J. Walker, Mr. Aaron Sapiro, all of New York, and Mr. Cyrus B. King of California.

"On the date above meationed, in the chambers of the Supreme court of the state of California, at San Francisco, Cal., the attorneys above mentioned, representing Thomas J. Mooney, presented their arguments in support of said application before me sitting with the Hon. Matt I. Sullivan, former chief justice of the Supreme court of the state of California, the Hon. Louis F. Byington, former district attorney of San Francisco, and the Hon. Daniel J. O'Brien, director of the department of penology of the state of California, which later three gentlemen were invited by me to participate in the hearing of said application for advice and counsel.

Entire Record Studied.

"During the period of approximately five months that has intervened since the date of said hearing, Judge Matt I. Sullivan and I have not only given consideration to the arguments above referred to, but have given painstaking attention to and have studied the entire record of the proceedings and evidence given during the trial of said Thomas J. Mooney, held before the Superior court of the state of California in and for the city and county of San Francisco, which resulted in his conviction of the charge specified in the indictment upon which he was tried, as well as of all of the proceedings occurring upon his appeal to the Supreme court of the state of California from said judgment of conviction.

"During said period we have also carefully examined, read and studied the records in other criminal cases arising out of the preparedness parade dynamiting outrage in which ten human beings were killed and between forty and fifty injured.

Billings Case Reviewed.

"We have also examined and read and given consideration to all of the proceedings occurring before the justices of the Supreme court of the state of California upon the application of Warren K. Billings for a recommendation by them of a pardon, which application was referred to said court because of the circumstance that Billings had twice been convicted of the commission of a felony.

"In this connection I believe it proper to state that we approached the hearing of said application and undertook the labor necessarily involved in its consideration with open minds, in a spirit of absolute fairness, and without any bias or prejudice of any kind against Thomas J. Mooney.

"At my request, and with my cooperation, Judge Matt I. Sullivan has prepared a statement consisting of approximately 125 pages of typewritten matter, which is herewith made a part of this record, in which is set forth the principal facts, material to the application, disclosed by our investigations.

"These facts, taken in conjunction with all of the other matters above mentioned given consideration by us, have convinced us that Thomas J. Mooney was guilty of the offense charged against him; that he was justly convicted by the jury by whom he was tried, and that the application made on his behalf for a pardon should be denied.

Other Denials Cited.

"For the purpose of the record and for the information of those who are interested in this application, it may be well to state that the case of Thomas J. Mooney has been presented to the Supreme court of this state upon four occasions, and upon one occasion to the Supreme court of the United States, on petition for writ of certiorari to review the judgment of the Supreme court; and that three of my predecessors—Gov. William D. Stephens, Gov. Friend W. Richardson, and Gov. C. C. Young—to each of whom an application was made by Thomas J. Mooney for a pardon, denied such application.

"For the reasons indicated, the application of Thomas J. Mooney for a pardon is hereby denied.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state of California to be affixed this 21st day of April, 1932.

Woman Plunges to Death from Window of Hospital

Mrs. Anna Lewis, 59 years old, 1617 South Avers avenue, leaped or fell to her death early today from a third floor window of the Illinois Research hospital at 1819 Polk street, where she had gone yesterday for treatment for a stomach ailment. A nurse, Miss Ida Smith, discovered Mrs. Lewis was missing from her bed and other hospital attendants found her body in a lot adjoining the institution. Relatives said Mrs. Lewis had been despondent.

7,751 ARRESTED ON SECOND DAY OF AUTO DRIVE

Many Show License Receipts; Freed in Court.

The police drive against motorists who have not purchased state licenses or city vehicle stickers for 1932 continued unabated yesterday, with 7,751 summonses issued during the 22 hours ending at 10 o'clock last night. This raised to 15,141 the number of arrest slips given out since the campaign started on Wednesday.

The effectiveness of the drive, ordered by Police Commissioner James Allman, was somewhat minimized, however, in the Traffic and Speeders' court, where delinquent motorists were discharged without being fined when they produced receipts to show that they had rushed to buy licenses after receiving summonses.

Many Freed in Court.

Of the 229 defendants ordered to go to the South State street court yesterday, only 78 appeared before Judge Jay A. Schiller. Sixty-two showed receipts, and were discharged. The remaining 16 pleaded that they were out of work and were unable to buy licenses. Their cases were continued to May 5, on the promise that they would make an effort to buy the licenses.

Only 105 of the 384 motorists scheduled to appear before Judge Theodore Ehler in the Speeders' court were present yesterday. Of that number 83 were dismissed when they showed receipts and 17 won continuances to May 12, promising to buy licenses in the interim. Capiases were issued for the arrest of the 279 who did not appear.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court, sitting with Judge Schiller, said: "Those persons who ignore a court summons must learn to respect the law. When those who failed to appear are brought before the court they will be required to pay the cost of issuing the capiases, which amounts to $8.50."

New Summonses Issued.

In addition to the 7,390 summonses issued up to midnight Wednesday police of the different districts yesterday handed out the following number of slips:

Traffic division	1,000	Maxwell	137
Motorcycle div.	700	Marquette	130
Central	79	Lawndale	195
Pekin	125	Fillmore	200

Brighton	80

For the first time in the history of drives to force motorists to purchase licenses, detective bureau squads received orders last night to watch for cars with old licenses, or without city stickers, and to arrest the drivers.

HOLD POLICE SLAYER TO JURY.

A Lake county coroner's jury yesterday held Steve Brody, 45 years old, caretaker of the Ingleside hotel at Ingleside, who fatally shot James Fiklik, Chicago policeman, to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter. Brody admitted the shooting but pleaded self-defense.

TAXI DANCE HALL IMMORAL, RULING OF COURT MASTER

Urges Dissolution of Injunction.

The report of Master in Chancery Isidore Brown on conditions in the Clark-Erie Dancing school, 645 North Clark street, was made public yesterday. The master recommended to Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan that the temporary injunction protecting the place from police raids be dissolved immediately.

Edward Block, proprietor of the Clark-Erie, was arraigned in court several days ago on charges of being keeper of a disorderly house. The case against him was continued by Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy. The master's report stated in strong language that the school was a taxi dance hall and the dancing of the vilest.

Another Case Up Today.

Another taxi dance hall case is scheduled for hearing today before Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel. The judge has been asked by Assistant Corporation Counsel Otto F. Weiner to dissolve the injunction he issued protecting the Club Floridan, 676 West Madison street, said to be operated by the Capone syndicate. A number of continuances mark the history of this case.

The testimony regarding the Clark-Erie hall offered before Master in Chancery Brown was conflicting. Block, the proprietor, said the place was a reputable dancing school and the relations between instructresses and patrons were very formal. Regarding the type of dancing permitted, he said:

"In a fox trot, one-step, and two-step, the partners must be six inches apart. In the waltz, they are 8 to 12 inches apart."

What Investigators Found.

In contrast was the testimony of investigators that as soon as they started to dance the girls entwined their arms about the necks of their partners and pressed their bodies against them. The girls gave their cards and telephone numbers to whomever asked for them, according to the evidence.

"The evidence shows clearly that the dancing indulged in was immoral, indecent, suggestive, and aphrodisiacal," said the master's report.

EVANSTON MAN KILLS SELF WITH GUN IN HIS HOME

Donald B. Haven, 51 years old, 2209 Ridge avenue, Evanston, formerly a salesman for the Southern Kraft corporation, paper manufacturers, committed suicide early this morning by firing a bullet into his head in the bathroom of his home. He had been out of employment for six months. He was sitting with his wife listening to the radio when suddenly he went to the bathroom. A moment later a shot rang out just as Haven's daughter, Dorothy, 20 years old, with her escort, Horace O'Boyle, 2603 Colfax avenue, Evanston, entered the house.

Mrs. Haven, the daughter and O'Boyle rushed to the bathroom, where they found Haven mortally wounded. He was taken to the Evanston hospital, where he died two hours later. Haven left a note directing that his wife should have his life insurance and ordering that his body be cremated.

EDGAR WALLACE DIED WITH DEBTS OF OVER $300,000

LONDON, April 21.—Edgar Wallace, one of the world's most prolific writers, who died in Hollywood on Feb. 10, left debts of more than $300,000, assets of about $70,000, and no personal estate. These figures were quoted by the Daily Mail tonight, and according to a subsequent interview with his widow there seems no reason to dispute them.

"It would be idle to beat about the bush," she said. "The figure of $300,000 represents two main things—heavy racing losses and the fact that in recent years we lived above our income. I suppose it was inevitable that with Edgar finding himself in the midst of more public activities, the stage, the films, and racing, he should begin to lose his sense of proportion.

"We gave big parties which were above his income and generally Edgar was spending right and left as though it were certain that the big sums he was earning for a time from his theatrical activities could continue forever."

Under the terms of his will made in 1926 Wallace left three-sevenths of his property to his widow and one-seventh each to four children. Money payable for the author's work in Hollywood immediately prior to his death had not then been taken into account.

Penalties accruing against taxpayers who have failed or refused to pay their 1927, 1928 and 1929 real estate tax bills have reached a total of $11,284,528, it was announced yesterday by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. This figure sets an all time record as the greatest total penalties ever owed the county, Mr. McDonough said.

During the campaign being waged to induce citizens to pay taxes, the point has been stressed that a penalty of 1 per cent of the unpaid portion of tax bills is levied every month after the bills become due.

1930 Penalty Not Set.

In the case of 1930 taxes, now due and in collection, the penalty date has not been set, but officials are proceeding on a basis that the legislature will adopt a bill, now in passage, setting May 1 as the date from which penalties will run.

With the Illinois Supreme court having upheld the legality of the 1928 and 1929 tax levies, which had been challenged, Mayor Cermak and county officials have appealed to all taxpayers to make their payments now to avoid penalties and to rescue the city's credit.

Taxes assessed in 1927 carry a penalty of one per cent monthly since May 1, 1928, a total penalty of 48 per cent. The one per cent is computed for each month or fraction of a month. The 1928 tax penalty date was July 16, 1930, the accrued penalties being 22 per cent. On the 1929 taxes, penalties of 12 per cent have accrued since May 15, 1931.

Totals by Years.

Year.	Taxes due.	Penalty rate.	Penalties due.
1927	$ 1,624,747	48%	$ 779,879
1929	51,719,125	12%	6,206,295
Totals..	$72,881,845		$11,284,258

These figures should be qualified somewhat because under a law recently passed, the County court may order waived any portion of the accrued penalty, not to exceed 50 per cent of it. This may only be done, however, if the delinquent taxpayer can prove that he has filed objections to the taxes, in good faith, and Judge Jarecki has ruled that in order to establish good faith, a taxpayer must have paid at least a reasonable portion of the bill when it was due.

Some Have Paid.

Some of the taxpayers whose delinquencies are included in the above tabulation have paid portions of their taxes. Others have paid none, and among these are many taxpayers who are members of various real estate tax associations which have adopted fixed policies of not paying any taxes at all on the theory that a forcible protest is thus registered against oppressive and inequitable taxation.

Examples of the burden imposed upon taxpayers who are delinquent and have paid none of their 1928 and 1929 taxes were cited yesterday. In the case of the property of the Riverside Plaza company at 79 West Monroe street the taxes of $130,104 in 1928 and $160,215 in 1929 are recorded as not paid. The penalties accrued against the 1928 bill, at 22 per cent, total $28,623, and against the 1929 bill, at 12 per cent, $19,226, or total penalties against this property of $47,849.

Objections Filed.

This corporation has filed objections in the County court to both tax bills. It is possible that Judge Jarecki may cause a portion of the penalties to be waived even though the records show no payment on account has been made. The same conditions apply to two other cases now to be cited.

The State-Randolph Building corporation at 159 North State street has paid nothing on a 1928 bill of $110,747 and nothing on the 1929 bill of $132,251. The accrued penalties amount to $24,364 for 1928 and $15,870 in 1929, a total of $40,234.

The Midland club, occupying property at 21 East Van Buren street on a lease from the Levi Leiter estate—the lease requiring the club to pay the taxes—owes $68,596 for 1928 and $81,916 for 1929, on which the penalties amount to $15,091 for 1928 and $9,830 for 1929, a total of $24,921.

Pennsy to Pay $1,392,179.

Among large payments made by taxpayers yesterday was one of $658,307 by Aldis & Co., real estate firm, on a number of items of real estate on the 1930 assessment. Treasurer McDonough announced that tax payments on Wednesday aggregated $5,600,157, of which $5,350,581 was on real estate and $249,576 on personal property.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, through E. E. Newcomet, vice president, announced that a tax payment of $1,392,179 will be made this morning. The railroad will present $776,683 in cash, and $615,496 in tax warrants. This is represented to be the largest 1930 tax payment made by any railroad serving the Chicago district.

How It Began

Back in the dim past of Roman mythology ruled Venus, the goddess of love and physical perfection. The measurements of her sculptured body—the Venus of Melos, found on the island of Melos, Greece, in 1820—have been accepted as being closer to man's ideal of the form beautiful than any others.

But a few days ago came a new claimant to perfection, an 18 year old blond of Arizona, Miss Sima Siniaho, sophomore at the State Teachers' college at Flagstaff. She was selected as coming closest to the physical ideal, being an inch shorter than the Venus of Melos, slighter in hips, and a trifle more voluptuous than the sculptured goddess in other measurements.

Yesterday, THE TRIBUNE was notified of three more aspirants, if not claimants, to the title of perfection: Lorraine Gratten, 8023 Vernon avenue; Luella Petri, 11951 Perry avenue; and Rose Moynihan, 8023 Vernon avenue. Being dancers, they are somewhat slighter in some measurements than the goddess, and a bit fuller in others. Each is 16 years old.

And while we're about it, if you think your measurements are better, send them in and your picture also.

CHURCH'S BREAD LINE TO END FOR LACK OF FUNDS

Historic Immanuel May Be Closed to Worship.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The bread line at Immanuel Baptist church will cease on May 1. The Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor, in announcing yesterday that the bread line which he founded a generation ago was to be stopped for lack of funds, said in addition that there was danger that the church itself might have to be closed. The church, situated at 2320 South Michigan avenue, is one of the city's oldest.

"We are now living from week to week in our work of feeding hungry people," said Dr. Myers. "I cannot see how we can continue to feed 6,000 people a day on our present income and it is certain we can go no further into debt."

Dr. Myers said he expected "a bad summer," when the greatest single need of thousands of people will be food. Housing, he said, will become less a problem because of the summer weather, but the need for food will continue to be acute.

Depend on Church for Food.

"I realize," said Dr. Myers, "that the method we use at Immanuel is frowned on by organized charity. But I find more and more that members of the most neglected of the national and racial groups secure about their only food they get from Immanuel. There are the Chinese—many of them are in an awful condition—and the Lithuanians. They keep coming to Immanuel. I have also been astonished to discover former soldiers who live in the ex-service men's home down near 18th street and Prairie avenue have to come here for their bread. They have a place to live, but nothing to eat. When a man's hungry is no time to investigate him. We feed the hungry when they are hungry and investigate afterwards."

Dr. Myers said he is using 3,000 loaves of bread each day. He told of being given nine tons or 19,760 cans of soup by one of the country's largest canners a few weeks ago. This, Dr. Myers said, has staved off starvation in many homes. The supply is now nearly exhausted.

Once a Wealthy Church.

Immanuel church at one time had a wealthy congregation, but population drift carried its wealthier members to other sections of the city. Then followed the growth of the old 22d street red light district which Dr. Myers helped eradicate. Later the church found itself in the heart of the automobile row of South Michigan avenue. The church was moved bodily about 60 feet to the south 25 years ago. This was regarded a notable engineering feat.

Dr. Myers announced that this Sunday will be "Good Samaritan Sunday" at Immanuel church. "We may have to close in a few days," said the veteran pastor, "but it will only be after we have fought to the finish."

MISS LINDGREN CALLS SELF DUPE OF BANK'S HEAD

Testifies in Own Defense; Case to Jury Today.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Cleve Johnson, contributing to delinquency of a child, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell and fined $200; Daniel Ferrare, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory; James Davis, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Edward Levandowski, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Miss Lavergne Lindgren, former cashier of the Peoples State bank of Maywood, which failed two years ago with a loss of $173,000, told a jury in Judge John Prystalski's Criminal court yesterday that she was just a dupe for Elmer P. Langguth, president of the bank, who is serving a 1 to 10 year sentence in the penitentiary.

When she discovered that something was wrong with the bank, Miss Lindgren testified, she immediately handed in her resignation to the bank president. She did not tell the authorities of her discovery, she said, because Langguth had "begged her" not to do so. Miss Lindgren is charged with making false statements to bank examiners.

Miss Lindgren may know some time today what the jury thinks of her testimony. The taking of evidence was practically closed yesterday afternoon. The prosecution this morning will present a few rebuttal witnesses, Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury and Charles Mueller said, to attack the "good character of Miss Lindgren" and then the closing arguments will commence.

Second Trial for Her.

The young woman bank executive was convicted at a former trial along with Langguth. She was granted a new trial by the State Supreme court on a rehearing petition, however, after her conviction had once been affirmed.

Miss Lindgren did not testify at the first trial. Attorneys Benedict Short and Joseph Z. Willner, who did not defend Miss Lindgren in her first trial, yesterday rested their hope for acquittal practically on her testimony alone. A few character witnesses also appeared for her.

Miss Lindgren, a tall slender brunette of 26, made a good witness, even the prosecutors admitted. She was dressed in a two tone brown ensemble, and her face flushed slightly at times when she admitted that, although cashier of a bank, she had no idea of the duties of such an official or any training to qualify her for employment in a bank. Her main duty, it seemed from her testimony, was to meet the public."

Tells of Her Duties.

"Did you have anything to do with running the bank or with the policies of the bank?," she was asked by Attorney Short.

"No, I didn't," she replied. "Mr. Langguth always ran the bank, even before he was president."

Q.—Do you remember the time the bank examiners came on Jan. 31, 1930 [about a month before the bank closed]? A.—Very well. It was after the bank had closed to the public. Mr. Langguth came rushing over very excited and said he thought he saw the bank examiners coming. He told me to go back and tell Miss Campbell to pull the sheets.

Q.—What happened then? A.—I raised my eyebrows as if in inquiry and Mr. Langguth said he would give me a satisfactory explanation later.

Never Tampered with Books.

Q.—Had you ever pulled sheets from the bank ledgers before? A.—No, I never did, nor did I have any knowledge that it had been done before.

Q.—Did you have any knowledge of Langguth's overdrafts? A.—No, I did not, until it came out after the bank closed.

The sheet pulling episode was explained earlier in the day by Miss Florence Campbell, Maywood, bookkeeper of the bank. She said that Langguth carried personal overdrafts of $125,000, and that the bank examiners had been fooled at least three times before by the simple expedient of pulling sheets from the commercial ledgers to make the bank books balance. She had done this, she said, on the instructions of Langguth, except on the last occasion, when, she said, Miss Lindgren issued the "pulling" order.

State Relies on Point.

It is principally on this one fact that the prosecution is relying for conviction. The prosecution contends that the testimony of Miss Campbell proves that Miss Lindgren knew what was going on in the bank and was an accessory to Langguth's crime of falsifying statements to examiners. Attorney Short, after a rigid cross-examination, made Miss Campbell admit that she thought the order given to pull sheets by Miss Lindgren had come from Langguth.

Miss Campbell also admitted that she had been threatened with indictment by the prosecution until she told of what she knew of the juggling of the bank books.

Calls Testimony "Lie."

"It's a lie," she whispered to her attorneys as Miss Campbell told of pulling sheets from the ledger at Miss Lindgren's order.

The defense at the close of the state's case moved for a directed verdict of not guilty, but Judge Prystalski, after a slight hesitation, said:

"There is just enough testimony by the state to let this case go to a jury. It is up to the jury to decide the weight of the evidence."

The case is expected to reach the jury by 2 p. m. today.

Seek Indictments Against 3 for Fake Picnic Racket

Assistant State's Attorney Edward C. Dufficy said yesterday that he would seek indictments against three men accused of conspiracy to defraud the public by selling tickets for a fake veterans' picnic. The men are Sol Block, 5005 Sheridan road; Harry Kirst, 3319 Drake avenue, and George Fairchild of Maywood. They were arrested on Wednesday at 4415 Belmont avenue. They admitted they had collected about $150 from persons who bought tickets for a picnic to be given by the "American Veterans' Shelter" at Elm Tree grove, 6551 Irving Park boulevard, on Aug. 7. Block was once known as the "boy wizard of Maywood."

WRITER FATALLY SHOT IN HOME OF WOMAN AVIATOR

Mrs. Keith-Miller, Flying Partner Held.

Miami, Fla., April 21.—(AP)—A romance between Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian flyer, and Haden Clarke, 31, who was writing a history of her life, ended today with his mysterious death from a pistol shot.

Mrs. Keith-Miller, who was held in county jail after the shooting, as was her flying partner for several years, Capt. W. N. Lancaster, British aviator, was allowed to attend the funeral.

Notes Point to Suicide.

Investigators said notes left by Clarke pointed conclusively to suicide. Mrs. Ida Clarke, his mother, a University of Miami professor, agreed on this point and said her son had had financial worries. Mrs. Keith-Miller and Lancaster were vehement in their assertion that Clarke took his own life.

Letters found by the investigators included one from the aviatrix to Lancaster, then in St. Louis, and one from Clarke to Lancaster. Each told of Clarke's and her intentions to marry as the result of a romance that blossomed as they collaborated in the preparation of her life story he was writing.

An answering telegram from Lancaster sent last Sunday from St. Louis told the two "kids" he did not want to be a "dog in the manger," wished them every happiness and urged that they defer their marriage until after his return here. He arrived by airplane last night.

Wrote to Both Friends.

One of the two notes found after the shooting was addressed to Mrs. Keith-Miller, who is known as "Chubbie."

It read:

"The economic situation is such I can't go through with it. Comfort mother in her sorrow. You have Bill, he is the whitest man I know.

"HADEN."

The other, addressed to Lancaster, read:

"Bill: I can't make the grade. Tell Chubbie of our talk. My advice is, never leave her again. H."

In a statement issued from the jail today, Lancaster said he and Clarke retired about 12:45 this morning to their sleeping porch. They talked for about an hour before going to sleep. Some time later, Lancaster said, he was awakened by an explosion and found Clark lying in bed with a gaping bullet wound in his head.

He called Mrs. Keith-Miller from her sleeping quarters and after brief inspection they called police, an ambulance, and an attorney.

Prosecuting Attorney N. Veron Hawthorne said Mrs. Keith-Miller probably would be released tomorrow.

TEACHERS' PAY CUT 10 PCT. AT CLINTON; BUDGET IS REDUCED

Chenoa Makes Slash.

Chenoa, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—A cut of 25 per cent in the budget fo rthe Chenoa Community High school for next year has been ordered. Chenoa grade school teachers will be cut 10 per cent.

Decatur Reduces Pay.

Decatur, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Decatur will save between $54,000 and $56,000 on teachers' salaries next year through the 10 per cent cut adopted by the board of education.

Pulaski Follows Suit.

Pulaski, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—The Mount Pulaski High school board has ordered a salary cut of 10 per cent for teachers.

START SCHOOL VACATION TODAY; TEACHERS PAID

Chicago's half million school children will start their spring vacation this afternoon. The schools will reopen on May 2. Jahn Howatt, chief engineer for the board of education, announced yesterday that engineers and assistant engineers in the school buildings would be occupied with repairs on boilers, pumps, and other equipment during the week's holiday.

School employés will receive their pay checks today for the first half of February. The checks, totaling $1,224,000, were mailed last night from the business offices of the school board and will be distributed at the schools this morning. The board also mailed out "N. S. F." checks for the last half of April, 1931, and the month of May to all employés who had not previously accepted scrip. These checks will be accepted in exchange for small denomination tax warrants.

GANGSTER SHOT TO DEATH IN CAR IN WASHINGTON

Slain with a Sawed Off Shotgun.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—A gangster murder, following the formula—sawed off shotgun, mysterious getaway in an automobile, and all the rest—today turned police headquarters of the nation's capital into a busy place.

Milton White Henry, they called him "Milsey," former St. Louis gambler, who came here six years ago, was put on the spot in traditional manner early today as he was driving to his flat.

So quickly and efficiently did the five slugs from the shotgun do their work that Henry's own revolver with its six cartridges unexploded, lay on the floor of the car, at his feet. The ignition switch of the car had not been turned off when police came hurrying to the scene.

Gangster's Widow Faints.

But the death car had disappeared. Pedestrians on the street at the time believe the car was a black sedan and it contained, in addition to the man who had run out from it and fired the shots, another man and a woman.

The gangster's widow, who came down from the flat with her small dog, looked at the dead man slumped over the wheel and fainted. Later she declared she had no idea who might have committed the murder; that he had no enemies.

But police have a different view of his activities. When he first came here he operated a gambling place a little way out of the downtown district. Two years ago he moved into more central headquarters with an associate, in a large downtown office building. Several times he has been questioned by the police for possible participation in local crimes but has never been held.

Hired Two Bodyguards.

About a month ago, evidently fearful of some harm, he hired as bodyguards John H. Kendrick and Harry Yudelevit, and one of the first things they did was to become involved in a shooting fray, during which Policeman T. D. Bacon was seriously wounded. Henry was held in a cell for three days for questioning but was later released.

HITLER'S RIVAL POLITICAL ARMY 'LAYS DOWN ARMS'

BERLIN, April 21.—(AP)—Karl Hoeltermann, head of the Republican Reichbanner organization, informed Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense and interior, today that he had ordered the dissolution of all the quasi-military units of the Reichsbanner. Groener was directed by President von Hindenburg several days ago to investigate charges that the Reichsbanner was objectionable on the same grounds which brought about dissolution of the National Socialist "Storm Troops."

SANITARY BOARD FIRES 252 IN A DRASTIC PAY CUT

Will Save $896,259; Only 1,041 Workers Left.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The sanitary district trustees yesterday inaugurated the most drastic economies this local government has practiced in ten years.

T. J. BOWLER.

The trustees eliminated outright 252 jobs. Then they slashed the salaries of 62 remaining employés 10 per cent. The resultant estimated saving for the year totals $896,259.56. This is in addition to a wage cut out of 10 per cent for all employés at the beginning of the year and the abolition at that time of about 200 jobs. This New Year saving was placed at $336,000, so that so far this year the district has cut its pay roll about $1,232,000.

Strike Toward Economy.

This is a stride toward economy which no other local government, with possibly one exception, has approached. The economies appear all the more striking because the present pay roll contrasts so sharply with the pay roll in the "whoopee era" of the district, in 1928, with its useless army of nonworkers.

In October, 1928, just before the election, the pay roll had 4,708 employés and an expense of $1,049,211.89. This morning the number on the district pay roll—because each discharged worker was notified by registered mail last night—will total 1,041, with a monthly expense of $231,855.

The present pay roll is only 22 per cent of what it was in the heyday of the "whoopee" president, Timothy J. Crowe, although the opening of several sewage disposal plants since has increased the need for employés. Placing the activities of the district on the 1928 basis, it is reckoned by the trustees that the pay roll today is about one-sixth of what it was in the "whoopee days."

238 in Engineering Department.

Of the jobs abolished yesterday, 238 are in the engineering department and the other 14 in the clerical, law and real estate divisions. In the engineering bureau 72 of the places eliminated were held by technically trained men, 86 by union labor and 80 others by nontechnical and nonunion employés. The other 14 were three lawyers, two investigators, eight clerks and one salesman.

"It had to be done," explained President Thomas J. Bowler. "We have not paid the employés since the first half of January. We haven't the money and cannot borrow it. We cannot sell bonds to finance construction of sewage plants demanded by the government, so we have suspended designing them. But this firing of faithful employés is a terrible job and the pressure applied to keep this and that one on the pay roll would break the back of most anybody."

Walter Beebe Let Out.

One employé discharged is Walter Beebe, former chief attorney for the district, who had been retained at $1,000 a month because of his special knowledge. Attorneys A. A. Pentella at $416.66 a month and F. X. Derdzinski at $300 were also let out. Lawyers on the district pay roll now total 14.

During the "whoopee period" there were 141 lawyers on the pay roll. Disbarment proceedings were started against 58 of them on the ground they did not render service for the money paid them. During the last two years the board has had from 17 to 21 lawyers. The present 14 lawyers may be contracted with 44 on the pay roll in 1925, 55 in 1926, 91 in 1927, and 141 in 1928.

The trustees claim that the trimming in the law department is typical of what has been done in other divisions. It was predicted that the pay roll for 1932 will be less than $2,850,000. If that forecast proves true, it may be compared with $5,844,752 paid on pay rolls in 1925, $6,271,846 in 1927, and $10,251,672 in the "whoopee" year of 1928.

In 1929 the number of employés was reduced from 4,708, the record during the "whoopee" year, to 1,442. In 1930 the high water mark was 1,365, and with the opening of a new sewage plant in 1931 the number was raised to 1,485. On Jan. 1 of this year the number was 1,497; on Feb. 1 it was 1,319; on March 1, 1,302, and on April 1 it was down to 1,293. Yesterday it was dropped to 1,041.

Positions Eliminated.

To do this the district eliminated positions which heretofore the trustees have said were essential. But the order abolishes the position of district controller, held by Joseph Weber at $500 a month. He was taken to the district by Howard W. Elmore when he was president of the district. Joseph M. Bush, head bookkeeper, drawing $335, was also let out.

To indicate their good intentions, Joseph Przybylo, Democratic committeeman of the 26th ward, was relieved of his job as investigator at $300 a month. Four employés sponsored by Patrick Nash, chairman of the Democratic county committee, were also turned out.

George M. Wisner, consulting engineer for the district for many years following long service as its chief engineer, was given a reduction in salary from $1,000 to $500 a month. Marshall B. Wheeler, publicity director, and his assistant, Mary Larner, were let go.

The salary of Frank Johnston, former Appellate court judge, was reduced from $708.33 a month to $625. The salary of H. P. Ramey, assistant chief engineer of the district, and Langdon Pearse, nationally known sanitary engineer, were each reduced $83.33 a month.

The bureaus of experiment were slashed to skeletons of organizations. Some of the men who were thrown out of employment yesterday have been working for the district between 12 and 20 years. Ten chemists and bacteriologists, whose salaries ranged from $200 to $310 a month, were eliminated. Five engineers, headed by H. L. McMillan at $416.66 a month, were discharged.

"This retrenchment represents the most drastic in the technical staff in many years," wrote Chief Engineer Edward J. Kelly to the board, "and involves the loss of services of many valued employés."

SOUTHWESTERN MICHIGAN CITIES PICK BEAUTIES

3 MORE MICHIGAN BEAUTIES PICKED FOR FETE THRONE

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 21.—[Special.]—Three more blossom queens were selected tonight to represent their towns in the final judging here next Wednesday night to choose the prettiest girl in southwestern Michigan for queen of the annual Blossom festival. Hartford, Grand Haven, and Chikaming township announced their winners tonight.

Miss Stella Grynwich of Harbert was chosen over seven other girls to be Miss Chikaming Township. The runnerup is Miss Sally Wilcox. Both girls are 20 years old and blondes. The entries comprised girls from Harbert, Sawyer, and Lakeside.

Miss Alice Jane Shafer, 18 years old, was chosen as Miss Hartford. She also is a blonde, and is one of the 13 children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shafer of Hartford. Miss Ada May Root, also 18, a brunette, is the runnerup. Eight girls competed.

SHOT BY WATCHMAN; DIES.

Thomas J. Regan Jr., 27 years old, 6526 South Talman avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of a wound received April 16, when a watchman shot him as he was breaking into a drugstore at 63d street and Washtenaw avenue.

DEMOCRATS WAR FOR ECONOMY IN MEETING TODAY

Convention Puts Brake on Legislation.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—State politics today swamped the three concurrent special sessions of the Illinois general assembly. Two, or possibly three, of them were dragging along into the afternoon when the advance guard of the Democratic convention arrived full of energy for tomorrow's meeting in the state arsenal.

Mayor Cermak, slated to head the party in the state as national committeeman, headed the Chicago group with Judge Henry Horner, the governorship nominee, and about the time their train pulled into the Union station the Republican leaders in the assembly began to quiet down and agreed to a recess until tomorrow morning, with an understanding that work will be resumed next week in an effort to reach a sine die adjournment by Friday at the latest.

Eyes on Democratic Convention.

In the house and the senate this morning the forms of legislative work were carried on, but the overtone in both chambers was discussion of the state-wide gathering of Democrats tomorrow.

Between 2,500 and 3,000 from Chicago are expected to arrive by special trains in Springfield about noon tomorrow.

Among the delegates will be 500 women, members of the Cook county branch of the Illinois Women's Democratic club, of which Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, national committeewoman, is president. They will have their own special train on the Chicago and Alton.

Political observers believe that with complete harmony prevailing a platform can be adopted and the convention adjourned in three hours. Promises have been made that this platform will have no straddles or evasions on pertinent issues. The party is expected to fire a broadside at prohibition, condemn government intrusion into private business and the growth of bureaucracy in general, and recommend greater economy in tax spending.

Anti-Dry Plank Prepared.

A tentative anti-prohibition plank already has been prepared. It demands that the 18th amendment be repealed and liquor control returned to the states.

It has been hinted that the present prohibition situation will be linked up with high taxes, high government costs and unemployment, and designated as one of the factors in the depression.

Other planks, it is expected, will call for the abolishment of useless commissions and bureaus and revisions of the banking and securities laws to obtain greater protection for depositors and investors.

The Republicans also will go through the formality of a state convention here tomorrow, but it has been announced that nothing will be done except form a temporary organization and adjourn until some time in May. There will be no large gathering of Republican delegates.

"Harmony Among Democrats."

Mayor Cermak and other early arrivals among the Democrats brought the word that if there was ever a love feast in the party in Illinois, it the convention keynoter, Bruce A. Campbell, defeated candidate for the governorship nomination, to exemplify this. And Michael L. Igoe, who was an even more serious contender against Judge Horner in the primary, is slated to be chairman of the resolutions or platform committee.

Further than that, Igoe, who has been resting for a week at Excelsior Springs, is not out of the fold in even the slightest degree, although forecasts of post-primary bitterness had made him an exile and an outcast.

It was understood that Igoe will be named as one of the delegates at large to the national convention to be selected at tomorrow's meeting. There has been no hint that he will be returned to his present honor as national committeeman.

And while the early signs of Democratic harmony were developing there were antithetical symptoms in the Republican ranks. It was said that Len Small, who won the nomination with a minority support, had reached Springfield for some "conferences," but leaders in the Emmerson group and other important factions asserted they knew of no meetings of that character.

Meaningless Action in Senate.

Early indications of these political trends were seen in the senate session. A resolution offered by Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic nominee for state's attorney of Cook county, requiring a 10 per cent cut in state expenditures, was assailed by the Republican majority under the leadership of Senator Richard J. Barr, now a confessed supporter of Small, and the machine put through an amendment, meaningless to many, that the cut be extended to the Democratic administrations of Chicago and Cook county. As a matter of legislation, it was said, the whole thing didn't mean anything, but it occupied more than an hour of the time.

Another hour was taken up by debate, which resulted in a 17 to 12 defeat—26 votes being required for passage—of the Michel bill to cut the salaries of judges of the Supreme court from $15,000 to $12,000.

Without serious debate, Senator Barr advanced to third reading the bills of another $20,000,000 for emergency relief. These measures have not yet been considered by the house.

The senate, without debate, concurred in the joint resolution already passed by the house for approval of the resolution of the "lame duck" amendment to the federal constitution. This completes the process so far as Illinois' adoption of the amendment is concerned.

DEBT OMISSION NOT A DEFINITE POLICY—BRITAIN

Neglect in Budget Laid to Uncertainty.

LONDON, April 21.—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, explained today that the uncertainty over war debts and reparations caused their omission from the new British budget and that it was "not a notice of a definite policy."

The chancellor declared:

"In the uncertainty that must exist at the present as to the ultimate fate of these two features of the international situation, I had to make some sort of assumption in presenting my statement, and the best assumption was to leave everything out of the calculations altogether.

Debts to Be Taken Up Later.

"That was not a notice of a definite policy or a notice that we expected any particular solution. It was simply a notice that, as we did not know what was going to happen, we left both sides out of the account in order to deal with them when certainty came to us later on."

On introducing the budget Tuesday the chancellor had said:

"I am including in the budget no receipts from reparations and no outgoings for war debts. The two are self-balancing. After the Lausanne conference I shall submit whatever proposals may be necessary to give effect to the measures we agree upon."

His explanation followed an appeal for a great American-British effort "to revalue commodities to bring gold up to the level of 1928" to restore world business, made by Winston Churchill, who was chancellor of the exchequer when the Conservatives ruled the British government. Both came out in debate on the budget in the house of commons.

Claims France Would Fall In.

Close companionship between Britain and the United States as leaders in the project for a great trade revival, Mr. Churchill said, would bring France, one of the principal holders of gold, and other countries into line.

"This would give the producer of commodities and the producer of raw materials of every kind a reasonable reward for his labor and enable him to buy again the manufacturers of the cities and the workshops of the world," he declared.

"If such a policy were agreed on, France, in spite of her hoards of gold, would have to ask admission to our counsels the next morning, and the three powers, with the others which would go along with them, would give needed leadership to the nations of the world.

"If, however, the United States is so busy with its election that nothing can be done, we can fall back, as the government seems most wisely disposed to do, on the magnificent congregation of sterling communities. We can live by that even if we don't thrive."

WEISS JAILED ON RUM CHARGE.

Louis Weiss, owner of the closed Coffee Dan's café, 114 North Dearborn street, was sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $200 yesterday by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley for prohibition law violation.

BRITISH CABINET MEMBER SITS IN HOUSE ILLEGALLY

Oxford Man Digs Up 225 Year Old Law.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 21.—A learned Oxford professor today dropped a loud explosive bomb from the nation's legal archives into British parliament. He has discovered—and law officers of the crown affirm him—that since 1909 it has been illegal for the president of the board of trade to sit and vote in the house of commons.

The penalty for breach of the law is a fine of $400 for each day he sits in the house. Walter Runciman, present head of the board of trade, therefore is liable to a penalty of about $120,000 for the period of his service—from 1914 to 1916 and since last November. Eleven other presidents since 1909 or their heirs are liable to penalties totaling over $1,200,000, according to the law.

Dates Back 225 Years.

The peculiar situation has arisen out of the passing of the board of trade act in 1909, when Winston Churchill was the board's president. This measure repealed an act of 1826 limiting the salary of the president of the board of trade. It was merely intended to give parliament the power to increase the salary of the president, but it was not realized at the time that by repealing the 1826 act it restored the provisions of another act of 1707. This 225 year old law disqualified holders of certain offices of profit under the crown—including the president of the board of trade—from sitting in the house of commons.

In order to regularize the situation the attorney general will introduce an indemnifying bill in the house of commons tomorrow. It is intended to pass the bill through all its stages there tomorrow and in the house of lords on Monday. In the meantime President Runciman will not attend sessions of the house.

Eight Other Violators.

Presidents of the board since 1909 liable to the penalty include John Burns, Sir Auckland Geddes, who is the present Lord Ashfield; Sir Robert Horne, Stanley Baldwin, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Lord Passfield, the earl of Buxton, and the late William Graham.

FIRE RAZES 1,200 HOUSES IN JAPAN; 4 DIE, 40 INJURED

TOKIO, April 22.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Four persons died today, 40 were injured and 6,000 were left homeless in a fire that wiped out the greater part of Omiya, a town in the prefecture of Shizuoka, 75 miles southwest of Tokio. The flames destroyed 1,300 houses. The fire started last night in a cafe and burned most of the night. It destroyed the city hall, police headquarters, banks, hospital, and principal business buildings. Omiya's population is 20,000.

NEW CHIEF SEEKS TO MOVE CICERO POLICE STATION

One of the principal steps proposed in the reorganization of the Cicero police under their new chief, John L. Sullivan, is the moving of police headquarters from the old, cramped city hall to the new Cicero stadium at 19th street and 52d avenue.

State Senator Richey Graham, the new boss of the suburb since the election of Democratic officials last week, said that he was taking the matter up with Town President Joseph Cerny and members of the council. The stadium, he pointed out, belongs to the municipality and has ample space for the police and also for gymnasium facilities for the town's youth. By abandoning the old structure, Mr. Graham asserted, important economies could be effected.

Chief Sullivan wishes to reorganize his force of seventy-one men along lines followed in the Chicago police department, to install a teletype and a special detail to handle automobile law violations. He has issued an order that 150 "I Gotta Drag" stars issued by the former police régime be turned in. Also, he has insisted that his men be courteous at all times. Capt. Arthur Wentzel, his first assistant, declared that all the gambling halls in Cicero were closed and would stay closed permanently.

PARLOR PINK REDS MAKE MY JOB HARD, DOAK TELLS D. A. R.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Secretary Doak today scored the Red flag "parlor pinks" in an address before the Daughters of the American Revolution.

He told the delegates it would be far easier for him to deal with the alien propagandists "if it were not for the American 'parlor pinks,' organizations of sentimentalists and notoriety seekers."

Every time an alien is arrested, Doak, said, "there springs to his defense an American association which holds that in this country any man, alien or native, has the right to advocate destruction of our institutions, a destruction which carries with it, almost of necessity, the assassination of our public officials."

The congress voted a score of resolutions urging an increased national defense and a tighter rein on immigration and naturalization.

One measure would give the President power, in time of an unemployment, to eject all aliens not gainfully employed.

DECORATOR BURNED IN BLAST.

Harry Willerton, 28 years old, 5938 Loomis boulevard, a decorator, was severely burned yesterday when a spark generated by an electrically driven floor scraper in a flat at 7027 Jeffery avenue caused an open can of varnish to explode.

VICTIM ACCUSES KIDNAP SUSPECT; PARTNER HUNTED

Taylorville, Ill., April 21.—Patrick Thomas, arrested in Virden today as one of the kidnapers of Grover Hoover last night, was identified by Hoover today. He was placed in the Springfield jail. It is thought he has revealed the identity of his partner.

Hoover, prominent Taylorville citizen and brother of Ern Hoover, president of the First Trust and Savings bank, was kidnaped from his home last night. He was dressed in his pajamas when a knock came at his door.

He was ordered into a car, at the point of a gun, and taken to the city limits, where he was told to turn over his diamond rings. "I have no rings," he told them; "you have the wrong man." He was struck over the head with the butt of a revolver and rolled out of the car.

CONVICTED GEM THIEF BELIEVED SEIZED IN BERLIN

Authorities in Berlin yesterday took into custody a man who, they believe, is Ernest Levy, convicted in Chicago two months ago of participating in a $100,000 jewel theft in the Glencoe home of Lawrence Stern, broker.

After being found guilty, Levy and two companions requested a new trial. This motion was decided against them on Feb. 26. Levy, however, failed to appear and his bonds of $10,000 were ordered forfeited. Each of the three thieves was given a sentence of one to ten years.

The Chicago police notified the German authorities that Levy, also known as Ernst Heinen Levi, might go to Germany, his native country. The man arrested in Berlin was living in a fashionable hotel and had a quantity of precious stones in his possession. He asserted, however, that he was an English gem merchant.

STIMSON DINNER HOST AT VILLA ON SWISS LAKE

Tells Disarm Envoys to Get Down to Business.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, April 21.—Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and Secretary of State Stimson today had Premier Tardieu of France on the spot, where, it is assumed, their combined efforts put him. But the success of their maneuvers at the disarmament conference is yet to be recorded, because the hard shelled French premier, finding that no concessions were being made to him, made none that is visible to the naked eye at this moment.

That Tardieu came to Geneva to learn what the British might concede him on French security ambitions is one explanation of his dash from Paris. Another is that MacDonald yesterday made pointed reference to the existence of a real American plan, or a Stimson plan, expanding the ideas presented in the American debut and going much farther than Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson's "suggestion" to ban aggressive weapons of war, and that Tardieu came to have a look.

Stimson Host at Villa.

There is some truth in these, it is felt. Anyway, he came. Tonight Stimson, in his lake villa, climaxed a day of conversations with a dinner for MacDonald, Tardieu, Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister; Joseph Paul-Boncour, French league of nations delegate; Lord Londonderry, British delegate; Ambassador Gibson, and Senator Claude A. Swanson and Norman H. Davis, American disarmament delegates. Chancellor Bruening of Germany was unable to attend. He had a previous engagement.

Stimson pointed out to his guests how the conference is languishing, strangled by procedure. He urged every one to get down to business and discuss the real facts of the conference, which have yet to be grazed.

Tardieu, it is understood, today asked again point blank if America is ready to do anything on the French security demands, and was told "No."

Tardieu, it leaked out, told Stimson that there is little hope for the American plan. Members of the French delegation were frank today to say that they consider it "impudent," and probably a maneuver worked up with the English, to force them to accept the Gibson suggestion.

Makes a Sly Hint.

Tardieu told Stimson that if aggressive weapons are banned, capital ships and aircraft carriers ought to be banned, too. The Japanese, he reminded the secretary of state, are only too anxious to open up the Washington and London naval treaties.

MacDonald attended the conference today for the first time. He heard the French object to England's mild resolution which would commit the conference merely to faith in the theory of qualitative disarmament without prejudice against the French thesis. Nicholas Titulesco, the Rumanian, offered the only real obstacle to this plan.

12 States Sign Resolution.

He submitted a resolution, signed by twelve states, which was designed to send the whole matter into subcommissions; in other words, to bury it.

The signatories to this were Bolivia, Uruguay, Cuba, Colombia, Chile, Guatemala, Peru, Rumania, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Persia.

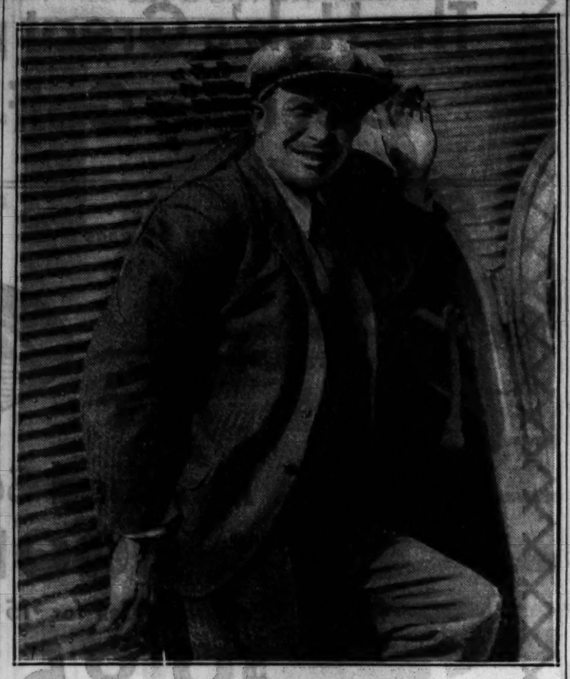
Behind the British resolution which Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, said was not directed against the French, were Britain, Italy, Germany, the United States, Russia, Sweden, Norway, Holland, Portugal, Switzerland, China, and the British dominions.

Paul-Boncour then cut loose on the British resolution and the American plan. Moreover, he said, the states which have agreed on the abolition of aggressive weapons are in a position of superiority, anyway, and realize that these weapons are expensive.

Gibson defended his so-called plan for banning aggressive weapons, saying that in reality it is only the summary of suggestions of other delegations.

"The American government has no intention of excluding other means or arrangements between states of a given region which desire to reinforce their security," he said.

Prepares for Antarctic Flight



Bernt Balchen, trans-Atlantic flyer, arrives at the city airport on his way to the Pacific coast to supervise the construction of the airplane which he will pilot when he and Lincoln Ellsworth make flight over the south pole.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Tells of Plans

Bernt Balchen, who will pilot a plane for Lincoln Ellsworth, veteran explorer, to chart the ice mountains at the south pole next year, changed planes at Chicago airport yesterday en route to Los Angeles to collaborate in the designing of a special plane for antarctic flight. The expedition is sponsored by the American Geographical society.

Balchen arrived from New York at 3 p. m. on a United Air Lines plane, and left for Los Angeles on another United plane one hour later. He will assist Jack Northrup, designer of the Lockheed and Northrup cantilever wing monoplanes, in planning the plane for the contemplated nonstop antarctic flight of between 3,500 and 4,500 miles.

"The plane will be a low wing, all metal monoplane, powered by a single motor of about 600 horsepower," Balchen said. "It will cruise at about 175 miles an hour and carry enough fuel for at least 3,500 miles. The plane will be entirely new in design." Balchen was pilot on the trans-Atlantic and antarctic flights of Admiral Byrd.

FRANCE READY TO DROP GERMAN REPARATIONS IF—

U.S. Could See Way Clear to Cancel Debts.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 21.—A new formula for the simultaneous solution of debts and the security problem, bearing the earmarks of being an officially inspired "ballon d'essai" [as a feeler], was suggested today by the leading organ of information on the operations of the Paris bourse.

Unless France can induce Germany to voluntarily continue reparation payments on a reduced scale with special facilities for payments in kind she will relinquish reparations, according to the new formula. This would be done as a spontaneous gesture calculated to impress public opinion in America, thus paving the way for general repudiation of debts.

Customs Union Wanted.

As direct compensation, Germany and Italy—the two European powers which are the strongest advocates of wiping the slate clean—would yield their opposition to the French dream of organizing a Danubian customs union under her wing.

The tentative European understanding on reparations thus effected then would be tied up in a series of complicated negotiations with the disarmament question. France would offer this concession, together with naval concessions, enabling her to reach an agreement with Italy against the acceptance by Americans and British in principle of some form of a security pact resembling more or less closely the French plan at Geneva.

Connection Is Obvious.

Officially, there is no knowledge of this or any other formula embracing debts and disarmament, but the connection between the two now seems obvious to the French, whereas they formerly refused to see it in this way. It is also admitted that debts are an integral part of the negotiations at Geneva now. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's evident anxiety to prevent the conference from flopping is seen as good bait with which to lure him into debt discussions.

France now is resigned to the idea of dropping the plan to obtain definite commitments on the subject until after the presidential elections in the United States, but she wants to maneuver America into accepting the responsibility of hatching a compromise which the Lausanne conference on reparations would ratify.

Senator Waterman, Colo., Won't Seek Re-election

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Senator Waterman [Rep., Col.], said today he had decided against running for reelection. "After considering the general effects of a senatorial campaign," he told newspapermen, "I feel clearly that I should not make the race for the senate in the coming election." Senator Waterman has not been in the best of health for some time.

JOBLESS ACTORS POLISH ACTS FOR MINSTREL SHOW

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Feet that haven't tapped the boards in many a month and voices that have grown a little husky since they sang in tent shows and burlesque houses years back, are being heard in daily rehearsals in the Majestic theater. There the unemployed men from Chicago shelters, under the auspices of the Clearing House for Unemployed Homeless Men, will present "The Breadline Frolics," a minstrel show, opening Monday night.

It's a good show, "even if a lot of the boys are amateurs and even if there is a lot of professional jealousy," the professionals in the cast admit.

And if "Little Joey," a Negro boy who dances, does show the splits in the seams of his coat when he flings his arms about, he is blissfully unconscious of it. A broad grin transfigures Joey's face.

Old Timers Do Their Stuff.

As the veteran trouper, J. Hank Phelps, 60 years old, known as "Arkansas" or "Stammerin' Zeke," comes back to the wings after his barn dance with another old timer, Eddie Smith, Hank breathes heavily.

"I'm a-gittin' old," he says sadly. "Been restin' too long. When I led the male chorus in Elsie Janis' 'Fair Co-ed' 20 years ago, though, you couldn't get me tired. Elsie was an angel. O, I've played big time, all right. Played in this theater before. But women's been my weakness and undoing."

The boys howl and slap Hank on the back. "What about that widow who wants you to marry her, Hank?" they ask.

"Hank was second end in Honeyboy Evans' minstrels," says Scotty Lawson. All the boys like to see the old timers get their due.

"I play the part of a bum in a burlesque skit, though you can't tell it until I get my make-up on," explains Marshall Gluckman, who says his professional name is "Ike, the Kike." "I'm a rodeo clown, really, and do the walk-around, too. I was born on a lot. My parents were in the carnival business. I played before Queen Marie once."

His Career Began at Age of 3.

With Ike in the skit are Win "Noodles" Goodwin, who started in tent shows when he was 3 years old and has been in four wheels or burlesque circuits as a clown since then, and a 23 year old youth, Henry E. Mack. Mack, who has a B. A. degree from the University of North Carolina, played the juvenile with the Carolina Playmakers.

"There's considerable talent here for such a heterogeneous assortment of nondescripts as we are," said Henry.

"Henry ain't so bad for a college boy," said Noodles. "He's too fast on the pick-up, though. It takes a professional to do that."

Hal Reid, a trouper, sings "The Devil Song," the music of which was written by the show's pianist, Eddie Milbrath. Eddie is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin school of music. Hal and a shelter fireman wrote the words.

Maj. W. C. Bechtold of the clearing house group is in charge and F. B. Tate, veteran minstrel player, is director.

HEIRLOOM CRADLE OF STUDEBAKERS SOLD ON $15 BID

A small mahogany cradle, an heirloom in the George Studebaker family, went on the auction block yesterday, the second day of the sale of treasures from the Studebaker art and antique collection. The articles were brought from Tippecanoe place, South Band, to the Chicago Book and Art Auctions, Inc., in the Fine Arts building.

The cradle, one of more than a hundred objects in the day's sale, was valued at $100, but the highest bidder got it for $15. A three piece girandole originally from the home of Thomas Jefferson, valued at $150, sold for $32. An opaque green glass lamp and shade with handwrought metal filigree, Tiffany make, sold for $8. A $250 cloisonne urn in dragon design and another globe shaped, brought $40 and $62, respectively.

Oil paintings brought as little as $4.50 and $12.50. An oil, "Girl at the Well," by Daniel Kotz, valued at $125, went for $14. An $800 chime clock brought $100, and a mahogany American colonial sideboard was sold to the only bidder, who paid $2.

The sale will end today with the auction of silver, candelabra, porcelain, pottery, and figurines.

GLENN CONFERS WITH HOOVER ON WORLD'S FAIR

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois conferred with President Hoover at the White House today on a federal participation in the 1933 World's Fair at Chicago.

Senator Glenn said progress on the exposition appeared satisfactory, adding that a million dollar appropriation for federal participation had been approved by both senate and house and was before a conference committee to adjust differences.

The Illinois senator said he had not discussed the fight against the advancement of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The Wilkerson nomination will come before the senate judiciary committee next Monday.

5,000 ACRES IN GARDENS READY TO AID JOBLESS

More than 5,000 acres of vacant land in the metropolitan area of Chicago and suburbs had been made available yesterday for the county-wide campaign of gardens to supply work and subsistence for the unemployed.

Frank D. Loomis, secretary of the Cook County Joint Emergency Relief fund reported that 3,000 acres of tillable land in the forest preserves had been offered the special county committee on gardens for the needy. The land is in 39 parcels ranging from 15 to 300 acres each and extends from the Des Plaines river preserves south and east to Chicago Heights.

Charles Sauers, superintendent of the forest preserves, said that the land had been selected for its fitness for gardens, and that the preserve commissioners would also aid in supervising preparation of the land if necessary.

The balance of the land made available yesterday consisted of vacant lots, idle blocks, and parts of subdivisions whose owners had volunteered their use free of charge. Additional offers of aid in supervising the campaign organization were also reported by Mr. Loomis.

Son Born to Elmer Clifton, Motion Picture Director

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—An eight pound boy was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clifton, who are prominent in the screen colony. Clifton is a director and his wife, the former Helen Kiely, was of the New York stage.

EMMERSON ASKS EXTRADITION OF RACKET SUSPECTS

Gov. Emmerson yesterday signed papers asking the extradition from St. Louis to Chicago of John Richards and Alexander Scheftal, who are alleged to have operated a fake cablegram and telegram racket by which wealthy men were swindled.

Miss Mary Northwood, secretary to Chauncey McCormick, was a victim of the fake cablegram swindle on March 17. A message purporting to come from Mr. McCormick, who was in the West Indies, instructed her to pay $6,000 to a Mr. Cunningham for a rare rug. She did so and found the rug was worth about $5. The secretary of Gordon P. Kelly, head of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company, was another victim.

THREE CHILDREN LOSE LIVES IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Three Chicago children lost their lives yesterday in automobile accidents. These deaths with that of one adult raised the 1932 Cook county toll to 329. The victims:

Robert Aeskad, 14 years old, 9408 Vanderpoel avenue. Killed when he was thrown from an automobile and his neck broken as the car collided with another machine and turned over. The accident occurred on Longwood drive between 100th and 101st streets. The boy was riding in the car of Arnold Phillips, 9215 South Damen avenue. Phillips attempted to pass another machine driven by Walter Morris, 9732 Vanderpoel avenue, when the two autos crashed.

Mary Decerson, 14 years old, 5725 Irving Park boulevard. Killed when she was struck by an automobile at Milwaukee and Sunnyside avenues. Maurice Fisher, 33 years old, 2725 Hirsch street, driver of the car, was held pending an investigation by the new police accident bureau.

Robert Hogan, 7 years old, 8615 South Kilpatrick avenue. Killed when he was run down at 63d street and Knox avenue. The driver was Frank Skubel, 7728 West 62d street.

Emanuel Alamis, 35 years old, 1821 West Lake street. Died at the county hospital from hurts sustained Wednesday when he was struck by the car of a hit and run motorist at Jackson boulevard and South Racine avenue.

Franklin Whitworth, 25 years old, 648 East 52d street, a truck driver, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Emmons Riddle, 21 years old, University of Chicago senior, fatally hurt April 14. Witnesses said that Whitworth failed to stop at Woodlawn avenue, a through street, while driving in 56th street. Riddle, riding a motorcycle, crashed into the truck.

JEWELER ENDS LIFE WITH POISON.

Hermann Zeits, 65 years old, committed suicide yesterday by taking poison in his jewelry store at 3338 Lincoln avenue. The police said he was despondent over business matters.

NORFOLK PASTOR IN LINDY SEARCH FLIES TO N. Y.

Colonel Returns After an Automobile Trip.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The Rev. H. Dobson Peacock of the three Norfolk men who believe they have established contact with the kidnapers of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's baby son landed from a plane at Newark airport tonight and hurried to New York.

Whether his visit was connected with negotiations for the return of the baby who was stolen March 1 from his parents' home near Hopewell, N. J., was not revealed. The clergyman's associate, John H. Curtis, a Norfolk boat builder, has been absent from his home since Monday.

Lindy Returns from Trip.

Mr. Peacock traveled under the name of Pearson and described himself to interviewers as a "Norfolk business man." He told a fellow passenger in the plane in which he flew from Washington to Newark that he intended to remain in New York overnight.

Col. Lindbergh who had left Hopewell early in the day returned home about 11 o'clock tonight. It was reported he had gone to some point in Connecticut near Bridgeport. But this report could not be verified. He returned alone, driving his own car.

Torn Picture Clew.

The police of New Rochelle revealed that several days ago they had sent what they regarded as a promising clew to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of New Jersey state police. The clew consisted of a set of four torn photographer's proofs of photographs of a child resembling the missing Charles Augustus Jr. They were found on the floor of Walter's restaurant, where they were dropped by a man and a woman who quarreled while they were in the place.

No statement was made regarding the progress of efforts to recover the kidnaped baby through private negotiation. Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" who paid out $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money without getting the baby back, was said to be continuing his efforts to reopen negotiations with the kidnapers. He conferred with Col. Henry Breckinridge, the flyer's attorney.

COOK BEATEN AND ROBBED.

John Lordota, 1034 South 48th court, Cicero, was found unconscious in the street at Cuyler avenue and 22d street in Berwyn early yesterday. After he had been revived at the Berwyn hospital Lordota, a cook in the Morrison hotel, told Berwyn police that he had been slugged by three bandits who robbed him of $57.

LIFE SAVERS MARRY

MR. AND MRS. WALLACE ALSTRIN.

HOUSE GROUP UPHOLDS DISNEY'S RIGHT TO SEAT

Washington, D. C., April 21.—(AP)—A report holding that Representative Disney [Dem., Okla.], is entitled to retain his seat in congress was completed today by a house elections committee.

Approved by eight of the nine committee members, the report declined to order a recount of the ballots in the first Oklahoma district election which resulted in the defeat of Charles O'Connor, Republican incumbent.

"The record in this case," the report says, "is barren of any competent proof tending to show or establish fraud, mistake or error in either the counting of the ballots cast or the official returns of the vote in the election."

Daughter of Alderman

Miss Dorothy Carolyn Nelson, daughter of Ald. Oscar Nelson, and Wallace Leonard Alstrin of 1006 Massasoit avenue were married last evening in Trinity Lutheran church, Seminary and Barry avenues. On Sept. 13 last year Miss Nelson and Mr. Alstrin, in Ald. Nelson's large power boat, risked their lives to go to the rescue of six persons whose small boat had been overturned by a severe squall on Fox lake. They pulled two into their boat and aided in the saving of the others.

CÆSAR IS LINKED TO MUSSOLINI ON ROME'S BIRTHDAY

First Dictator of Empire Honored by Present One

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 21.—Premier Benito Mussolini, Italy's present dictator, today participated in the dedication of a statue of his predecessor, Julius Caesar, first dictator of the Roman empire.

BENITO MUSSOLINI

The statue, intended as a monument to dictatorship government, will stand in Julius Caesar forum in the same place where an equestrian statue of Caesar stood during the days of the Roman empire.

It was placed there as a result of special orders by Mussolini, who keeps a small bust of Caesar on his office desk. It was recalled today that Caesar forum, which has been excavated and remodeled by the Fascists, cost Caesar 150,000 sesesteri or about $250,000. It was noted for ruins of wine taverns.

Fascist Labor Day.

The dedication of this statue was part of the ceremonies held throughout Italy today in observance of Fascist Labor day and the 2,685th anniversary of the founding of Rome.

In all Italian cities the annual Fascist "leva" or graduation ceremony for the youth of the nation took place. All boys at the age of eight are now obliged to join the "balilla" organization. About 110,000 boys who were born in 1918 today advanced from the balilla to the grade of "advanced guards," while 101,000 advance guards, having attained the age of 18, moved to the category of "combat Fascists." About 200,000 of this category in turn were received into the ranks of the Fascist party and the Black Shirt militia reserve.

Take Oath to Fascism.

In mystical rites which took place in the Piazza del Popolo in Rome in the presence of Mussolini, a small balilla boy stepped out of the ranks and received a white bandoleer from an advance guard. A combat Fascist then gave the advance guard a red and yellow neckerchief, the insignia of that category, while a militiaman handed the combat Fascist a rifle and a party membership card.

All raised their arms and took the following oath: "I swear to execute without discussion the orders of Il duce and to serve with all my strength and if necessary at the cost of my life the cause of the Fascist revolution."

4 HARVARD STUDENTS IN JAIL AFTER MOBS BATTLE WITH POLICE

Cambridge, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—Four students were arrested and considerable property damage was reported tonight after a wild demonstration in which 3,000 Harvard university undergraduates participated.

During the disturbance the students rushed into a theater and three Radcliffe college dormitories rang in a false alarm of fire from the Harvard Lampoon building, overturned an automobile in Harvard square, and finally stormed a police station in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue their comrades.

Repused by police, they sent a shower of stones through two windows in the police station, then gradually dispersed. While the demonstration was at its height three tear gas bombs were hurled into the student ranks by police.

The disorder, the second within a week by Harvard students, was started by a group of freshmen in the yard.

ACTS TO PREVENT POLICE AUCTION OF UNSAFE AUTOS

Commissioner of Police Allman yesterday started an inquiry into the police auction of unclaimed automobiles with a view to eliminating from the sale any cars which police mechanics decide are unsafe to return to traffic. If he has the authority the commissioner said he will have worn out automobiles taken apart and auction off the parts, preventing any cars being used that might later prove to be a menace on the streets. Complaints had been made to the commissioner that some of the cars sold at the auctions were in such condition that they should have been junked.

FRANKIE POPE OF WEST SIDE FREED BY JUDGE

"West Side" Frankie Pope, former convict and narcotic peddler, was freed by Municipal Judge James F. Fardy yesterday when police were unable to prove that he was the promoter of the cock fights which they raided at 777 West Adams street.

One of the three red fighting cocks which were seized as evidence halted the hearing for a moment when he wriggled free from his holder and made a vicious dash at Judge Fardy's nose. Capt. John Stege pinned the bird to the bench with his hand before any damage was done.

Patrolman Roger L. Powers testified that he paid admission to the hall and watched two of the main events, in which three of the four cocks participating were killed, before the raiding party arrived. John Casey, 32 South Halsted street, to whom Powers paid his money, was fined $100.

Eleven male spectators and five women who were seized in the raid were freed.

MANY DUMMIES IN "SHORT" LIST GIVEN TO SENATE

Few Disclosures Expected by Wall Street.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Although the details of the large short accounts as furnished in Washington, D. C., by a senate committee were read with eager interest in Wall street, the consensus appeared to be that no important contribution had been made to existing knowledge on the subject of short selling.

Aside from the identification of some of the large scale operators for the decline, the information thus far adduced by the committee contains no sensations, according to the view expressed in brokerage circles.

There has been a great deal of curiosity in Wall street as to the size of individual short accounts, but from a practical market viewpoint the aggregate short interest in various stocks is of more interest to the financial community. This information is furnished monthly by the New York Stock exchange and it will not be known until after May 1 whether the total short position is being increased in April. The impression among brokers is that some increase will be shown unless the short interest is reduced between now and the end of the month.

Not Easily Identified.

As had been expected in Wall street, the list of the "big bears" given out in Washington today contains many names not easily identified. Presumably, the list contains a considerable number of "dummy accounts" and even the brokers through whom these accounts are handled will find it difficult, in some cases, to learn who the actual traders are, should the committee decide to press the inquiry further. Some of the largest short accounts are carried in the names of companies never before heard of in Wall street and efforts today to identify the moving spirits in these enterprises were unsuccessful.

The American Brush company, which appears as one of the largest short sellers, was reported to be a trading agency of Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International corporation, but this could not be confirmed. Mr. Brush was in Washington today and no information could be obtained at his office. His name appears among the large individual short sellers in the list given out in Washington.

Brush Usually "Long."

Mr. Brush, who, with Percy A. Rockefeller, was subpœnaed by the senate committee, has never made any effort to conceal his position in the market, according to persons who knew him. His market interests have always been large, but he is known to have been committed to the advance over long periods and that his operations have been more extensive on that side of the market than on the short side. It was pointed out today also that his apparent short position at various times may really have represented a hedge against long accounts. Wall street is looking forward with interest to his testimony before the senate committee tomorrow.

Mr. Brush has large financial interests and he is a director in many corporations. At one time he was on sixty or more directorates. He has been associated with Mr. Rockefeller in various enterprises, which probably explains the fact that they were called to Washington together.

Percy Rockefeller is the son of the late William G. Rockefeller and is a nephew of John D. Rockefeller. He is a director of fifty or more companies. He is a director of the American International corporation. Both of them are fellow directors in many other enterprises.

Were Often "Wrong."

Although they are credited with excellent market judgment, they have often been "wrong," according to brokers. No evidence has been produced thus far to indicate that Mr. Rockefeller is short of the market at this time. It is expected, however, that the senate committee will attempt to learn from him tomorrow what his present market position is, if any.

A. W. Cutten of Chicago, who is listed by the senate committee as having been short 2,000 shares of Du Pont, 2,000 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph and 2,000 shares of United States Steel common, has been for many years a prominent operator, not only in the security markets, but in commodities as well. He was reported some months ago to have been conducting a huge bull campaign in wheat. Before the collapse of the stock market in the autumn of 1929, and even after that time, he was heavily interested in stocks.

Bernard E. Smith, whose short position is shown to have been extensive, is a member of the stock exchange and makes his headquarters at the offices of W. E. Hutton & Co. He is reputed to have made a large fortune on both sides of the market, but during the last year or so he has been regarded as one of the most active members of the bear party.

Moffett Declines Comment.

George M. Moffett, who was listed as having been short of 10,700 shares of several issues, is president of the Corn Products Refining company and a director in the B. F. Goodrich company, Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, the Chase National bank, Fox Film, and several other large corporations. Mr. Moffett declined to comment on his short position.

Individual traders holding memberships in the New York Stock exchange accounted for some of the largest short blocks. W. S. Crandell, who was credited with having been short of 10,300 shares of General Motors, has been a trader on the floor of the exchange since 1910.

In some instances, the person whose name was given as the short seller merely represented other traders. Ludwig Bendix, for example, was listed as having been short 4,900 shares of stock. Mr. Bendix is the head of a private banking firm at 50 Broad street. It was said at this office that the committments were those of Mr. Bendix's clients.

Many Are "Dummies."

Brokers pointed out today that the published list purporting to show the short position as of April 8 might prove to be misleading, in many instances. In all probability, they said, many of the firms and individuals listed were acting for the account of others.

The stock market was more or less indifferent today to the disclosures in Washington. Substantial gains were made in all sections of the stock exchange list and these may have been due in a measure to the short covering or to buying by traders and investors who were impressed with the apparent size of the short interest in various issues. Trading was slow, however. The combined averages of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, based upon fifty stocks, showed a net gain of $2.12, the sharpest increase since March 5.

The Travelers bank, which is listed as being short of 16 stocks, including 35,225 shares of General Motors, is the Paris correspondent of E. F. Hutton & Co., members of the New York Stock exchange. The manager of the bank is B. C. Neidecker, whose name is identical to that of a man revealed as being short of more than 13,000 shares.

Engaged to Du Pont

Miss Jane Holcomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wainwright Holcomb of Waterbury, Conn., whose engagement to Pierre S. du Pont III. of Wilmington, Del., has been announced. Mr. du Pont is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lammont du Pont and a member of the class of '33 at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

lapses of the last three years. Percy Rockefeller, popularly supposed to be one of the big bears, and Matthew Brush are among the New York men who have been subpœnaed to testify either tomorrow or Saturday.

Admits Pegging Bond Prices.

Another highlight of today's session was an admission by Mr. Whitney that his firm, at the direction of J. P. Morgan & Co., had helped to peg the price of a 1930 issue of German reparation bonds while a big syndicate of 1,011 participants had unloaded them on the public. Mr. Whitney said his firm had offered to buy the bonds if they dropped below the price at which they were offered by the syndicate. Of the issue of $98,000,000 his firm purchased $9,200,000 worth, he said.

Today's session, which ran on until after dusk ended on a discordant note with Chairman Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.] of the committee riding rough shod over the witness Whitney. In conclusion Senator Norbeck asserted that the stock exchange president had not been frank with the committee and had not aided it to the best of his ability. The session ended with the chairman refusing to remain while Whitney presented the stock exchange's side of the short selling controversy to the committee. As the committe adjourned, Mr. Whitney was reading records and testimony to the committee reporter, and Chairman Norbeck was rushed off to keep a radio date.

Brokers to Solve Identities.

The decision to make public the names of the biggest shorts came at the conclusion of the morning session. It was more than an hour later, however, before William A. Gray, chief counsel for the committee, a specialist in criminal practice, finally gave out the names of a selected list of 300 of what were termed the larger and more prominent accounts.

Members of the committee said that they would depend upon the twenty-six brokers who have been subpœnaed as witnesses to identify the numerous dummy names appearing upon the list of 34,000 shorts handed the committee by Mr. Whitney. A quick glance at the list disclosed no cabinet member or prominent man in either of the large political parties as an open bear. Whether further investigation will bring out prominent names remains to be seen.

The list of short sellers was featured largely by the absence of identification marks which would warrant the short selling committee in claiming it had scored a smashing victory in its campaign to show up the "bears" who have been charged with contributing or causing the depression. In many cases sales were made apparently through pools or syndicates. In others the names seemed obviously false.

Only Four Short 30,000 Shares.

Of the entire group made public only four were short more than 30,000 shares of stock. Only nine additional speculators had accounts above 15,000 shares and less than two score were short more than 10,000 stocks. Several foreign sounding names appeared among the larger operators. These included the Creva Compania, 12,600 shares; N. P. de Mauriac, 9,200 shares; the Marquis de San Miguel, 3,000 shares; the Hollandsche bank, 9,675 shares, and the Travelers' bank, 40,685 shares.

The Crescent Operating company with 42,521 shares headed the list of short accounts. Other large ones included that of T. M. Howell, described as a widely known New York bear operator; the Broseso Corp., 37,025 shares; B. E. Smith and Bernard E. Smith, probably same person, 36,400 shares; W. E. Hatton & Co., brokerage firm, 31,800 shares; B. C. Neidecker, 16,400 shares, and the Attina Corp., 20,400 shares.

Among the other large accounts were H. L. Dillon of the brokerage firm of H. L. Dillon & Co.; the O. E. Doering syndicate, 16,400 shares; Miss Elizabeth Hunger, 15,900 shares; Louis Kaiser & Co., 17,400 shares; S. E. Shahnoon, 15,300 shares; E. A. Crawford & Co., 17,301 shares, and N. W. Peters, 14,500 shares.

Cutten Short 6,000 Shares.

Mr. Cutten was short a total of 6,000 shares. His comitments consisted of 2,000 shares of E. I. du Pont, 2,000 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph, and 2,000 shares of United States Steel.

Another name widely known in New York which appeared on the list was that of Stuyvesant Fish. He was short 1,100 of United States Steel, 900 of American Telephone and Telegraph, and 700 of United States Steel preferred.

Just how extensively French and other foreign operators were selling short on the New York Stock exchange during a time when administration leaders were accusing the bears of artificially smashing securities prices and continuing the depression will not be known pending further investigation. The names which appeared today are expected, however, to furnish ammunition for senate debate.

The flareup between the polite, suave witness and the bluff, dogged Norbeck came after President Whitney had sharply defended the stock exchange from charges of rigging the market, trimming the lambs, and deliberately causing the depression. Mr. Whitney asserted that speculation was the life of the exchange and that without short selling and marginal buying the stock exchange would be so stultified it eventually would have to close. Mr. Norbeck then read a long list of charges against the exchange, and, when the witness disagreed, shouted him down with the assertion that, of course, he would not agree to anything derogatory to the stock exchange.

Admits Pegging Bond Prices.

The story of how the Whitney firm handled the Morgan reparations account was developed in the midst of some rather routine testimony.

"And now, Mr. Whitney," Attorney Gray said sharply, "what about your handling of those German five and a half per cent bonds for J. P. Morgan?"

It grew very quiet in the big hearing room.

Mr. Whitney fished for a packet of papers, as he replied, "Do you wish the whole story?"

"I do," replied Gray firmly.

Mr. Whitney glanced at the memorandum an aid handed him and began his story.

"Back on the 12th of June, 1930, these bonds, a 1930 issue, were offered at 90 by a syndicate of 1,011 participants and they sold that day between 90½ and 91. They continued to sell above the offered price until June 16. And they sold at what they were offered and at ⅛ or ¼ point above the offered price until July 2. On that date the price agreement of the syndicate was lifted. But on that day, and before the notice came out, the bonds were selling from 90 to 90½.

All Bonds Sold.

"The next day they sold between 88⅛ and 91¼. And from that day, gentlemen, to the expiration of the syndicate on July 31 they sold between 88⅛ and 91¼. I assume that all bonds were disposed of since, at the expiration of the syndicate, no bonds were returned to, as they could have been under the terms of the syndicate."

Under question by Mr. Gray, Mr. Whitney then stated that during the time the issue was being floated he personally in his own name had been purchasing these bonds for the J. P Morgan account whenever the price fell to a level below the price of 890 desired by the syndicate. He defended this practice.

Senator Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] interrupted to ask:

"These bonds are down to 85.5 today, aren't they?"

"Yes, but they've been down to 78," replied Whitney, "and I have every reason to believe the 5½s will pay their interest the 1st of next June."

Defends Fixing Price.

Answering Gray's statement that the syndicate fixed prices on the bonds, Mr. Whitney said:

"The purpose of the syndicate was to maintain a price at which, during these days, customers could sell at a price the same or higher. It's a perfectly normal and usual procedure."

After stating that the 98 million bonds were sold, largely to banks in what he, Whitney, regarded as "a prime issue," he was again interrupted, this time by Senator Brookhart [Radical Rep., Ia.].

"And so," Brookhart challenged, "the syndicate considered it had performed its whole duty to the customers if it maintained the market for 18 days in which to get its own money back?"

"If there were ever a question of duty, sir," said Mr. Whitney, "then that duty was certainly done in this transaction."

Gray, by a series of questions, intimated that Mr. Whitney's firm might have indulged some wash sales in the German bond episode.

"Are you intimating," said Whitney, "that I, as president of the New York Stock exchange, executed wash sales?"

"All right," said Gray. "I'll not intimate; I'll ask you."

"And I'll tell you that we most certainly did not."

Quarrel in Committee.

Senator Norbeck's assumption of the rôle of prosecutor was indicated at noon when he emerged from an executive session of the committee and fairly shouted to newspaper men that the investigation of the exchange was to be pursued to the limit.

"It will not be cut off in the middle and it will be pushed to the very end," he said. In a booming voice he added, "We haven't started yet."

His words were evidently precipitated by disagreement in the committee over the extent of the investigation. That the so-called progressive element in the committee had taken charge of the inquiry, or at least had forced the conservative element, hitherto in control, to agree on drastic measures was plainly evident.

Norbeck Asks of "Rigging."

What the committee now has in mind was revealed by Senator Norbeck in his exchanges with Mr. Whitney at the very end of the hearing which lasted until 6:30 p. m. The senator declared that witnesses to all manner of transactions on the exchange would be called and that the investigation would look into charges of washed sales and other illegitimate activities.

Senator Norbeck's anger was first roused when he asked the witness about "rigging" operations on the exchange. Mr. Whitney asked what the senator meant by rigging. "Why every person in this room knows what rigging the market is," the senator declared. "I am not going to explain it to the wisest men on the stock exchange." Scattered applause from an audience which jammedthe committee room greeted this remark.

After another verbal clash the senator said, "You don't grant anything on the street is improper or illegal. We can't convince you. You're hopeless." Applause and laughter met this sally.

Mr. Whitney quietly said, "I don't say nothing illegal is done, but we take action to prevent and punish it." Mr. Whitney asked for proof of anything illegal being done.

"You attend these hearings for a while and we'll give you some proof," said the senator.

"I have," answered Mr. Whitney, who has been the only witness at about four sessions of the investigation.

"You and I don't agree on many things," he continued, "and we don't have to." The senator added that the committee would prove the existence of wash sales from the ticker.

"I'll be glad to have you do it."

U. S. OFFICIALS IN REVOLT AGAINST SENATE PRUNERS

Departments in Panic on 10% Cuts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—With the government omnibus retrenchment bill due to be presented to the house next Wednesday, administration officials were in rebellion today against the economy slashes being effected in governmental appropriations on Capitol hill.

Following closely upon yesterday's letter from Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, protesting against the senate's 10 per cent cuts in supply bills, came an assertion today from a high administration official that should the senate "10 per centers" continue their knife wielding one hundred thousand persons throughout the country will be thrown out of employment.

Cuts Cause Panic.

The administration has advocated retrenchment through the introduction of a blanket economy measure into congress together with a reduction in appropriations. The senate's 10 per cent cuts, however, have caused consternation in the departments and have brought successive protests from Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and Mr. Mills.

The slicing of appropriations by the senate, according to these officials, coupled with the federal pay cut proposal to be included in the blanket economy bill, will reduce the pay of many government workers by far more than had been originally intended.

Today's assertion from a high administration source was regarded by many, however, as a further effort on the part of the White House to insert into the economy bill the President's furlough plan for cutting the pay roll in place of the eleven per cent flat cut plan sponsored by Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] and agreed to by the committee.

McDuffie Plan O. K.'d.

That Mr. McDuffie's eleven per cent plan is to be written into the original bill was definitely assured today when the committee by a vote of 4 to 2 agreed to that course. The President's furlough plan will be offered on the floor as a substitute.

At the close of today's session, only one major item in the omnibus bill remained to be decided. This was the section calling for reorganization of the government departments. The President, in his proposals to the committee, suggested that he be given power to effect the reorganization, but indications are that the committee intends to set down specific moves he is to make in this direction. Mr. McDuffie said tonight that this matter will be settled by the committee tomorrow.

New Slash Approved.

The total saving to be realized through the blanket bill was cut down further by the committee today when it eliminated an item calling for suspension of the department of agriculture's vocational education activities. The section would have saved some $8,500,000 according to the administration's estimate.

The committee substituted a plan under which the funds available for 1933 will not be affected, but which will bring about a gradual reduction in the amount expended for vocational education.

JANITOR KILLS HIS WIFE FOR GOING TO MOVIE

Alexander Marino, 42 years old, 808 South Winchester avenue, father of six children, shot and killed his wife, Ida, 39 years old, in their home yesterday because she had attended a movie the night before. Four of the children, Louis, 23 years old; Sarah, 17; Fred, 11, and Amadeo, 8, saw the slaying. Marino, a janitor, fled after the shooting and is being sought.

When Marino returned home yesterday morning he asked Sarah where her mother had spent the previous evening. Sarah said she had gone to a movie. Mrs. Marino denied it, saying she had visited her sister. An argument followed and Marino ran for his revolver. His wife locked herself in her room and Marino fired five shots through the door, one of them striking her in the head.

The children told the police their mother had attended a movie and could not explain why she had denied it. The other children are Joseph, 14 years old, and Frank, 12.

BUILDING GROUPS UNITE FOR GOOD OF THE INDUSTRY

New Council Reveals Its Program.

BY AL CHASE.

Representatives of Chicago's leading contractors, engineers, architects and others in allied industries met yesterday at the suggestion of George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and formed a Chicago Construction Industries council. The council then set forth this immediate program: development of some new method of financing building; completion of the new city building code; protection for local builders in railroad freight rates; modernization of blighted areas; unification of the building interests in legislation and taxation matters; protection of realty owner and householder in all future building wage adjustments.

GERHARDT MEYNE.

United Front Needed.

Gerhardt F. Meyne, contractor, who was chosen as first chairman of the council, said:

"One reason the building industry was in such a sad plight, even before the crash of 1929, was that it has never been able to bring all of its interests together and present a united front. In the last congress alone more than 300 bills were introduced, each seriously affecting the building industry. Yet it had no common spokesmen in defense.

"In freight rate practice today we find similar conditions. Builders used to protest when they paid $1.15 a cubic yard for sand and gravel. Now they pay not only this price but, in addition, must pay another $1.15 for railroad freight charges."

Need for Better Planning.

Mr. Rossetter, in sponsoring the new council, said: "Building construction locally has almost reached the vanishing point.

'In periods of prosperity little thought has been given to the need or adequacy of buildings at particular locations, the wisdom of the financial plans and other similar questions. Like many other industries building has suffered from the activities of the promoter and exploiter.

"If all the interests allied with the building industry believe that good can be accomplished by working together through a representative council such as has been suggested, the time for creating such an agency is the present."

Following his election as chairman, Mr. Meyne said: "I have selected Clark C. Wright, well known architect, as my vice chairman. Other members of the executive committee will be announced within the coming week. We will operate as a part of the Chicago Association of Commerce, conscious of the fact that the time for disjointed efforts by special industries is past. In the future no branch of industry will succeed unless it has the sympathetic coöperation of all other departments.

Aldermen Ask Increase in Street Car Service

A recommendation that the Chicago Surface Lines increase its transportation facilities in the Gresham district was made to the city council committee on local transportation yesterday by a subcommittee. Representatives of the company informed the aldermen and a delegation of citizens that there are no funds for extensions. A proposed extension of the street car service in 87th street from Vincennes avenue to Western avenue was abandoned because of a lack of funds, the representatives of the company said.

LAUNCH SCHOOL INVENTORY IN ECONOMY MOVE

Plans for an exhaustive inventory of all the physical properties of the Chicago public schools were announced yesterday by Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager for the board of education. Col. Savage expressed the belief that the inventory would result in substantial savings on future purchases.

Col. Savage will go on a tour of warehouses and schools today, making a survey of school supplies. Surplus school equipment will be stored and listed carefully, according to his plan, in order to prevent duplication of purchases. Col. Savage said that henceforth "when a janitor asks for a new broom he will have to show what became of the old one."

An outline of the plans will be submitted to the board of education next Wednesday. The board has appropriated $20,000 for a department of property control. A part of this sum will be spent on the inventory, according to Col. Savage. He said that "an outsider," not an employé of the schools, probably would be employed for the inventory.

Girl Leaps Into Lagoon; Saves Boy from Drowning

Emanuel Schwartz, 3 years old, 3406 West 12th place, fell into the lagoon in Douglas park last evening. The water was only 3 feet deep but Emanuel is only 2 feet tall. Things were going badly with him when Lena Halperin, 14 years old, 1124 South Richmond street, plunged in and dragged him ashore. Rescuer and rescued were warmed and dried in the park shelter before being sent home.

100,000 Germans Get Jobs in First Half of April

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—One hundred thousand German jobless found work in the first half of April, bringing the total of unemployed to 5,934,000, it was announced today. The improvement is purely seasonal, as unemployment among outdoor workers declined 138,000, whereas unemployment in metal, spinning, and other industries increased.

100 Contestants

National Negro Health week is being observed in Evanston this week with a baby contest. More than 100 contestants, ranging from a few weeks to 2 years old, were being examined by physicians last night in the Emerson Street Y. M. C. A. They were divided into three classes; those less than 6 months old, those from six months to 1 year and those between 1 and 2 years old. The healthiest infant in each class will be awarded a silver cup, the presentations to be made Sunday by G. T. Byrnes, Evanston superintendent of recreation.

ROOF OF CORSICAN JUSTICE PALACE CRASHES; 15 DEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASTIA, Corsica, April 21.—Fifteen persons were killed by a heap of crumbling débris and thirty were injured today when the roof of the palace of justice here collapsed on a crowded courtroom.

The court was on the point of declaring a recess. The judge had just arisen to make the announcement when there was a grinding roar and judges, lawyers, witnesses, defendants, and attendants were swallowed in the ruins of the rickety old palace.

Two leading members of the Corsican bar were killed and the prosecutor was badly injured. Those who escaped immediately began rescue work. Firemen and soldiers arrived shortly afterward. By noon five bodies had been recovered. Among the victims were Judge Casanova and Colombani Batonnier, president of the Corsica Bar association.

MOTHER DROWNS THREE CHILDREN; SHE IS RESCUED

Ties Their Hands; Hurls Them Into Cistern.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 21.—[Special.]—A mother hurled three of her children into a cistern, where they were drowned, and then leaped in after them in an attempt at suicide here today. She was rescued but is near death in a hospital.

Mrs. Etta Butts, 39 years old, is the mother. Her victims included Betty Jane, 4 years old; Ross, 7, and Max, 9.

"I am afraid I will die and leave the children behind me," read a note Mrs. Butts had addressed to "My Darling Husband and My Son Jack."

Jack, a fourth child, 19 years of age, was sleeping with his father, Carl Butts, and assisted in the rescue of his mother and in dragging his brothers and sister from the seven feet of water the cistern contained.

At about 4 a. m. the children were awakened by their mother, who tied their hands behind them with strips of cloth, and then marched them to the cistern. Betty, the youngest of the brood, was apparently the last to be thrown into the water, as she was alive when her father, Carl Butts, 41 years old, awoke, and finding his wife and children missing, started an immediate search. The child died, however, after first aid attempts proved futile.

The mother was about to undergo a serious operation from a throat affliction which deprived her of her voice, and for the last several weeks had brooded over her physical condition. When her husband finally located her she was clinging to the sides of the cistern. She was hauled from the water and partly revived by a rescue squad.

Hunt "Employer" After Young Women Are Duped

A tall, dark man, who duped a youth out of $25 and is accused of making improper advances to several young women who answered his advertisements after he had rented office space at 538 South Dearborn street, was sought by police yesterday. State's attorney's police raided the place, but the man had gone. Waiting for him was Meyer Bloom, 21 years old, 3325 Roosevelt road, who had given the man $25 as a pledge of honesty in the soliciting work he was to do, and four newly hired stenographers. The erstwhile employer gave two names, Ellinger and Golden.

SERIOUSLY HURT BY TRAIN.

Loe W. Johlic, 53 years old, 7550 South Shore drive, a department superintendent for the Illinois Steel company, was critically hurt yesterday when he was struck by an Illinois Central electric train at 75th street and Exchange avenue.

BURIED HIS CASH AND DIED; DUG OUT OF RUBBISH HEAP

Rochelle, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—$3,715 in gold buried by J. A. Knack at Freeport in 1901 has been returned to circulation. The coin, buried in sacks in two baking powder cans, was encased in a 3 inch pipe, cemented at each end and was accidentally discovered in cleaning rubbish from a basement of a building originally owned by Knack. Included among the coins, many of very early date, were ten of the one dollar gold pieces, which are selling at a premium. If placed at interest it is estimated that the sum would have been increased to over $6,000 at 6 per cent over the 31 year period.

Heirs of a well known Sycamore woman recently found 31 $100 bills in a wallet under the marble top of a table which was being disposed of to a secondhand dealer.

AUSTRALIA BALKS STATE'S ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP FUNDS

SYDNEY, Australia, April 22 [Friday].—(AP)—The High court of Australia refused today an application of Premier J. T. Lang of New South Wales for an injunction restraining the state's banks from paying funds on the New South Wales account to the commonwealth government.

RED HORDES NEAR PORT IN CHINA; CAPTURE FEARED

14 Foreign Warships Will Guard Nationals.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 22.—(Friday.)—A report from Soochow today said that 100 Japanese soldiers attacked Chinese positions two miles east of Taitsang late last night. The Japanese used trench mortars. Chinese claim 12 Japanese were slain in the engagement. An official Japanese communique also reports skirmishing at various points along the line. The Chinese government claims the Japanese are pushing south of Soochow creek, which is adjacent to the western border of the international settlement at Shanghai.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, April 22.—(Friday.)—(AP)—A warning to the league of nations and to soviet Russia to keep "hands off Manchuria" was issued today by Gen. Sadao Araki, Japanese war minister, in a speech to the Kokuhonsha, a patriotic society at Osaka.

AMOY, China, April 21.—(AP)—Fourteen foreign ships of war stood by in the harbor tonight, ready to protect their nationals in the event of disorders in connection with the expected occupation of Amoy by the steadily advancing communist forces of Gen. Sun Liang-chen.

Government troops already have started to evacuate, and some Chinese residents have fled to the hinterland, fearing that the invasion would mean looting and bloodshed.

Meanwhile thousands of persons from the fighting area came here for refuge. Among them was a group of American Reformed church missionaries from Tungan, 25 miles to the north.

U. S. Warship Arrives.

The U. S. S. Tulsa joined the foreign warships in the harbor tonight. The British cruiser Devonshire is standing by to protect British residents, who include a number of women and children.

Martial law has been declared by the Chinese authorities and heavy patrols have been put in the streets. The city remained comparatively quiet. Amoy is a treaty port 300 miles north of Hongkong.

Japs Seize Soviet Official.

TOKIO, April 22.—[Friday.]—(AP)—A dispatch to the Rengo [Japanese] News agency from Harbin, Manchuria, said today Japanese army officers had arrested the Russian station master of the Chinese Eastern railway at Imienpo on a charge that he obstructed Japanese troop movements in cooperation with Chinese insurgents.

Russian authorities at Harbin demanded the station master's release, the dispatch added.

A Japanese brigade of the Tenth division, under Maj. Gen. Mural, arrived at Imienpo late yesterday and part of it clashed today with Chinese insurgents near Waukimiho, west of Imienpo, it was added. The Japanese intended to launch an offensive against the rebels in that region.

Mukden Gets League Envoys.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, April 21.—(AP)—An enormous crowd of Japanese and Chinese greeted the members of the league of nations Manchurian commission when they arrived here today on two special trains. The station swarmed with detectives of both nationalities there to guard Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese assessor, whose safety has been threatened. Among those who welcomed the commissioners were high Japanese officials and army officers, the Chinese mayor, and other Chinese dignitaries.

At Chinchow Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, American member of the commission, was met by Maj. Gen. Goroku Mori, commanding the Japanese forces in the district, and Col. Akiro Nari, who attended the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga.

At all stations where Gen. McCoy halted he and the commissioners with him were greeted by Japanese army officers and by local delegations of Chinese agricultural, educational, and merchants' associations, who presented petitions upholding the establishment of the new Manchurian state. These petitions will be considered by the entire commission.

Dr. Sze Quits Post.

NANKING, April 21.—(AP)—Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to London, resigned today because of ill health. He will be succeeded by Quo Tai Chi, vice minister of foreign affairs and China's chief delegate at the Sino-Japanese peace conferences at Shanghai.

Japanese Youth Gets Death for Killing Former Premier

TOKIO, April 22.—[Friday]—(AP)—Tomeo Sagoya, 24 year old member of the "Love of Country association," was sentenced to death by a Tokio district court today for killing Yuko Jamaguchi, former premier of Japan, who died last Aug. 26. One of his accomplices, Yoshikatsu Matsuki, was sentenced to thirteen years imprisonment, while the other, Ainosuke Iwata, was sentenced to a prison term of four months.

KILLS SCHOOL TEACHER.

Stockton, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—Tom Coumas, 39, was sought today on a charge of killing a country school teacher in a quarrel over his two children, pupils of the victim. Police said Coumas killed Mrs. E. A. Taylor and wounded the school janitor.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DEGRADATION OF THE FARM BOARD.

A powerful faction in the Farmers' Union Central Coöperative, Inc., of Kankakee favors saying a none too fond farewell to the farm board. That is encouraging. It shows that the farmers are alive to the injury that has been done them. It indicates that the farmers are no longer under the illusion that the board is helping them meet their problems.

The stabilization activities which the farm board was authorized to undertake by congress had small chances of success from the start. Experience the world over in attempts to raise agricultural prices by holding products off the market showed that the odds are a hundred to one against. The experiment failed disastrously when it was tried in Greece with the currant crop, in Yucatan with sisal, in Brazil with coffee, in the Malay states with rubber, in Japan with silk. Hundreds of millions of dollars were lost in these and other similar ventures. Some of them succeeded for a time, but in the measure that they succeeded in raising prices temporarily they increased production in the country which attempted the experiment. That was bad enough, but the final and crushing blow which all these experiments encountered was the creation of new competition attracted by high prices in countries completely outside the control of the government which undertook to finance the crop surpluses taken off the market.

What hope there was in the farm board lay in its ability to organize the farmers for reduced production. That effort failed and accordingly the same economic laws which operated in the coffee, the rubber and similar ventures were certain to operate in wheat and cotton as well. Even so, there was at least a color of decency, if not of economic soundness, about the operations of the farm board in its first days. Mr. Legge was and is an able man and he did the best he could in the face of an impossible task.

Today the farm board and its subsidiaries have degenerated to the point where they are principally useful in providing jobs and fancy salaries.

There is, for example, the Rev. Mr. Huff, late of Oronoque, Kas. Five years ago he was a village preacher, though even then he had already tasted the sweets of the federal pay roll as village postmaster. Today he is at the head of a 20 million dollar grain corporation financed by the taxpayers and his salary is $1,250 a month.

It is not difficult to sympathize with Mr. Huff. Even if he had had an adequate training in grain marketing and finance, the job he holds would have been too big for him. It is too big for any man. Even a good juggler cannot balance the Washington monument on his nose. The sooner congress realizes the fact and orders a liquidation of the whole costly experiment, the better for all. Farmers, taxpayers, and consumers are all the victims of the present effort to achieve the impossible. Meanwhile the existence of such institutions as the farm board is a drain on the treasury and a constantly disturbing factor in the commodity markets.

CONSTRUCTIVE RELIEF.

Parades are one of the privileges of our citizenry in good times or bad. When they are orderly no one can object to them, but making all sympathetic allowance for the human instinct for getting together, especially when in trouble, the so-called hunger parade seems a rather futile way of spending one's energy and shoe leather. For the professional agitator, who gets them up, their profit is plain, but as an advertisement of the needs of the unemployed or even as a threat to employers they are of no benefit to the marchers or any one else. The unemployment emergency is by far the most advertised fact of the depression and, while there is and must be a good deal of bitterness among those who are the worst sufferers, no one who is able or willing to think at all can doubt that employers are as anxious to employ as the unemployed to find work. The whole American community is trying its best to relieve the situation of the unemployed and no parade can induce more effort or increase results.

In contrast to the parade are such practical efforts to organise self-help among the unemployed and to strengthen morale as "The Bread Line Frolics," an entertainment to begin at the Majestic theater Monday under the auspices of a group of Chicago women active in relief work. The program will be given entirely by unemployed men in the city shelters, and it is hoped that it will run a week. The profits will go to a fund for their own benefit.

It is interesting to note that the famous "Chauve Souris," which later was such a success in America, was first produced by and for the unemployed in Moscow.

This is constructive relief work and the idea should give a useful hint to other communities. No single enterprise can solve the vast problem of unemployment, but the principle represented by this experiment, if actively applied, will get substantial results, both materially and morally. Thus far the sufferers from the depression are showing a brave spirit and there has been very little foolish and perversive reaction. This is, we think, because the community has felt and shown sympathy and an earnest desire to help practically, and we cannot have too much of both.

Another effort is the new experiment in providing land which the unemployed may cultivate during the summer to raise supplies for the coming winter. This, too, will not meet the main problem, which can only be solved by the restoration of industry and commerce. But, if well organized and generally adopted, it will mitigate the condition of many unemployed.

F. ROOSEVELT SEES A MAD SCRAMBLE TO CUT.

Gov. Roosevelt says that "in the mad scramble to cut" the costs of government "there is danger that some of the humanitarian work carried on by the government may suffer to such an extent that future generations will be seriously affected." As he was addressing the International Society for Crippled Children his plea was especially that "those seeking to cut the cost of government do not lop off the essential aid for the crippled child."

This is very characteristic of Gov. Roosevelt, both of his amiability and of his political tendency.

When Gov. Roosevelt speaks of "the mad scramble to cut" he reveals significantly his own secret attitude toward retrenchment and his inability to understand the critical problems of public finance. If he can see "a mad scramble to cut" at Washington he has a very peculiar vision. What the phrase really means is that Franklin Roosevelt is for plenty of spending by the government.

Of course, pity for crippled children is a commendable emotion, also an almost universal one. But that the care of crippled children is a proper responsibility of the central political agency, the federal government, is quite another question. When Gov. Roosevelt protests against lopping off "the essential aid for the crippled child" he begs that question. Federal aid for the crippled child, as Gov. Roosevelt knows, is not "essential." It is a very small part of the great work for crippled children carried on in the country by medical science and philanthropy. But by calling it "essential" he implies that any one who favors retrenchment in this case is so inhumane as to be willing to leave the crippled child without aid.

The superficiality of Gov. Roosevelt's thinking is well illustrated in this speech. It reveals his complacency toward the continued inordinate expenditures of the government and his inability to foresee its disastrous consequences. The conspicuous reluctance of both the executive and the legislative branches of government to reduce expenditures becomes in Roosevelt parlance "the mad scramble to cut." That is because he favors bureaucratic expansion and huge federal expenditures and the nation should understand that if he is elected President his influence will be persistently in that direction. In the guise of humanitarianism or public welfare the march of paternalism will go on with his encouragement and help.

As for crippled children, those who more wisely regard their welfare will not be deceived by the notion that a federal bureau is "essential" or that government expenditures which are rapidly bringing it to bankruptcy promise anything but a national misfortune in which the aid of all suffering will be stricken. The best hope of crippled children and of all the humanitarian activities of the nation is in the restoration of public and private solvency and prosperity.

If the American people want more taxation, more bureaucracy, more regulation of their affairs by officials, more centralization of power at Washington, Franklin Roosevelt is their man.

CITIZENS, UNITE.

President Rossetter of the Chicago Association of Commerce is setting an example which is already having effect in other states and we hope will be followed by the management of every business, labor, and citizens' organization in the United States. He has sent out an appeal to association members to rally their associates, employés, and friends for reduction of public expenditure and relief from excessive taxation.

This demand is heard everywhere in the country, but it has not yet been heard with any important response in congress. It will dissipate its force in the air of futile resolution unless it is organized and directed militantly upon the politicians and bureaucrats.

This should be realized at once. Mere talk will get us nowhere. There is a lot of it, even in congress, but the force of resistance to the drastic measures essential to relief is immense. General talk will not break it. The demand for action, fully adequate, drastic action, must be brought directly to every legislator and spender of public money. The Anti-Saloon league taught this lesson when it went straight to every politician and said: "We mean you."

Citizenship must organize the unity of its demand for relief. Every expenditure has its defenders who exchange mutual support. Only the vital interest of us all in retrenchment is lacking in unity and concentration. Citizens must waive their local or special interests for their common interest in salvation from government bankruptcy and from crushing taxation.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Sun.]

Willingness to face unpleasant facts is a quality not often shown by mortals, most of whom prefer to go on the assumption that somehow things will turn out well. This is particularly likely to be true of the attitude of public employés toward the public treasury; the taxpayer heretofore has footed the bills, so why worry now? It speaks well, therefore, for the foresightedness of the teaching staff that its representatives recognize the financial plight of the city. The Brooklyn Teachers' association, with close to 10,000 members, has asked other teachers' organizations to send delegates to a conference at which it is expected, suggestions will be made whereby the board of education may hold its budget down without crippling the service of the school system.

In the present situation the advice of the teachers should prove valuable. Better than any other group they know which branches of the system, if any, are superfluous or extravagantly managed. They can tell also which of the economies thus far proposed are likely to do more damage than good. They are closest to the problem; their suggestions for a solution ought to be of help to officials of the board of education who face the certainty that next year they will have a larger registration of students to take care of and, at best, no more money than they have available for 1933.

Retrenchment must be made unless some new source of revenue is tapped. To squeeze real estate any harder would be useless; it has been wrung dry.

FEEDING THE BABY.

FOR the average baby, mother's milk is very much the best food. It is fresh, unspoiled, and, practically speaking, free from bacteria. It is easily digested and supplies the baby with just about the right food elements, in just about the right proportions. The rule is that the demand just about equals the supply, and, furthermore, the hours of delivery just about fit the ebb and tide of appetite. Getting the baby ready for the food causes less trouble to all parties concerned than does any other method of getting anything from the producer to the consumer. Even an atheist has trouble figuring a divine plan in a combination so ideal.

But there are limitations to the superiority of breast milk. If the mother's diet has been wrong her milk supply may be below par. We know that a mother will not give a plentiful supply of wholesome milk unless she eats just about as much meat, bread, butter, milk, vegetables, and fruits, and drinks as much water as she needs. If she is not eating enough yeast and grain germ, or other sources of vitamin B complex, her breast fed baby will not thrive. The same holds true for vegetables and fruits as a source of vitamin C and of foods that supply vitamin D.

If she drinks alcohol or uses drugs to excess, some of the drugs will get to the baby through the food supply. It not infrequently happens that a mother takes a cathartic and her baby has diarrhea. She takes an opiate and her baby is dopey, and one way to give quinine to a young baby is to have the mother take the drug.

Some have claimed that cows' milk disagrees with babies when certain weeds appear in the pastures and cows eat them for one reason or another. This is certainly true of white snakeroot, and it may be true to some extent of some more frequently eaten weeds, though proof is lacking. If true of cows and their milk, it argues that when human mothers eat certain foods the babies feel the effects.

There are certain food elements in which even the best mothers' milk is deficient. This is true of iron and copper, in which all mothers' and cows' milk is deficient. At times mothers' milk contains insufficient iodine. When the mother's milk is of the best it will not suffice as the sole food for longer than a few months.

Within the first two months of life it is best to give babies orange juice, even though the mothers' milk is of the best. This addition, with its vitamin C, is added to within the following two months by cod liver oil, halibut liver oil, or some other source of vitamin D. Before the child is six months old he is fed some vegetable juices, soups, or purées as an added source of iron and other food elements. After that, month by month, the list of foods in addition to mothers' milk is built up.

And, finally, there are some babies to whom mothers' milk, or any other milk, is poison. It causes tetter, eczema, diarrhea among other disorders.

ODOR NOT POISONOUS.

S. writes: Three months ago the walls of the room in which I sleep and spend several hours each day were painted. They were dry and hard in a short time, but on entering the room, which is always well ventilated, there is a perceptible odor of paint. Can this contain monoxide gas?

REPLY.

No. The danger of poisoning of any kind from occupying this room is trivial.

LUCKY TO SAVE ARM.

Mrs. C. R. P. writes: I know of a little girl whose arm was fractured about seven months ago, right above the elbow [compound fracture]. The small bones pierced the skin, causing infection, which lasted some time. New bone formed, making the elbow stiff, and there is very little motion in the joint. She was supposed to have had every attention. Some doctors have said a piece of bone could be removed later, giving her motion in the joint, while others have said not.

REPLY.

The little girl was lucky not to lose her arm. Compound infected fractures near the elbow are often followed by loss of motion. In most cases an operation to increase motion in the joint proves successful.

STREET CAR LIGHTS.

Chicago, April 15.—[Friend of the People.]—The writer has been riding the Kedzie avenue street cars for the past eight years and wants to know why it is that the cars of late are so poorly lighted that one can hardly read a paper in the morning or evening when it is dark. On one occasion only eight lights were burning in the car and it was almost impossible to read without straining one's eyes. H. C. L.

This complaint of insufficient light was brought to the attention of the surface lines and the following is a copy of their statement regarding this matter: "Our instructions have been general and specific to see that plenty of light is given passengers at all times, and we will see that appropriate corrective action is taken in the case of the crew of the car mentioned."

JEFFREY A. O'CONNOR,
Commissioner of Public Service.

MAY RENOUNCE WILL.

Chicago, April 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a husband dies and leaves no will, does the wife get one-third of the property? 2. A man has married a second time. He has children by the first wife, but none by the second. He wills his wife the use of the property as long as she lives, then it is to go to the children. Could the wife [a] sell the property or [b] borrow money on it in order to have a living or could the children interfere? All he has is the home, no money. 3. The children are not all self-supporting and if she can't sell how is she going to get money to take care of them as well as herself? He has no insurance. E. M. S.

1. Yes. We assume that he leaves children.

2. [a] She could sell only her interest. [b] Yes, if she could find a lender who would be willing to lend on her interest.

3. Where husband or wife dies testate, leaving descendants, the surviving spouse may elect to renounce the will and take, after payment of all debts, one-third of realty and personalty or dower in realty and one-third of personalty. It may be that it will be advisable for her to renounce the will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

IT IS RELIABLY reported (or a fiendish lie, whichever way you want to look at it) that a reporter said to Gov. Roosevelt, the w. k. candidate for the Democratic nomination: "Governor, it's a fine day, isn't it?" "Yes," replied the governor, firmly, "it is a fine day wherever the sun is shining. Of course, at those places on the earth's surface where the rain is falling it is not so fine. No, I have nothing to add to that statement. Later on I may reply at greater length."

WE ONCE SAID it would be a fine idea to nominate Charley Dawes for President, but yesterday he went before a congressional committee and just spilled the beans all over the room. When the Truly Good read Charley's speech they wouldn't vote for him for dog pelter. Of course, he talked cold, hard sense and made a great constructive speech—BUT—he said "d——n" and "h——l" time and again and he said another word. Oh, horrors, suppose he became President and some foreign diplomats came over to call at the White House and OUR PRESIDENT told them to get the hell out of there. Oh, dreadful, dreadful; really, it is too terrible to think about.

ANOTHER SONG FOR APRIL.

Lift up your long-hushed voices,
O happy choirs of spring!
Now preens in showers of sunshine
The meadow lark his wing;

The green grass is growing
Where snow lay deep and white,
The sweet wild blossom
Is breaking to the light,

And in the winsome shadow
Of boughs no longer bare
I saw a lover kissing
His lassie's golden hair.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

THE G. O. P. has given out all the details of what will happen next fall except a copy of Mr. Hoover's second inaugural address, and that may be knocking around in the mail somewhere. We have probably overlooked it.

ALONE IN WASHINGTON

Sir: Tiring of the Desert of Depression, I decided to trek across its camel-infested, mirage-haunted waste and seek our one great oasis, Washington, where a thousand bubbling underground springs tap the tax reservoirs and so irrigate the gardens of the bureaucracy that their blossoms never droop. Unemployment and unenjoyment are almost unknown here. Life goes on as merrily and mauvely as before the war and prohibition. Prosperity, sleek and well fed, is held securely in leash around the Corner, where government employés may be seen daily petting it and patting it upon the head.

It is certainly heartening to come to Washington and see them making real money by the bale. And it is enlightening to loaf around the capitol and gaze down from the galleries and see them making laws and appropriations. It is done so easily—almost automatically, one might say; so that one fears there may some day be an overproduction.

Speaker Garner sits at his desk, dreaming of taxes and Texas. A few members move about, kidding one another. Others sit resolutely at their places working crosswords. Boy Scout pages hurry here and there doing their good deeds. Now and then a member rises and orates, but nobody listens.

But the sojourner in Washington today is more interested in the nationally advertised bureaus than in congress. Bureaus antique and expensive; bureaus modernistic and expensive; bureaus with mahogany veneer, and bureaus chromium plated. And highboys. But all of them so thinly veneered, with nothing but soft pine or slippery elm underneath. Then there's the cabinet. And the well known brand of vacuum cleaner. Really, one is reminded of Grand Rapids in its palmiest days. I haven't seen the cabinet yet. Having lost to England the oldest and most expensive relic it contained, it no longer possesses a great deal of interest. And, anyhow, it will be junked next year and another model constructed, with free wheeling, streamline body and, possibly, a little electrically refrigerated cache in one corner.

I intend to try to crash the special senate gallery tomorrow, where the red plush seats and the brass spittoons are; but I may reconsider and visit the zoo instead. EOLUS.

"BANDITS IN EVENING CLOTHES Rob New York Club."—Headline. But why put it in a headline? Of course, New York bandits wear evening clothes in the evening or no real New Yorker would hand 'em his watch, his money, and his priceless jewels. They would merely say: "You are a horrid, uncouth person and you cannot rob me until you go home and put on evening dress and appear like a gentleman." Out here in Chicago our bandits are such rude persons they seldom wear evening dress. However, it is our own fault. We simply should refuse, as the New Yorkers do, to be held up unless the bandits show some regard for the conventions.

TO A DEPARTED POET.

They tell me you have died; but they are wrong.
How could they call you dead, who with your song
Still brings to hearts that bleed a saving dream,
Who for our darkest hours bring yet a gleam
Of joyous hope? A vain and sorry scheme
This universe if your high soul of light
Was born to flicker out in rayless night,
It cannot be. If here your lips could sing,
What wondrous songs must now be burgeoning
In that fair realm where it is endless Spring!

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1895

LONDON, Jan. 30.—A dispatch from Shanghai says the Chinese military and naval commanders telegraph by way of Chefoo that on the morning of Jan. 23 the Japanese fleet advanced upon Wei-Hai-Wei in two divisions of nineteen ships. The searchlights betrayed their presence and guns of the Chinese fleet and shore batteries opened fire on the first division of the Japanese ships when they were within 1,000 yards of the Chinese fleet. The fastest Chinese men of war and torpedo boats made a dash at the enemy and after heavy firing drove them off. The first Japanese division went to the northwest and the second southward.

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 30.—The Chinese peace envoys have arrived at Kobe and will go to Hiroshima by train today, accompanied by John W. Foster, former secretary of state of the United States, who is acting as their adviser. Counselor Wo, who is accompanying the envoys, answering a question as to the nature of the proposals which the Chinese envoys were instructed to submit to Japan, said that their nature might be inferred from the disastrous condition of China. Dispatches from Chemulpo, Corea, say the Japanese and Corean troops defeated the Tong Haks in the vicinity of Chin Hiang. The Tong Haks lost heavily.

LONDON.—A correspondent of the Times, cabling from Newchwang, says that a messenger has arrived there from the Yalu river with the information that the Russians are fleeing north across the river in overcrowded boats and are losing hundreds by drowning.

SEOUL.—Japanese soldiers here say they believe Port Arthur has fallen, but no official report has been received. Strong rumors are current of a land engagement yesterday near the mouth of the Yalu, but the result is unknown.

BOSTON.—William R. Hearst was defeated in the Massachusetts Democratic convention. The four delegates at large and the twenty delegates from the various congressional districts were instructed to support Richard Olney for President in the Democratic national convention, and after a bitter fight the unit rule was adopted by a vote of 600 to 200.

NEW YORK.—Failing in the effort at reconciliation with his wife, Mme. Lillian Nordica, the prima donna, who, he had been led to believe, would remarry him after her divorce proceedings were completed, Herr Zoltan Doeme threatened to kill her and end his own life, according to a statement made by counsel before Judge MacLean in the Supreme court which is hearing the application of Doeme to set aside the interlocutory decree of divorce granted Mme. Nordica last January.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

EL PASO, Tex.—Rumors are current here and in Columbus and Deming of fighting at Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, between Mexicans and American troops. Neither Brig. Gen. Bell here nor Gen. Gabriel Gavira, commanding in Juarez, had any official information, they said. The American troops there have constructed extensive earthworks, defended by machine guns and field pieces.

BERLIN.—Sentiment in high official quarters here is against giving in to the demand made by the United States that Germany cease its submarine activities. As a result, it would be wrong to regard the situation as anything but extremely grave. The ministers and other officials who were entitled to it received a copy of the Wilson note and were engaged during the day in studying the document. The note probably will be answered some time next week.

LONDON.—The French last night opened a vigorous counter offensive in the Verdun region, attacking the German positions both east and west of the Meuse. West of the Meuse the attack was centered on the region of Dead Man's Hill, which was the greatest stumbling block for the Germans in their attempts to capture Verdun from the northwest. Paris reports that the French made gains here as well as in Caurettes wood. East of the Meuse the French threw the enemy out of the trenches taken south of Fort Douaumont.

THE COSTS OF VETERAN RELIEF.

Hines, Ill., April 18.—Reference is made to an article published in the Voice of the People column of your paper under date of April 15, 1932, entitled "The Costs of Veteran Relief," and signed by the initials J. M. M.

In view of the fact that many of the statements made in this article are not borne out by actual statistics, it is felt that they should not go unchallenged.

The statement is made that "comparatively few met with a war injury or a disease which might not have happened to them during that period of civil life." The facts are that out of a total of 945,547 claims for compensation filed in the United States 319,503 veterans are drawing compensation for a service-connected disability. The average amount paid to each veteran receiving compensation for a service-connected disability is approximately $33 per month.

The total number of claims filed in the United States for disability allowance, i. e., disabilities not necessarily incurred in service, is 786,653 and of this number 353,537 veterans are receiving an allowance. The average amount paid to each veteran receiving an allowance is approximately $16 per month. In other words, of the total number of veterans of the world war only approximately 672,000 are receiving compensation or disability allowance, averaging $27 per month for each compensated veteran. Does this bear out the statement of J. M. M. to the effect that the taxpayers are expected to pay the equivalent of what would be $25 per month for every one of the four million men in the service?

With reference to the cost of patients in hospitals, it is desired to state that the average daily cost for all hospitals of the veterans' administration is $3.50 per patient, instead of "some $20 per day," as stated by your correspondent.

J. M. M. says "if a veteran loses a leg under an automobile fourteen years after the war he will be cared for and be given some $100 or $150 a month for the rest of his life." The facts are that the veteran would receive $18 per month on a permanent disability allowance rating of 50 per cent if such injury was not caused by the veteran's own misconduct.

Attention is also invited to the fact that the veterans of the civil war receive a pension whether they are suffering from a disability or not, and all veterans of the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection who have reached the age of 60 years receive a pension, the amount paid per month depending upon the age of the veteran and the degree of disability, either service connected or nonservice connected.

In dealing with veterans' relief it should be borne in mind that the veterans' administration is the agency created for the purpose of carrying out the various laws enacted by congress.

The undersigned as a public servant does not feel that it is within his province to express an opinion as to the degree of benefits that should be afforded veterans of any war, but merely furnishes the above official data in order that the public may have a correct picture of the situation.

HUGH SCOTT, M. D.,
Manager, Edward Hines Jr. Center,
Veterans' Administration, Hines, Ill.

DISABILITY COMPENSATION.

Chicago, April 18.—It should be of interest to your readers who are already overburdened by taxes to know that many of the employés at veterans' hospitals and offices, who are veterans, are drawing disability compensations or allowances besides their salary. The term "disability" means that these employés because of their disabilities incurred in service are precluded from gaining civil occupations. Therefore they are compensated by the government to the extent of their injuries. But the fact that they are employed in gainful occupations which pay them more than a living wage should only mean that they are not disabled and therefore not entitled to government pensions.

The government and overtaxed citizens should prevent these employés from drawing any disability allowances or compensations while in government service.

In justice, however, to other employés, I believe that either the pay cut or the forced furlough without pay would destroy the morale of government employés to the detriment of public welfare and governmental efficiency. In fact, they are underpaid now. Wise government retrenchment can only be done by scientific survey of overlapping governmental activities and their abolition. Pay cutting should not bear the burden of governmental waste, for there we are dealing with a human factor whose well being and welfare are part and parcel of the nation's citizens. AN AMERICAN.

WHO ARE THE DRYS?

St. Louis, Mo., April 15.—On March 3, 1932, I wrote to the editor of the Literary Digest specifically inquiring as to whether they were sending out ten million ballots to women and ten million ballots to men or twenty million ballots to men only. On March 14 I received a letter from the Literary Digest, signed by William S. Woods, editor, in which he informed me that ballots were being mailed only to the following groups: Telephone subscribers and automobile owners, subscribers of the Literary Digest as of the February, 1932, mailing lists, doctors, clergymen, bankers, and lawyers.

It clearly appears that out of twenty million ballots very few women will receive any. Therefore the present Literary Digest poll cannot be construed as a fair test of the opinion of the people as the women were the real sufferers in the days of the saloon. GEORGE E. MIX,
Former Judge of State Circuit Court, St. Louis, Mo.

WIDOW IS DESPERATE.

Chicago, April 12.—I am a widow. My first son was hit by a drunken driver and had concussion of the brain. Two years after another son, 26 years old, was hit by a drunken hit and run driver and died. And now the only one I have was hit last night by a drunken woman driver out with a man not her husband. If I don't get some law I will take the law myself. Widow and mother,
MARY M. CALLAHAN.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL.

Chicago, March 13.—In the recent editorial, "Fascist Proposals," the writer has voiced the suspicion that Italy's disarmament proposals are, in part, due to its lack of sinews of war. Assuming this to be true, why is it that the United States is so fervently backing and indorsing every peace conference or disarmament proposal? Surely it does not lack in sinews of war.

Perhaps there is a difference in the two peoples, or, as the writer thoughtfully admitted, a difference of leadership and diplomacy. R. C. F.

OHIO MINE SNIPER FIRES ON SOLDIER AND REPORTER

Believe Pair Mistaken for Strikers.

Cadiz, O., April 21.—[Special.]—Unrest continued in the eastern Ohio mine strike area, according to National Guard officials, and snipers fired upon a newspaper man and a guardsman early today. None of the shots took effect, but William C. Howells of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and Capt. Kenneth Kerr of Wilmington were forced to flee to escape from the ambushers.

Five shots were fired at the men, according to the official report made to guard headquarters here. Capt. Kerr said that he was convinced the snipers thought they were striking miners and that the shots were fired only to intimidate them. The shooting occurred as Kerr and Howells approached the Somers mine near Adena, scenes of recent rioting.

Nitroglycerin Recovered.

Harrison county authorities announced last night that five quarts of nitroglycerin stolen from a torpedo company had been recovered and two men arrested in connection with the theft. The pair held gave their names as Carl Unkiesby and Fred Shaney, both of Jewett, a mining community ten miles north of here, which was shaken early yesterday by a mysterious explosion.

The several hundred National Guardsmen on duty in the strike area continued at their posts today. Col. William L. Marlin "guaranteed" they would give protection to any operators desiring to reopen closed mines, and Gov. George White said the troops would remain on duty until law and order is assured.

With these promises, representatives of several mine operators in Jefferson, Harrison and Belmont counties said they would probably announce within the next few days whether the mines will be reopened.

Stake Peace Zones.

Guardsmen who fired on a band of men marching toward the Somers mine Monday were accused today by a spokesman for the miners of having acted "without provocation."

Meanwhile special efforts to forestall mine disorders in Muskingum county were in effect today. By order of Sheriff William Curtis, two mile zones were staked out around each coal mine in the county, and notice given that persons will not be allowed to congregate in groups of more than three within the staked area.

The sheriff also prohibited the parking of automobiles within the area and specified that groups of three persons shall not be within 200 yards of other groups.

The Workers' International Relief of Cleveland charged Sheriff Maurice Wooster with responsibility in the death of a striking Harrison county coal miner today. A telegram received by the sheriff read: "Thousands in Ohio hold you responsible," and "demanded" immediate withdrawal of state troops from the Ohio coal fields and "an end to the bosses' violence against strikers' rights to march and picket in the struggle against starvation."

CHICAGO ARID AS SAHARA, SENATE GROUP ASSURED

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Chicago, once a "rum soaked" city, is now, under prohibition, so sober a metropolis that the poet Gray could sit down in the middle of the loop and write his "Elegy in a Churchyard," Prof. Edward Thomas Lee, president of John Marshall Law school, today told the senate judiciary subcommittee considering 18th amendment repeal and resubmission bills.

E. T. LEE.

"Of course," the professor admitted, "I would not say that by searching, speakeasies may not be found scattered here and there." But on the whole, he said, he is tremendously pleased with prohibition in Chicago; that the University, Hamilton, Union League and other city clubs are dry; that the loop is so quiet that newspaper men consider it dead, so far as news was concerned.

The Chicago Press club, once an oasis, is now, Prexy Lee declared, "as free from liquor supplies as Scipio's tomb is empty of ashes."

Contrasted with the present aridity which Mr. Lee finds in Chicago is the picture he painted to the committee of the days thirty-five years back, when one "vice den was found to have a chute leading from it bar room to the street, through which drunken men, after being drugged and robbed, were dropped into the street for the police to pick up."

Hooking up the 18th and the 19th amendments, he maintained that women would never have dared to demand suffrage and go to the polls to vote if prohibition had not dried up those polls and made it safe for feminine invasion.

PLEADS GUILTY TO MURDER CHARGE.

Mattoon, Ill., April 21.—(AP)—Joseph William Dennis, 22, of Shelbyville, pleaded guilty today in the Circuit court in Coles county to the murder of Virgil Swank, Mattoon filling station attendant, in an attempted holdup. Judge George W. Bristow deferred sentence and State's Attorney C. M. Heinlein announced he would ask the death penalty.

MANY HURT WHEN POLICE AND REDS BATTLE IN 2 CITIES

New York, Philadelphia Scene of Riots.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Many persons were injured and 23 others, six of them women, were arrested today when police broke up two groups of marchers in what was termed by authorities "a plot to mass radicals for a march on city hall."

The disturbances broke out within a block of the city hall when a parade of about 200 marchers, who said they belonged to the "Workers' ex-Service Men's league, Philadelphia post No. 1," refused to obey a police order to disperse.

Charged by Police.

The group, carrying banners, was marching toward Broad street. Details of mounted and foot policemen, swinging riot sticks and black jacks, charged the marchers and sent them scurrying in all directions.

Some of the banners read: "We want bread, not bullets." "We demand a five cent fare." "We demand passage of the unemployment insurance bill."

Just as police appeared to have broken up the first parade, another group of about 500 appeared on the scene and these also refused to obey the order to disperse. Again the police charged, inflicting more injuries and arresting a number of the marchers.

Three policemen, including an inspector, were injured when, they said, some of the marchers attacked the officers with clubs.

Battle in Manhattan.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Wild rioting ended a communist unemployment demonstration at city hall this afternoon when a group of radicals rushed the police cordon around City Hall park and mounted and foot patrolmen waded into the crowd swinging sticks and fists.

Two patrolmen and four rioters were painfully injured. Five men and and a woman were arrested, and dozens of the communists were knocked about by the police in repeated skirmishes along Park row.

The demonstraters had asked permission of Deputy Chief Inspector James S. Bolan and Inspector David J. McAuliffe to go into city hall with their demands upon the administration. The request was refused. The leaders then tried to rush the police barrier around City Hall park on Park row and the fight was on.

MELLON IGNORES DRY PROTEST ON LIQUOR SERVING

LONDON, April 21.—(AP)—Ambassador Mellon's answer today to the protest of American women dry leaders against serving liquor in the American embassy here was that he had no statement to make.

At the embassy it was said there was nothing to add to the statement Mr. Mellon made when he arrived in England that he would probably follow the custom of the country.

Jobless Actor Offers Blood to Save Life of Invalid

Los Angeles, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—David Dunbar, unemployed actor, has donated transfusion of a pint of his blood to Leonard Tremain, also a film actor, to enable him to combat an attack of pneumonia.

NATION ON ROAD TO PROSPERITY, DAWES CLAIMS

Warns Bonus Plan Would Wreck Country.

safe expansion of credit and the return of prosperity all depend on maintenance of confidence in the soundness of our currency and in the credit of our banks and of our government."

The general paused, applied the seventeenth match in ten minutes to his pipe, and glared about him as he proceeded to touch off this verbal bombshell:

"In my judgment, the devastating effects of a consequent loss of general confidence through the inflation of our currency will negative the possibility of real relief by any experiment with fiat money. One need but recall what happened to Germany through the inflation of the German mark currency in the few years ending in 1924. Well do I remember it, arriving in Berlin one morning and trying to buy a paper for 500,000 marks. The newsboy demanded 1,000,000. All the arguments which are now made for this proposed issue of fiat money were made by those who at first advocated the increase in German mark currency which finally prostrated the credit and business of that country by 1924 with untold suffering, privation and want on the part of all classes of the German people. Always, in such experiments, the idea at first is that we can go safely a little way in defiance of right economic principle and avoid disastrous penalties by stopping in time. This has proved a delusion. Inflation of a currency once started in a country seldom stops short of its complete economic ruin."

Bank Failures Declining.

The general had raised his voice almost to a shriek and was shaking his fist in the face of hoary-headed Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], acting chairman, as he drove home the last sentence.

"Confidence in the credit structure of our country and in the banks of the United States has now returned," Mr. Dawes continued. "In general bank deposits have ceased to fall and bank failures have been reduced to the minimum. The effect of a lack of public confidence upon the money resources of the people, however, is illustrated by the fact that on Dec. 31, 1929, there were 24,360 banks in the United States with aggregate deposits of 55 billion, 289 millions, while on Dec. 31, 1931, two years later, there were only 19,968 banks with 46 billion, 261 million of deposits. In other words, the then existing lack of confidence has resulted in a decrease in the purchasing power of the people of the United States in these two years of over nine billion dollars; lack of confidence; and it is significant that in these two years, when deposits shrunk more than nine billion dollars, there had been an addition to the amount of money in circulation in the country of more than 900 million dollars.

Need Confidence, Not Money.

"It has been confidence and not currency which we have lacked in this country. The inflation of our currency will destroy, in my judgment, the general confidence in the country which has now been reestablished. We already know what the consequences are of the destruction of confidence."

Mr. Rainey and Representative Fred M. Vinson [Dem., Ky.] plied the banker with questions.

"Why, damn it all," shot back the irascible Dawes, "this issue of fiat money would undermine the credit of the country, invite the withdrawal of foreign deposits, and shake the soundness of the United States government itself. It would affect the operations of the Reconstruction Finance corporation as well as all business enterprises. It is an invitation to start on that primrose path Germany followed until the mark went down."

Asked by Representative S. B. Hill [Dem., Wash.] what he thought of the Owen and Thomas plans for paying the bonus, Dawes said:

"I am not going to give you a half baked opinion on those bills because I haven't had an opportunity to read them. That is the trouble with the country now—the half baked opinions that are being handed out. It is the mixing of politics into those questions that causes a lot of trouble. I prefer to talk about things I know about.

"We don't need one more dollar in money. We have 900 million dollars more in circulation than we had in 1929. The trouble is a lack of confidence. When I was a young fellow I had that same idea about knowing everything about every economic question just like a lot of people seem to have who are talking on the stump.

"I am not merely commenting on the big fellow who has a case of the jumps every time any little thing happens. They look at the picayunish transactions on the New York Stock exchange, picayunish in comparison with the operations in agriculture and the ordinary business of the country. Yet the whole country is watching the quotations of a little group of speculators in Wall street—a peanut stand magnified out of its proper relation in comparison to its importance. They talk as much of what they do over there as they do about all the rest of the business of the country put together."

When Representative A. T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.] asked whether he would study the Owen plan to pay the bonus Dawes said:

"O, hell, don't ask me to do that. I am busy. I got to work day and night on this Reconstruction corporation job."

How Finance Board Works.

Gen. Dawes entered into a long explanation of the work of the Reconstruction Finance corporation which was in effect a defense of the legislation against such charges as those of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York that it relieved the rich but not the "little man, the forgotten man."

"The purpose of the President in urging the creation and of congress in enacting the law providing for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, a nonpartisan body," said Gen. Dawes, "was the relief of the people of the United States and the method of affording it, which congress decided upon was through loans adequately secured to be made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to 13 classes of corporations and to them only. The object of the President and congress was not primarily the relief of these corporations themselves as such, but of millions of the people who have entrusted the particular classes of corporations with their funds, and who suffer if the power of these corporations to function normally is unduly impaired. It should be emphasized that the reason why these particular classes of corporations were named in the law was because the demands upon these corporations come chiefly from the American people.

Protects Depositors.

"In the banks, including savings banks and trust companies, are deposited most of the ready cash of the American people. The present deposits in these institutions amount to 46 billion and represent the bulk of the purchasing power now existing in our country and are the ready assets of millions of families. Nothing is more important to the masses of the American people than the preservation of the credit and the normal functioning of banks.

"In the normal functioning of insurance companies our people are vitally interested for there are about 70 million insurance policies in force and likewise with building and loan associations with their many millions of families participating.

"In the securities of railroad corporations, practically all classes of fiduciary institutions dealing directly with the savings of the people are interested, as well as great numbers of individual investors.

"As to mortgage loan companies, credit unions, federal land banks, joint stock land banks, federal intermediate credit banks, agricultural credit corporations and live stock credit corporations the same public interest exists.

"In connection with all these loans the Reconstruction Finance corporation considers them first upon the basis of adequate security, a duty which is imposed upon it by law, and then upon their beneficial effect in passes upon each application for a loan which comes before it upon its individual merit and in its proper relation to the public interest.

"The Reconstruction Finance corporation has been functioning for a period of only about eleven weeks. It is carrying on its work with the utmost expedition consistent with proper methods of procedure. As yet it has used in its operations only about one-fifth of its resources and chiefly on that account time must elapse before the full beneficial effects of its operations can be properly appraised. But already the beneficial effect of its most important work thus far—its loans to banks and trust companies—is sufficiently evident to have alone justified congress in the creation of the corporation."

As evidence of the effectiveness of the corporation Gen. Dawes cited figures showing that in the 71 days before its formation 756 banks, with 521 millions of deposits, failed whereas in the 71 days since its formation only 182 banks, with 80 millions of deposits, have failed. In addition, 79 involvent banks with 36 millions of deposits have been enabled to reopen.

Hoarded Cash Back in Banks.

"The general withdrawal of bank deposits is stopped," he said, "and hoarded money to the extent of 250 million dollars has been returned to the banks during the period since the commencement of operations of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. General confidence in our banking system has been restored which is and always has been an indispensable condition of a succeeding general business and industrial recovery.

"There has been comment to the effect that the Reconstruction Finance corporation favors large banks as against small ones but it is unjustified and beside the point. The number of depositors to be saved by sustaining a given bank is where the real interest of the public lies—not in the question of the size of the bank.

"The important thing which the Reconstruction Finance corporation endeavors to keep in mind is that the banks, large or small, as the trustees of the depositors of the public, shall be treated alike in the interest of the public without discrimination and without fear or favor.

"As a matter of fact, however, the bulk of the bank loans in number and amount have gone to the small banks. The figures covering the period from Feb. 2 to April 12 show that 69.2 per cent of the banks which have borrowed money from the Reconstruction Finance corporation are located in towns of less than 5,000 population, and 88.9 per cent of the borrowing banks are located in towns of 25,000 or less. Of the total amount of money loaned to banks by the Reconstruction Finance corporation 23.9 per cent was to banks located in towns with less than 10,000 population and 68.6 per cent [over two thirds of the amount loaned] was in towns and cities of less than 100,000 population. Only 5.3 per cent of the money loaned was to banks located in cities of 1,000,000 population or over."

Gen. Dawes explained the loans to railroads and defended the much criticized 17 million dollar loan to the Missouri Pacific, six millions of which went to pay 50 per cent of a loan held by New York bankers.

Gen. Dawes said that the government will make a profit on the entire amount of loans which now aggregated 370 millions to 1,757 institutions.

FACTORY OWNERS URGED TO FIGHT VET BONUS PLAN

Declaring that the proposal would menace the solvency of the nation, Samuel M. Hastings, president of the Midwest Manufacturers' association, urged member organizations yesterday to oppose the full payment of soldiers' bonuses through the proposed issue of 2 billion 400 million dollars in fiat money by the government.

He urged member associations in ten midwestern states, representing 40 per cent of the nation's factory production, to oppose actively the bonus payment proposals pending in congress. The associations, he pointed out, have already gone on record in opposition to full payment of adjusted service certificates.

"We believe," Mr. Hastings said, "that if any attempt is made to enforce the full payment of veterans' adjusted service certificates it would further demoralize business to an ireparable degree, would increase unemployment and would probably make it impossible to maintain the gold standard in the United States.

"There is serious apprehension that passage of such legislation at this time would tend to throw our country into a state of bankruptcy."

RIVERSIDES
Prove their quality again!
"I should be licked for driving these roads"
Sayville, Long Island
Montgomery Ward & Co.,
Chicago, Illinois.
Gentlemen:
As a salesman I drove my Buick Master Six this year a little over 16,000 miles. Every kind of driving from the New York City traffic with sudden stops and quick starting to three months of long hot runs in midsummer to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania. I should be licked for driving some of those sharp stone mountain roads, but the best trout fishing is where roads are so rough the other fellow is afraid to drive there. This fall I've been up scrub-oak roads rabbit shooting and that driving is hard on tires too, but thanks to Riverside, they stay with me. During the entire year, and 16,000 miles, not one of the Riversides has been off the car. I know of nowhere in the U.S.A. that a man can get more mileage per dollar expended than he can in buying Riverside tires.
Very truly yours, R. B. Cronk.

This interesting letter from Mr. Cronk is one of many hundreds in our files. It was entirely voluntary—sent to us without solicitation. Nothing was paid for it. It is a genuine expression of gratitude for meritorious service.

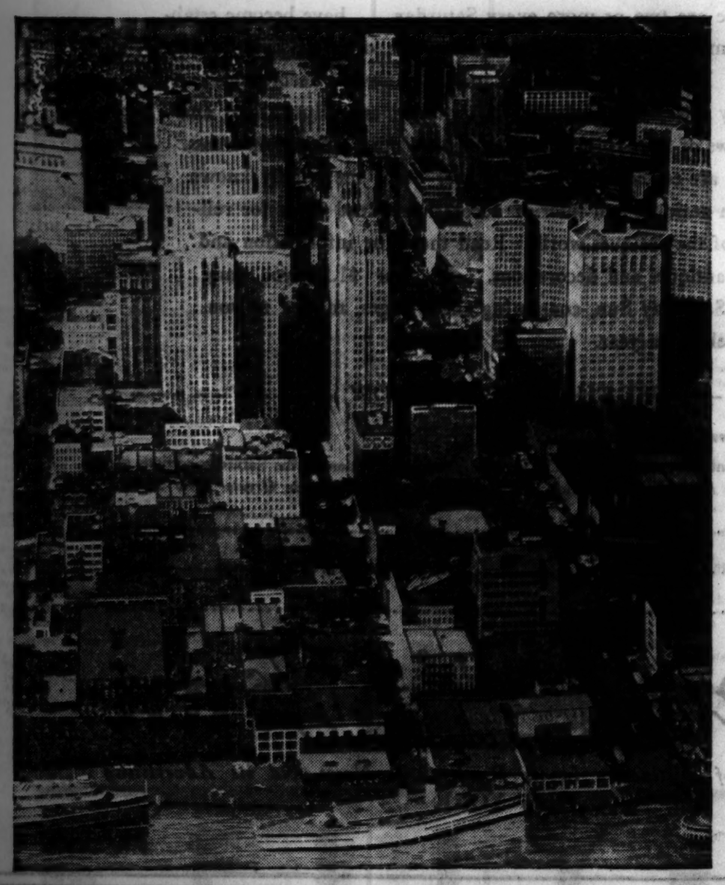
"DETROIT IS CALLING!"



SOMETHING is happening in Detroit for which no other city in America can offer a parallel.

Scores of thousands of its citizens are back on the job. Mills, shops, foundries and factories have taken on new life. The apathy of the recent past has been succeeded by new far-reaching energy.

Automobile manufacturers whose names and reputations are world-wide, whose activities have a galvanizing effect on all American business, all industry, are going into action with heavy guns. Many more men are working. Money is being spent in greater quantities. One company alone has taken orders within a month for 300,000 cars!

Detroit is calling!

Not only is Detroit calling its message of work resumed . . . of a new stimulus to business everywhere . . . but it is telling the advertising world of the present opportunity in the Detroit market for those who have something to sell!

Sell it in Detroit!

Sell it where there is money to buy it!

Offer it in the homes of Detroit!

Detroit remains one of the few large markets in the world that can adequately be covered with one newspaper. That many experienced advertisers believe this is proved by the 100% lead of the News in advertising lineage over its nearest competitor.

The Detroit News has more circulation than any other Detroit newspaper in every class of population and reaches 71% of all $3000 income homes and over.

BUCKET SHOPS SHUT TO ESCAPE NEW STATE TAX

Shady Investment Houses Face Hearings.

Financial racketeers operating bucket shops in the loop were reported yesterday to be quietly going out of business. A combined drive against them by the federal government, state's attorney's office, and secretary of state, and passage by the legislature last Tuesday of the Schackenberg bill will have spoiled Illinois as a haven for crooked investment houses, it was stated. The new act provides for licensing and registration of brokers. The bill awaits Gov. Emmerson's signature to be effective.

Leonard D. Karcher, assistant manager of the Investors Protective Bureau, Inc., which is supported by legitimate houses, said yesterday that it was impossible to give an accurate estimate of the number of shady investment houses which were set up in Chicago and the state after the state Supreme court, last December, declared the old Illinois securities law invalid.

"Number of Bucketeers Large."

"But the number was very large," he said, "many so-called 'houses' were merely single crooks with a mailing address who solicited customers over a public phone. As soon as a complaint was made, the 'broker' would be gone, only to reappear later with another address and a new firm name.

"Similarly, it would be impossible to estimate how much money was contributed by the public to these fake houses. Despite the depression, many persons had money to invest and lost thousands of dollars.

"When the governor signs the Schnackenberg bill, all houses must apply for registration at Springfield. They must be examined, show their assets and prove that they can and will conduct an honest security business.

State to Hold Hearings.

"Many will automatically fold up. The secretary of state has information on many houses which have been using questionable tactics. These concerns will be given hearings at which evidence will be introduced. If they are refused registration, their only appeal is to the Circuit court of Sangamon county where Springfield is situated.

"The new law, of course, won't cure the security evil. No law can restrain people from making fools of themselves. But the law will restrain the crooks and keep disreputable houses at a minimum."

ENGAGED

MARY LOU EITEL.
[Parsons Photo.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—The engagement of Mary Lou Eitel, daughter of Karl Eitel, Chicago, to Karl Adlon, son of Louis Adlon of Berlin, will be announced May 1.

They told THE TRIBUNE correspondent today that they plan a wedding next October in Chicago, will spend a honeymoon in Wisconsin, then will return to live in Germany. Young Adlon is running a hotel for his father, who is a widely known sportsman, owner of Berlin's most famous hotel, and a member of the old Mayence family.

Young Adlon spent four years in America, where he says he became a fervent admirer of American womanhood, as did his father, who married an American.

The couple met in Berlin when Mary Lou was touring Europe for pleasure.

CONTINUE APPLEQUIST INQUIRY.

Inquest into the double slaying of Benjamin (Red) Applequist and his brother, Ernst, shot to death in their saloon at 42 North Paulina street, was continued yesterday until April 26, to allow police further time to question the bartender, Davy Jacobson.

DULUTH FORMS GROUP TO FIGHT U.S. TAX SPENDING

Joins Chicago Drive on Government Costs.

An example of how other cities are joining the national drive opened last March by the Chicago association to bring relief from the tax burden through reduction of governmental expenditures is furnished by Duluth, Minn.

H. L. George, Duluth business man, has written George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago association, telling of the formation of a committee of 77 leading citizens to participate in the movement directed at combatting extravagant governmental spending. This committee is composed of bankers, merchants, mining officials, wholesalers, professional men and others.

"Hitherto it would have been impossible to get the various elements to work together, but now all are enthusiastic to support the cause," Mr. George said.

Result of Tax Parley.

This committee was formed directly as a result of Chicago's midwest tax conference in March. Also enlisted in the cause is the Duluth Association for Tax Relief, which has a membership of 6,000, mostly among working people, small home owners and small business men.

E. T. Markle, general secretary of the Fond du Lac [Wis.] Association of Commerce, has written to Mr. Rossetter, assuring him that his organization will coöperate in the movement.

Then C. A. Hanson, secretary of the Waterloo [Ia.] Chamber of Commerce, has informed Mr. Rossetter that his organization has sent a petition, signed by 700 or 800 persons, to Washington asking that the government curtail its expenditures.

St Louis reports that an organized effort is being made to unite business throughout Missouri to get legislation which will produce drastic reduction in the cost of state and county government. This movement is being directed through the newly organized St. Louis committee on taxation and governmental expenditures of the Associated Industries of Missouri, which also includes in its campaign the extravagances of the federal government.

Pledge Support for Program.

In a statement of its purposes the committee pledged:

"An active effort in support of a legislative program designed to provide a business system of administration, abandonment of all useless and unnecessary boards, bureaus, and commissions, and the elimination of waste and extravagance and provisions for greater efficiency at greatly reduced cost."

The committee stressed "the dire need for a greater personal interest in the affairs of government by citizens of St. Louis and Missouri." It also said that "all agree that many agencies of the federal government can be abolished and others consolidated, resulting in greatly reduced cost without curtailing necessary service."

STIRS MOSLEMS

Shaukart Ali, 60 years old and weighing 300 pounds, whose marriage to divorced wife of British police officer took place in the presence of an armed guard after the Moslem leader's son had stopped one ceremony by threatening to cut off the priest's beard.

MOSLEM LEADER WEDS CHRISTIAN GIRL AMID GUNS

Son Threatens to Cut Off Priest's Beard.

BOMBAY, April 21.—(AP)—An armed guard was necessary today to carry out the Mohammedan marriage of the 60 year old Shaukart Ali, important Moslem leader, and a young attractive Englishwoman.

The first ceremony was stopped when a Mohammedan priest objected that the intended bride, Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, 25 years old, divorced wife of an Irish police officer, did not comply with religious speculations.

Threatens to Cut Off Beard.

The priest's decision was further bolstered by the threat of the Shaukart's son, Zahid Ahmed, to cut off the cleric's beard with a knife, the greatest possible insult to a Mohammedan.

But Shaukart Ali was persistent. He obtained services of another priest, threw a guard about the marriage mosque, and allowed only the closest friends to witness the ceremony.

These precautions were necessary because it was feared that the excitement in the Mohammedan community would prompt the aged leader's son or others to harm or kidnap the bride, who had renounced Christianity and embraced the Moslem faith.

The marriage took place only after the Shaukart had threatened to leave India if he were denied permission to wed by the ecclesiastical authorities.

With the pretty head of his English fiancée on his shoulder, the Shaukart declared that he would live in America or in England, but he would not renounce his love for the girl.

The 300 pound Mohammedan chieftain has been planning to leave in September anyway for a six weeks' lecture tour in the United States on oriental culture. The trip was planned at the suggestion of Col. B. C. Allin, port commission at Stockton, Cal.

Immediately after the ceremony the huge Moslem handed his English bride a dowry of a little over $1,000 and she went into the seclusion of Purdah.

Rajah Leads on Elephant.

JAIPUR, Rajputana, India, April 21.—(AP)—Riding a gorgeously accoutred state elephant with gleaming gold trappings, the 21 year old maharaja of Jaipur led his own wedding procession through the city tonight. On April 24 he will be married to the 16 year old Princess Jodhpur.

At this stage of the festivities the bride remained in Purdah, according to the old Hindu custom which forbids any man to look upon her face.

Tonight's procession was a pageant of oriental splendor. The maharaja's strings of pearls, diamonds, and rubies glistened in the light of the full moon and as he passed under arches of multicolored lamps festooned across the streets. There were 50 huge ceremonial elephants, 100 camels, and 300 bullocks all in splendid panoply.

Antique furniture has a charm that cannot be compared with anything else in the furnishing of a home. Decorative and useful in itself, it brings with it a peculiar enjoyment and satisfaction because of its association with the past. The enjoyment becomes greater, naturally, as the owner acquires information regarding the pieces he owns or hopes to own. Who made it? When was it made? How was it made? What theory of design lies behind it? What is its association with other periods and other craftsmen? To familiarize themselves with antiques and objects of art, thousands of people turn to the Antiques and Interior Decorations Pages which The Sun publishes on Saturdays. These pages . . . there are two or more every Saturday . . . have become established as the most authentic and comprehensive of their kind in the country. Here the lover of antiques and interior decorations can find regularly a wealth of valuable information and illustrations and the latest news of the exhibits, collections and other important events. These pages are edited by Charles Messer Stow, the widely known authority on antiques and interior decorations. Read them for reliable news of the antiques world. Read them for information and advice on antiques and decorations. For $1.50 you may have the Saturday Sun, containing these pages, mailed to you every week for a year.

Kelly-Springfields now priced as low as ordinary tires

Their superior tread and wall design, finer workmanship and materials mean more mileage and safer mileage. Buy these better tires now at lowest prices

NONE but the finest materials has ever been accepted for Kelly-Springfield tires. Inspection methods that would be considered ruinous in ordinary tire plants have been rigorously enforced. Continuous testing on mountain roads have measured Kelly-Springfields against other makes of tires in competition twice as grueling as ordinary usage. Those are some of the means that have earned Kelly-Springfield's world-wide quality leadership.

Now comes good news for car-owners. Without the slightest deviation from their quality standards, Kelly-Springfields can now be priced as low as ordinary tires. The low level of costs for prime materials and further manufacturing economies enable us to meet the lowest prices—even the prices charged for tires of unknown origin.

And Kelly-Springfield dealer-service is as efficient as ever. We sell only through responsible dealers whose skilful attention adds at least 25% in life and safe service to your tires. Get acquainted with the Kelly-Springfield dealer nearest you. Ride on Kelly-Springfields!

Deeping Pens New Novel in Favorite Theme

Love, Courage, Compassion His Philosophy.

"Old Wine and New," by Warwick Deeping [Knopf]. Published today.

WARWICK DEEPING, after twenty-five years of unsuccessful writing, achieved sudden and phenomenal success with "Sorrel and Son." Since then a certain large band of devoted readers has followed with assiduous attention everything he has written. If it were possible to put a novelist's philosophy in a few words, "love, courage, and compassion" would represent the intention and theme of Warwick Deeping and his books.

WARWICK DEEPING.

"Old Wine and New" is the story of Spencer Scarsdale, a little undistinguished weazel of a man who, after the war, goes back to his job as assistant editor of an unimportant magazine. He meets the young, ruthless, ambitious and beautiful daughter of an army friend, and falls in love with her, as desperately as middle age often becomes enamored of youth for its own sake.

She squeezes him dry, he loses his job and his money and reaches the depths of human despair. He regains his confidence in himself and in life through the sympathy and compassion of Eleanor Richmond, the keeper of his boarding house. On the publication of "Smith" the life of Spencer Scarsdale changes. In a life of literary, emotional, and material failures, the fate of his novel results in a reshaping, a repatterning of his own life.

Contrast of Two Attitudes.

In this novel there is a study in contrasts between the post-war and the pre-war attitudes. Though Deeping is not profound, and fortunately makes no attempt to be in this respect, he does, vividly, draw an understanding picture of baffled middle age in the midst of hurrying, uncaring youth, youth to whom the war means nothing.

Spencer Scarsdale, timid, optimistic, hesitating, is caught in the whirlpool of changed spiritual and emotional and intellectual values. He is tossed about, wounded, and finally thrown upon the shore where he flounders until ultimately he discovers his way out. The characterization of Scarsdale is convincing and, for the most part, restrained. The reader takes away with him the idea that Scarsdale found his happiness by learning that the old wine must not be mixed with the new. Not a world-upsetting theme, it is true, but an unpretentious one, simple, credible, real.

Julia Marwood is not so much a person as an idea Deeping has about the younger generation. She is the author's vision of the feminine portion of the post-war generation. She is black-haired, scarlet-lipped, selfish, dashing, go-getting, and spiritually unlovely. The breath of reality, however, does not touch her.

The other major woman character in the book is Eleanor Richmond, who also is somewhat obviously the kind of person that fits into the philosophy of "love, compassion, and courage" but is nevertheless much more credible than Julia. Perhaps the reader becomes slightly annoyed at her large simplicities, her inevitableness, her great calm "rightness," which the author elaborates and emphasizes in his descriptions of her, but she seems solid and convincing enough. She obviously is the "good life" from Deeping's philosophical point of view.

Scarsdale Holds Interest.

The story itself, knowing the amazing story of Deeping's own literary career, is not impossibly romantic. The soul of Scarsdale is tested and purged and tested again until it is fit to receive the blessings of life. And then the blessings rain thick and fast. The plot sustains its interest for the most part, though the reader tires of the faithful and detailed and realistic accounts of mediocrity. What holds the story together primarily, of course, is the interest in Spencer Scarsdale, the pathetic, likeable, little rabbit of a man who finally finds his happiness.

Warwick Deeping glibly plays up and down the scale of human emotion. In this book there are pathos, love, contempt, hate, compassion, understanding, and humor. Though there is a heavy sprinkling of sentiment, it is not too thick and continuous to become a downpour. This book, with its message of large simplicities, the deep quiet "inevitableness" of life, is not uninteresting and, though one scorns the undigested and somewhat cheap philosophizing, the treatment of the entire story is not ineffective in its quietness and restraint.

"Love Lightly," by Margaret Sangster [Brewer, Warren & Putnam], also published today, proclaims the creed by which the heorine lives to protect herself from the wounds of love from which her mother never recovered.

Paris Chic for Summer, 1932, Is Hand Crocheted

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The busy knitting needle and the agile crochet hook are paying dividends in Paris sports chic this spring and summer. If you know how to crochet get busy, girls. There are forty-nine kinds of smart articles you can make for yourselves.

There is the famous Schiaparelli crocheted silk scarf, which is illustrated today at the top of the sketch, done with a lacy stitch and in stripes of three colors, like pink, brown, and white. It's worn as shown, knotted in front and with flaring ends. Mme Schiaparelli herself wears this scarf with a dark blue suit.

And then there is the Schiaparelli brassiere sweater, shown in the center of the sketch. If you have one of those new, superhightopped skirts, and I hope you have, this sweater is the smartest thing in Paris to wear with it for sports. Schiaparelli makes it with a kind of open stripe stitch and finishes it at the neck, empire waistline, and short sleeves with knitted ribbed bands. It's lovely in string color when worn with a blue or red sports suit.

Last is one of Redfern's new lace crocheted wool sweaters, done in a pale yellow and with knitted ribbed bands around the sleeves, waistline, and neck. Those at the neck extend half way down the front of the sweater and are laced together with wool cords having balls of wool fringe at the end.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Live in Dreary Basement.

"I am very much in need of a bed, blankets, and carpets. We live above a basement which is damp and chilly even when it's fairly warm outside. I should be glad to repair any blankets and carpets which are not in good condition. MRS. M. S."

Articles which you may be ready to dispose of because they are worn and unsightly would suit the purpose here excellently. Won't you keep Mrs. M. S. in mind for such things?

Place for Discarded Curtains.

"We live on a little farm in Illinois, where we get our rent and milk for doing the chores. My husband has had no other work for three winters, and with three children to support it is pretty hard at times. We have a nice five room house, but there are no curtains in it and we have no money to buy them. I wonder if one of your readers has old ones no longer needed which we might have.

"MRS. H. D."

This is the time of year when such a request should be fairly easy to grant. Moving into a new apartment usually means that we find the old curtains no longer fit. Here's an excellent way to dispose of them and at the same time lend a helping hand where it is needed.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

With maturity came the sad knowledge that the witches and fairies of our youthful days were purely imaginary. However, our old friend South in playing yesterday's play-a-problem suddenly had his cynicism removed and his faith in fairy tales restored. Look what happened to him. This was the hand:

NORTH.
♠—None
♥—J,6,5,4
♦—9,8,7,6,2

WEST [Dealer].
♠—K,9,8
♥—A,K,Q,3,2
♦—5,4

EAST.
♠—A,Q,J,10,5
♥—10,9,8,7
♦—A,3

SOUTH.
♥—None
♦—K,Q,J,10
♣—Q,J,10,2

West dealt and bid a heart. North passed. East made a jump shift game demand bid of two spades. South overcalled with three diamonds. West bid three spades and to South's delight and amazement North bid four diamonds. East overcalled with four hearts.

Of course, South never conceived of such a development when he made his defensive diamond overcall. After West's support of the forcing spade bid South knows that his partner must be void of spades in view of his own long holding in that suit. Moreover, when North supports South's defensive bid of three diamonds South knows that North has two tricks. He, therefore, bid five diamonds with comparative safety. West passed. North passed. East, angered at his rough treatment, doubled. All passed.

West opened the ♥ K which declarer trumped with the ♦ 10. Declarer then led the ♣ 2 to dummy's ♣ K. Dummy led back the ♥ 5 which declarer trumped with the ♦ J, returning the ♣ Q which dummy overtook with the ♣ A. Dummy then led the ♥ 6 which South trumped with the ♦ Q. To the next trick South led the ♠ 2 which dummy trumped with the ♦ 2. Dummy returned the ♥ J which South trumped with the ♦ K. He then led the ♠ 3, trumping with the ♦ 6 in dummy. To the ninth trick dummy led the ♦ 9 which East captured with the ♦ A. East then led the ♠ A which dummy trumped with the ♦ 8. To the eleventh trick dummy led the ♦ 7, clearing the suit and then led the ♣ 8 which declarer took in his own hand with the ♣ 10 and taking the last trick with the ♣ J. North and South making their bid of five diamonds and one extra trick doubled.

You hardened cynics who simply will not believe in fairy tales will get a great deal of pleasure from observing that the declaration might be set by one trick if West makes an opening trump lead. Even so North and South save a game at small cost. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH [Dealer].

Shawnee Players to Give 'Rebound' at Club Tonight

The Shawnee Players, a little theater group of the Shawnee Country club members in Wilmette, will present "Rebound," a modern sophisticated comedy, tonight and tomorrow night at the clubhouse. Mrs. George Sande and Richard Howell will take the leading rôles; others in the case are Nelson Wettling, Miss Jane Triggs, Mrs. Roland Feltman, Allan Lee, Mr. and Mrs. George Brewer, John Thornburn and Miss Myrtle Torcom.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Crossing Error.

One day I accompanied my grandmother downtown to shop. At a crossing equipped with stop and go lights I took, as I thought, her arm to escort her across the street, telling her on the way over to order the windows washed the next day. When we arrived on the other side I heard a pleasant "Thank you," and, looking up, saw that I had escorted a strange woman across. She laughed heartily as I blushed. To add to my discomfiture, I looked back and saw my grandmother and another woman she stopped to talk to, laughing immoderately at my mistake.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

When beer brewer's son
Loves pro'bitionist's daughter,
Do you think they should wed or
That they hadn't oughter?

Again the Cinema comes across with A1 entertainment in the form of a German musical comedy that has both music and comedy. And more—a human, tragic little story that unfolds appealingly, lending a pervasive fragrance to the whole. The action is built about the convening of two rival conventions—Prohibitionist and Beer Brawers'—in Berlin.

Herr Heintze is a delegate to the first. With his wife, and a noodleful of "dry" arguments which he means to present to his everlasting glory, he descends upon the city—WHERE he is to learn that his daughter Hedwig, who has been there attending school, is engaged to the young brewer, Raumert . . .!

Donnerwetter!

Herr Heintze is exceedingly wroth and sounds a clarion "No" when beseeched for his consent to the engagement. . . .

—And just about then "Venus" appears to him in the person of a "Mrs. Panke"—of whose daughter he is the father. . . . !!! She's a vaudeville star and has been signed to do a swimming act at Bockbierfest—carnival time.

Mrs. Panke and her daughter Emmi are the ones who go to your heart. So much lies behind their faces, their attitude, their desperate, frightened, gallant gestures. . . .

Well, in due time all paths lead to Bockbierfest, where—but here's a good place to stop letting you in on the story.

The acting throughout is splendid and the direction a work of art. Herr Boese takes you right into the lives of his characters and makes them so real that he gives you the sensation of peeping through keyholes.

Episodes at the Bockbierfest are rollicking and spontaneous. Music, and acts of one sort and another, which are part of the carnival entertainment, are introduced naturally and with timeliness. And, speaking of music, watch for the song, 'I Think of My Youthful Days," as sung by a male quartet. Beautiful!

You will be struck by the intelligent casting. Sets, costumes, photography, sound—are all that you could ask. A number of English subtitles make the story perfectly understandable to every one.

Yep—you'll be keen about "Venus Beim Bockbierfest"!

"SUCH IS LIFE."

Presented at the Eighth Street theater.

Well, I went over to see the first Greek talkie—and singie—the other day. It's at the Eighth Street theater, and I'd write about it in Greek only my typewriter hasn't that sort of an alphabet, and, besides, there are other reasons.

When Greek meets Greek I imagine that conversation re the film will be favorable, for the piece was greeted with considerable enthusiasm and laughter Wednesday afternoon by a Greek audience. It must have been a Greek audience, for no other kind could possibly have known what the to-do was all about—and the program is no help, for the Greeks have a word for everything contained therein.

So, speaking from mere observation and sheer ignorance, I can only remark that I think "Such Is Life" is probably a laudable Alpha of Greek film production, but that there's a long row to be hoed between that and a polished Omega.

As for the acting—it's earnest and exaggerated. The singing, especially that rendered by the heroine, is of buzz-saw-like shrillness. The photography is about as was ours when we first started out. (The hero, by the way, looks amazingly like Jack Gilbert.)

See you tomorrow.

American Suit Wave Remains at High Tide

Imported Tweeds Appear for Summer.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Wonder what smart Parisian was tipped off that his American shopping public would go quite mad over suits for this season. Wherever he acquired this excellent information, it was either a shrewd guess or intuitive perspicacity that the time was ripe to increase the revenues for the suit makers!

Anyway, we are surely wearing and buying all the suits they can ship in . . . wherever you shop . . . wherever you walk, lunch, tea, and dine . . . you'll see the smartest women in suits.

Suits appear as if by magic, even when you firmly, and in words of as few syllables as possible, insist that you are not buying suits, but a frock or even a coat. And it is nothing at all to have a good looking suit pop up before your eyes when you are trying on hats. Lots of zealous salespersons, once sold on the smartness of suits for every one, surround any scurrying shopper with all kinds and colors, and the result is always the same—said shopper departs, mumbling incoherently to herself that suit sellers have a way with them!

While you willingly acknowledge the fashionable smartness of these suit ensembles, the most confounding surprise is the prices. To say they are low and respectfully reasonable for the most curtailed clothes allowance is stating the glad tidings very unenthusiastically. No matter what the tale of the oldest inhabitant discloses concerning former low apparel prices, the yarn can be matched this spring. This season you can really gloat over your buys and bargains.

Tweeds, for example. Last year, and the year before that, any tweed fancier would tell you that it took a good slice of the allowance to exchange for a simple tweed suit. But this year is another come down story. There are some unbelievable bargains that have just been released for the early shopper who will waste no time in snapping at them for her street wardrobe. These suits are knockouts. They are made of the finest imported tweeds—that spongy sort of stuff that is soft and woolly, not in a primitive scratchy manner but smooth and supple to the touch.

The colors are almost incredible—a pale, watery green, a vigorous kelly green, a bright dashing blue and a thick cream colored beige. But the best hit of the collection is the brown and white regular checked tweed pattern that is so smart for sportswear. Whoever planned these suits was smart enough to be helpful, for the long, loosely fitted coats are seven-eighths length lined throughout with harmonizing silk, so that you can wear them over any daytime frock. The skirts are very simple in design, with a high waistline effect and so made that there is a small flare around the lower edge. And, repeating the price news again, any of these suits are yours for a price that will positively make the most seasoned shopper swallow twice with surprise!

If you can safel, tear yourself away from all the suit attractions long enough to scout around for summer coat information you will see some early arrivals that will cause some fashion flutters. These new coats are of black and dark blue. They look so much like dresses that expert detectors have been fooled. They wrap well around the body, the necklines are high and wrapped, the blouse and sleeves are of sleek shining satin and the skirt portions are of soft thin woolens. These are the sort of coats you will wear this summer when it finally decides to come and stay a while.

Claims Corporation Offers Themes to American Students

Princeton, N. J., April 20.—[Special.]—A "national essay writing corporation," to provide essays and theses to undergraduates during a four year college course for a fee of $100 is now in the process of formation, according to a leading editorial in the Princeton Alumni weekly which will be issued on Friday. The editorial says that the organization is making an attempt to "raise college cribbing to the position of a major industry."

A representative of the organization who said he also had visited Yale and Harvard was here last week in an attempt to obtain "testimonials" for the service, the paper says. The man admitted that he did not expect much business from Princeton men, the editorial adds, but said that he wanted recommendations from the "big three" as a basis for starting the service in colleges in the middle west.

Mrs. Fairbank to Be Guest at Dinner Tonight

BY JUDITH CASS.

Although the dinner that the board of the Lying-In hospital will give tonight at the Tavern for Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, former chairman of the board, is not a surprise party in the sense that Mrs. Fairbank does not know about it, it is to have some surprise features, and from all I have been able to learn about them I am sure the party is to be very jolly and interesting.

The speakers will be President Robert M. Hutchins and Prof. Frank R. Lillie of the University of Chicago and Dr. Joseph B. De Lee of the hospital. Mrs. Ernst Freund, the new chairman of the board, and Mrs. William A. Nitze are in charge of arrangements for the dinner, and Mrs. Shreve Badger and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke have planned the table decorations, so it goes without saying that they will be chic and artistic, for the former "Dodo" Winterbotham and Elizabeth Nitze are noted for their good taste and artistic ability. Some of the 65 who will be at the party are Dr. and Mrs. Franklin McLean, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Adair, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kempner [she is the president of the Mothers' aid of the hospital], the Huntington B. Henrys, the Edward F. Swifts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the William B. Hales, the George T. Langhornes, Dr. Morris Fishbein, Robert H. McCormick, the John Seniors and the William R. Odells.

Janet Fairbank to Return in May.

Miss Janet Fairbank is expected to return in late May from Germany, where she has been continuing her vocal studies since shortly after Christmas. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, will be moving out to their summer place at Lake Geneva around June 1, but no doubt their town house will be kept open until after the Democratic convention here.

Mrs. Fairbank returned to Chicago yesterday from New York, where she spent a few days after attending the Washington meeting last week of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Miss Helen Gurley has refused to serve a third term as president of the Women's exchange, but she has agreed to accept the nomination of treasurer and to be a member of the finance committee, so she, always smart in distinctive clothes and a gardenia on her shoulder, and Shandy, her cunning white Sealyham, still will be walking daily from the home at 1416 State parkway to the exchange at 942 North Michigan avenue.

Miss Gurley has been a most efficient and capable president, one who is deep in the affairs of the exchange tells me, and the directors consider that she has carried it through the two most difficult years it has had

MYSTIC LEGENDS OF ORIENT VEIL ORIGIN OF TEA

Flavor Hinges on Skill in Cultivation.

"Tea is better than wine, for it leadeth not to intoxication, neither doth it cause a man to say foolish things and repent thereof in his sober moments."—Chin Hung, 2700 B. C.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

The discovery of tea seems to be hidden in the mists of conflicting legends. China places the discovery back in 2700 B. C.; Japan credits it to a pious disciple of Buddha; the monks in Thibet were said to have discovered tea when they noticed the good effect upon their goats from feeding upon a strange glossy leaved plant.

Tea, after the people of the orient had enjoyed its restful qualities for many centuries, gradually found its way to other sections of the world. The Dutch brought tea to Europe in 1610 and the English became acquainted with it in 1615. However, Arabia was familiar with the beverage about 850 and the Venetians learned of it in 1559. Tea for a time sold in England for from thirty to fifty dollars a pound. The leaves reached Russia in 1618 and arrived in America in 1650.

The principal sources of tea are Ceylon, China, India, Japan, Formosa, Java, and Sumatra. The plant for a time was cultivated in other localities, but those countries, after years of scientific research, have brought tea growing and tea manufacture up to its present point of perfection. To the natives of these lands it is the chief source of livelihood and the skill and knowledge required for successful tea cultivation are handed down from generation to generation.

Grown from Seedlings.

Tea is grown from seeds planted in nursery beds. When the young plants have reached a growth of six to eight inches they are transplanted, set out in rows about four feet apart in especially cultivated tea gardens. In the course of two years they grow to a height of from four to six feet, at which time they are trimmed to about a foot in size. The plants are pruned several times a season, so they will grow leaves instead of wood. They are kept pruned down to from three to five feet. If left alone the plant would grow into a tree twenty or thirty feet high. The plant is an evergreen shrub of the same botanical family as the camellia and resembles it. The blossom of the plant is somewhat similar to the orange blossom, white with a yellow center.

Plucking of the plants is begun in the third year, all leaves being hand picked by native men and women. The leaves plucked are those best adapted to the season of manufacture for which they are intended. Due to the varying climates of the various tea growing countries the quality of tea depends upon the season it is plucked. In Southern India, Java, Ceylon and Sumatra tea plants are plucked as often as every seven to ten days. But in Japan, Formosa, North India, and China the leaves are picked from April to November.

Climate Changes Flavor.

The tea plant is virtually the same in all countries, the difference in taste being due to the climatic conditions, cultivation methods and manufacturing processes. There are three general classes of tea:

Black, or fermented, green, or unfermented, and oolong, or semi-fermented. Despite general opinion, green and black tea leaves are picked from the same plant; the difference in the flavor is in the manufacturing treatment.

Though teamaking methods vary with the countries there are four chief processes used in the preparation of black tea. They are: Withering, rolling, fermenting and firing. The withering is usually done on wire shelves, with sunlight, artificial heat or damp weather. The purpose of withering is to make the leaf pliable so that it will roll without breaking or cracking. Rolling is done by machinery, for the purpose of squeezing the moisture out of the leaves, which leaves the tea in tiny balls, which must then be unrolled.

This unrolling, or fermenting as it is called, is done by spreading the leaves on racks and covering them with wet cloths. The final drying or firing is given the leaves with a temperature of about 200 degrees F. Green tea instead of being withered is steamed and is sent directly from the fermenting machine to the drier. The oolong or semi-fermented teas are withered and allowed to partly ferment. Otherwise the process of their preparation is the same as green tea.

Preparation Is Important.

Tea should be properly prepared to bring out its full flavor and aroma. One should use one teaspoonful of tea to a cup and one teaspoon additional for the pot. Place the required amount of tea in a warm earthenware, china or glass teapot and pour in a measured quantity of boiling water. Allow to stand from three to five minutes, then strain the tea into a second heated teapot for serving.

The use of a second pot assures one of a uniform brew and the last cup will have the same delicious flavor as the first cup.

If Minnie Makes Them No One Can.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Frivolity, among the pastries thy name is cream puff! But who of the scorners of human foibles and vanities can withstand the allure of these dainty fluffs of aërated sweetness that are the culinary art's most delectable creation?

No one who ever came within the sunny circle of a certain portly, broad smiling Minnie's genial hospitality, assuredly—a Minnie of polka dot fichu and starched white apron, of a voice that was a distillation of southern moonlight, the fragrance of jasmine, and plucked banjo strings.

Gurgling Pots and Pans.

A place to intrigue the imagination, with its promise of fairy tale surprises, was Minnie's kitchen, wonders forever emerging from humming kettles, singing, chuckling, gurgling pots and pans. And the acme of art produced there were the golden, honey sweet puffs that appeared on gala occasions as the tangible expression of Minnie's most gracious mood.

Acute pangs of a periodically recurring nostalgia finally evoked an inspiration. If delicate pastries could not safely be intrusted to an envelope in the mails, directions for making them might. We pass on an excerpt from the reply to our request:

"When your letter asking for Minnie's cream puff recipe came this afternoon I went right out to the kitchen armed with a pencil and notebook. Minnie was enthroned on the back stoop puffing away on the trusty old corncob. I read her your message. Minnie was 'awful pow'ful glad' to be remembered. These were her, prologue and instructions verbatim:

"'Reckon she'll want to make 'bout half de batch, 'bout eight puffies, don' yo' all, Miss 'Lizabeth? She might git 'digeshun if she et many moh.

Keep Right on Stirring.

"'Well, fustoff, she gwan haf to put a pan on de stove wif half a cup ob water. W'en hit's all set, ready to start b'lilin', in goes half a cup of butter. W'ile she's a-stirrin' jes' as ha'd as ebbeh she can, in goes a cup ob bread flour. She got to keep right on stirrin' until it don' stick no mo' onto de sides ob de pan. W'en it stop stickin' take it offen de stove an' sta't beatin' aigs in, fust numbeh one aig, den numbeh two aig, ontil feah aigs is beated in.

"'W'en hit's cooled off she got to hold her hosses foh a little bit. Best 'll be ef she coveh up de bowl ob paste an' leave it in de icebox all night ontil it gits stiffed up.'

"Since Minnie is about as adverse to 'skimpin'' on words as she is on ingredients, perhaps I had better condense the remaining directions," the letter continues.

Shape Into 8 Little Mounds.

"The following day, when the paste has 'stiffed up,' warm the baking sheet and rub it over with paraffin. Cool it again. Shape the paste into eight little mounds that are high at the center. Place them well apart on the sheet, since they expand to twice their original size. Let them remain in a cool, dry place (not the refrigerator) for a while until the surface has hardened somewhat.

"And no daydreaming, mind you, once they are in the oven! The oven must be hot and the puffs' position is on a rack at the bottom of it. If, after five minutes, baking seems to be progressing too rapidly slip a pad under the rack. Remove the shells from the baking sheet and cut off the tops as soon as they are taken from the oven.

"For the filling, whip cream, sweeten with powdered sugar, and flavor it with vanilla. When the tops are placed back on the filled shells, dust them with powdered sugar.

"In season, Minnie likes to slice strawberries and fold them into the whipped cream."

STRAWBERRIES FROM NORTH CAROLINA AND LOUISIANA ON MARKET

Strawberries from Louisiana and North Carolina mark another step in the approach of spring for Chicago. Frost damage in some sections of the south are credited with lowering the quality of some of the fruit, but retail prices here are expected to be low in comparison with other years and varied according to the size and quality of the fruit, dealers report.

CRUST: 20 Uneeda Graham Crackers (large)
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
FILLING: ½ cup sugar
1 tbsp. flour
⅛ tsp. salt
½ lb. cream cheese (or cottage cheese put through ricer)
1 tsp. vanilla
2 egg yolks, beaten
½ cup cream
2 egg whites, beaten stiff

Crumble crackers fine and mix with soft butter and sugar. Reserve ¼ cup of this mixture. Line deep buttered pie plate or small spring form with remainder by pressing mixture firmly against sides and bottom. Mix sugar, flour, salt and cheese thoroughly until creamy. Add vanilla and yolks of eggs and beat; add cream and mix again. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into crumb-lined pan. Spread with remaining crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) until center is set, about ¾ hour. 6 portions. Preparation, 12 minutes.

KIDNEY PIE! AH, WHAT MORE COULD ONE ASK?

Ideas for Many Other Tasty Meat Dishes.

BY VIRGINIA THOMPSON.

Sundry edible parts of meat—there's a menu inspiration for you! A kidney pie with quivery crust—a delicate scallop with tender sweetbreads—a cress-garnished platter of jellied tongue—not to mention savory liver sautéed with curly bacon and buttered onion rings—there's inspiration fourfold.

As a note of introduction for these extra meat parts which are becoming more and better known to our tables, let's deal with them separately. Many years ago glandular meats were believed to be injurious digestively. Now we consider them injurious—financially—yet that injury may be reduced by clever marketing and purchasing. Sweetbreads which cost in some localities as high as $1 for a pair may be purchased in others for perhaps one-third as much. Liver may not always be from that animal known as a calf—beef, pork and lamb are equally tasty. Tongues are taken from beef, calf, mutton, lamb and pork—so who said we might not have variety?

Stuffed Braised Hearts.

Considering them alphabetically, we have first the brains of the animals. These may be procured from beef, veal, mutton or lamb. They are delicate in flavor and texture, contain phosphorus and iron, as well as being a good source of vitamin B. They may be cooked by either dry or moist heat, are particularly tempting to the palate when served as a scallop or in croquettes. However, brains may also be cooked by a method of broiling, or pan frying.

Stuffed and braised hearts—simmered ever so slowly with fresh or cooked vegetables—these are good. The heart is lean and muscular for, after all, it has performed a lifetime's work, and is comparatively tender. Due to the fact that the heart has little fat tissue, it is best cooked slowly. It is an excellent starting point for a stew, and what with some cloves, a peppercorn or two, a wee bay leaf and a heap of vegetables—beef, calf, lamb, or mutton hearts may be glorified dishes.

Heart Chop Suey.

Then there's heart chop suey made with two beef hearts, a flock of mushrooms, real bamboo shoots and bean sprouts, and all the accompanying seasonings. Wash the hearts in cold water and rid them of the heavy veins and arteries. Then cut them into quarter inch slices, and again into narrow strips. Put some flour, salt, pepper together in a paper bag and jounce the heart strips around in the dry ingredients until they are thoroughly coated. After such a trundling the meat strips will be ready for a hot frying pan treated to meat drippings. Sear the meat well, cover with stock, and let the hearts lazily simmer for one to two hours. From that point proceed as you do for standard chop suey. Vitamins in these hearts—A, B and C—and a generous supply of minerals.

Our next glandular meat is the kidney, which we hope is no stranger to you. Kidneys are meat delicacies, and in a seasoned ragout or pie they leave nothing more to be desired by the gourmet. Some time try rolling up a spicy stuffing into little rolls of bread which must be fastened onto lamb kidneys, and then baking them for about 25 minutes in a hot oven . . . um . . . The food value is good, too, for kidneys are a favored source of iron and phosphorus, and their vitamins are A and B.

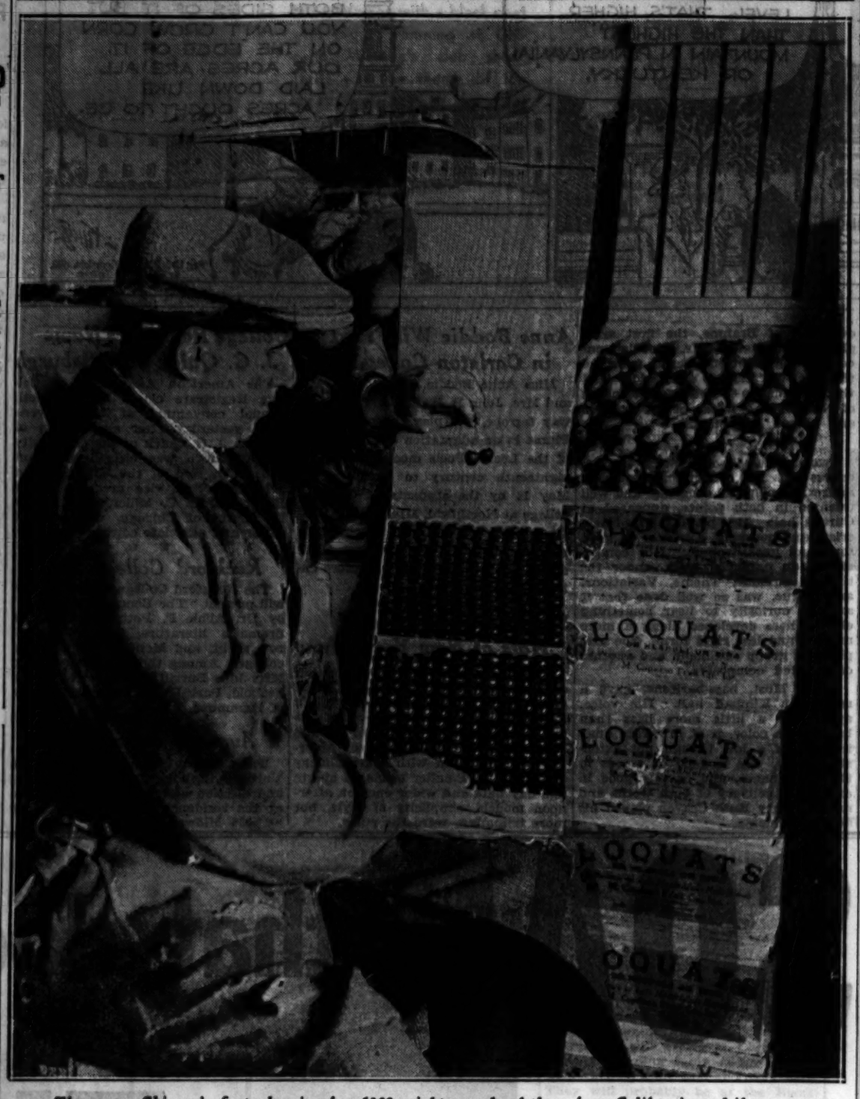
Preparing Liver.

And now you may renew your acquaintance with an old friend, liver. Liver from the steer and the calf, the hog and the lamb. Should you tire of sauteeing them, braise them with tomato juices, and that obliging group of root vegetables. Once again call the bay leaf, peppercorn, and stalk of celery into play, and never forget the excellent seasoning properties of our odoriferous friend, the onion and his brothers. Liver and Mr. Onion have had many a cooking lark together to the edible benefit of all concerned!

Sweetbreads are another glandular meat treat, and ordinarily we cooks only consider the calf's sweetbread. A sweetbread is the thymus gland of a lamb or calf and it consists of two parts which are held together by membrane and tubing. The stomach sweetbread is sometimes offered in meat market, but it is the other that is considered here. They should be purchased in a pair, so that the consumer will receive one sweet bread taken from near the heart [this the better one] and one taken from the throat. Cook them as soon after purchasing as possible, for sweetbreads have a marked tendency to spoil.

Place them in cold water once they have been brought into the home and let them stand for an hour or so. Drain and once more soak them in water, and then cook them in boiling salted water treated to a little acid. Cook gently for 30 minutes; take from the water, and plunge them into cold again. Now the cook may remove the membranes, and prepare them for casserole cooking, deep fat frying, or serve them with a variety of sauces. Incidentally, sweetbreads should always be parboiled for a period of 20 to 30 minutes before they are cooked in any other fashion.

FIRST CHERRIES COST A DOLLAR A POUND



These are Chicago's first cherries for 1932, eight pounds of them, from California, and if you ate any of them they cost $1 a pound retail. Vincent Groppo, salesman in the South Water market, inspects them before they go out to a retailer. At the right of the cherries are several boxes of loquats, a small, pear-shaped California fruit eaten fresh by Chicago's thousands of Italian families. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

BY MARY MEADE.

Last fall I printed a recipe for Bohemian cake. Since I have had lots of requests for the recipe from people who mislaid the newspaper clipping, I'm going to give it to you again, this time with full working instructions. This cake is a great favorite of mine, because it is so utterly different from others and because it is such an all around sort. It is made with little trouble and is so rich that it needs no frosting, but for company affairs it can be made simply regal with a mocha icing.

Put the fine knife on your food chopper and run half a pound of English walnut meats through it. Pour the little pool of oil that collects back into the nut meal. Separate six eggs and beat both the whites and the yolks thoroughly. To the yolks add one cup of sugar and one teaspoon of baking powder. Fold the stiff whites into the nut meal, and to this add the yolk and sugar mixture. Stir lightly together. Bake in a greased tin in a moderate oven.

If you do not intend to frost the cake, bake in a shallow pan, so that you can cut the cake into squares, like fudge. If you do intend to frost it, bake in layers and use a simple mocha frosting made from a teaspoon of vanilla, two tablespoons of strong black coffee, a quarter cup of canned milk [or cream]. Mix these liquids together and add to them, gradually, a mixture of two and a half cups of powdered sugar and two teaspoons of cocoa. If the cream or milk is not heavy enough it may be necessary to increase the amount of sugar.

So there's your Bohemian cake recipe, and don't lose it this time. By the way, this is an excellent foundation for petits-fours for special teas and bridge parties. Cut the cake into squares or small diamond shapes, frost with white icing and decorate with chocolate shot and ribbons of chocolate icing. Or bake in paper cups, and turn out the little rounds, frost with caramel icing and top with flowers made with a pastry tube.

STUFFED EGGS IN GELATIN MAYONNAISE.

1 tablespoon cold water.
1 cup mayonnaise.
6 hard cooked eggs.
3 tablespoons chopped cooked ham.
1 teaspoon pickle relish.
Salt.
Stuffed olives.

Soak the gelatin in water for five minutes, dissolve over boiling water, and add to mayonnaise. Halve eggs lengthwise and remove yolks. Add ham, relish and salt to the yolks, and mayonnaise enough to moisten and blend. Replace yolks. Cover the top of each half egg smoothly with mayonnaise. Slice olives and garnish eggs with the rounds. Chill. Serve on a bed of lettuce.

WILD RICE.

Wild rice used to be so rare in the city that it was practically impossible to get it, and then only at prohibitive prices. However, some philanthropists heard about our dearth of it, with the result that now it is quite easy to find and not particularly expensive, because a little goes a long way. To prepare it, wash it well and put in a kettle half full of cold water. Salt lightly and boil for 25 minutes. Drain, and let the rice steam dry. Do not stir while cooking.

One secret of getting ahead

You need good health to succeed. Many a man has seen his chances go because he was too sick to keep pace with competition. Often his poor health was due to constipation.

This ailment frequently causes headaches, loss of energy, sleeplessness. It takes the "punch" out of your day's work.

Try eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Science shows this delicious cereal supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

HELPS KEEP YOU FIT

SWEET MAJORAM! THAT'S SPICE OF HOME GARDENING

Or Perhaps It's Mint or Dill or Borago!

BY PAUL POTTER.

Look to your laurels as the contriver of unusual and particularly savory dishes this summer, madam, and be planning right now some spot in your flower or vegetable garden where a few choice herbs may be grown.

What could be more self-satisfying in the warm summer evenings that are not far away, than to serve cooling drinks to your guests with the nonchalant remark: "These mint leaves are from the garden."

Then as autumn draws nigh, you wander through the garden and find you have almost forgotten that away back last spring you started some common sage, whose leaves and tops can be dried to season the dressing for holiday fowl.

For Your Salads.

Even through the summer, your salads will be distinctive if you are able to skip out the back door and pluck a bit of florence fennel, or borago [heliotrope], or thyme.

Not content with these bits of planning for the table later in the season, you may enjoy, as do many others, a small bed of lavender, whose seeds may be sown at once, which will produce such a delightful fragrance in leaves and flowers. A small sachet bag of the dried flowers placed in the linen are sure to draw compliments from your guests.

We might also call attention to such other delightful herbs as sweet majoram, whose leaves and shoots are so tasty in seasoning, or may be dried for winter use. There is the true tarragon, whose leaves whether fresh or dried are so acceptable in flavoring soups, pickles and vinegar. Finely chopped tarragon leaves add much to salads as well.

Grow Some Dill.

If you come from one of those families where mother was always able to dill her pickles a bit better than any one else, then grow a bit of dill [anethum graveolens], whose seeds of pungent odor will flavor the vinegar or dill the pickles just like you want them.

Sweet fennel, you recall, grows delightful leaves that make unique garnishes and may be boiled in fish sauces. And don't forget burnet, whose leaves add variation from mint in cooling the drinks, or to flavor soup and salads.

Many of these plants have most unusual foliage and attractive flowers. They make admirable borders for the flower garden, or may be tucked away in a bit of the vegetable plot.

Drinking Wine Is Serious Matter with the French

BY SASHA PETROVNA.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—The French have a village for sale. Price $19,000. You can buy the whole town, and it's in the Burgundy country, where the finest wine is made.

I aim this paragraph at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. I do so because I met, in Poughkeepsie last week, a man who appreciates both villages and wines.

I met him in Gov. Roosevelt's library. We talked of tobacco, and oysters, and ducks, and Burgundy. He deplored some of the old-time things that modern America has forgotten about smoking, eating and drinking. I want to tell you what this friend of Gov. Roosevelt considers the finest meal America ever knew. It began with Sea Tag oysters. You can't get them any more. They were grown by a wealthy Marylander who just loved oysters—he never made any money out of them.

Sparkling Burgundy.

Then came an almost lost delight called "ruddy duck." That meant a special variety of duck from Chesapeake Bay, roasted extremely rare and served with wild rice and fried hominy.

"I seem to have left out something," said the gentleman who was telling me all this. "There was one final touch that made the meal perfect. Now what was it?"

Rules for Drinking, Too.

And that was it. So what's the use? What is the use of harking back to such fond food until these prohibition days are done?

But since we are talking wine, let me describe how the French experts drink wine. The first two glasses are taken with hard boiled eggs, unsalted, or plain cream cheese; super-experts prefer a crust of bread dipped in the salad dressing, which they prepare while waiting for dinner to be served. That salad dressing is a ritual in itself and is tested, so to speak, along with the wine.

So the first glass or two really serve as a sort of prophylactic, cleaning all other tastes from the mouth, clearing the way for the meal to come. Munch the bread; drink the wine "bottoms up." No sipping allowed.

There are rules also for drinking the next glass, which goes with the meat. Between bites take a good generous mouthful of wine and smack your lips. Smack hard! Only by that procedure will you get the full bouquet of the wine, which reaches your olfactory glands through the back part of your mouth.

Ah, the Third Glass.

The third glass, either with your salad or with cheese, should bring you the perfume of the wine. Drink slowly. Get your nose well into the glass, and don't swallow too soon. The last glass—you need practice to get the most out of this—gives you that quality of the wine which the French call its robe. The dress, or texture of the vintage, in other words.

For this last glass, the wine should be a little warmer, and with it should come the contentment of a fine job carefully done.

I wonder who will buy that village in Burgundy?

Beauty Marks Staircases of Chicago Homes

Recall Famous Lines of Longfellow.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"From my study I see in the lamplight,
Descending the broad hall stair,
Grave Alice and laughing Allegra
And Edith with golden hair."

Charming, these lines from Longfellow! They might well have had their setting in one of our lovely old city mansions, I thought the other day at luncheon at the Fortnightly. For has any one ever failed to admire "the broad hall stair" that sweeps majestically upward in this handsome Georgian clubhouse at 120 Bellevue place?

To the entering guest it spells the proud traditions of the Bryan Lathrop family for whom John McKim designed the home in 1892—it also bespeaks the ease and graciousness of a club that is the meeting place of quiet friends, a rendezvous for those who love the social hour and the gentle art of the essay.

This stair, by the way, is reproduced in each one of the volumes in the Fortnightly library, for it was chosen to illustrate the club bookplate—as it rises to the first landing where a graceful colonial settee that has been with the club for years and years invites the guest to linger.

But this is only one of the handsome or interesting staircases in Chicago. There is the great flight of steps that dominates the old Potter Palmer castle on Lake Shore drive, and the handsome stair in the Richard T. Crane home at the entrance to Lincoln park. Out in Winnetka in the home of Mrs. Charles Hubbard is one of the graceful circular stairs found in so many New England homes.

Pass a superstitious person on any one of these stairways and he will fear calamity, or dare to stumble on your way up a flight and you will be sentenced to the direful fate of foregoing matrimony for at least a year. Where these strange ideas came from has never been learned, but undoubtedly they go away back in history to the days when stairs were dark, steep, and enclosed by walls—a dangerous place to meet an enemy—instead of being the decorative feature they are today.

Of course the stairway came into being in ancient days when the first buildings of more than one story were erected, but it waited upon the middle ages to achieve architectural importance. There is still considerable uncertainty as to which is the oldest in existence—it may be the flight of granite steps up the sacred mountain of Tai Shan in Shantung, China, or one of the "walled in" staircases in the Egyptian pylons. There is also the double flight of steps in the palace terrace at Persepolis showing the skill of Persians in the sixth century B. C.

In the middle ages staircases appeared frequently in churches having high choirs above the crypts and in winding form in castle towers. The renaissance gave the stairway architectural dignity and even splendor, first in the Italian palaces and later in the French châteaux, where both the spiral type as at Blois and Chambord and the spiral rectangular were treated with magnificence. If you have visited the famous château country, certainly you have not forgotten Chambord, with its 13 staircases and 400 rooms—a château that took 1,500 workmen 30 years to complete.

THE STAGE

George White's "Scandals," the eleventh annual production in this series of revues, will begin its Chicago engagement at the Civic Opera house Sunday evening, May 23. The leading entertainers in the company are Rudy Vallee, Willie Howard, Eugene Howard, Everett Marshall, Ray Bolger, Ethel Barrymore Colt, and the Gale Quadruplets. Among the other players are Joan Abbott, the Loomis Sisters, Ross Maclean, Barbara Blair, Fred Manatt, Ruth Gordon, Donald Tannen, Hazel Boffinger, Joseph Vitale and James Howard.

A sound amplifying device will be installed in the opera house for the engagement, and Mr. White issues a guarantee that occupants of the last rows will be able to hear as well as those in the front. The large seating capacity of the opera house permits a "popular" scale of ticket prices.

"The Devil Passes," a comedy by Benn W. Levy that has been favorably received in New York, will begin an engagement at the Selwyn theater Sunday evening, May 8. This play will come to Chicago with its brilliant original cast, including Arthur Byron, Basil Rathbone, Mary Nash, Robert Loraine, Diana Wynyard and Cecilia Loftus.

Walter Hampden announces an extra performance of his revival of "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Blackstone theater next Sunday night. Contracts for his appearances in Detroit and Buffalo prevent an extension of the highly profitable engagement through a second week. During the week of May 8 he will give "Cyrano" at the Majestic theater, Brooklyn, to end his transcontinental tour.

The winners in the preliminary round of performances in the Chicago Drama league's tournament of plays by amateur groups at the Goodman theater were selected yesterday. They are: The Chicago College Club players in "The Long Christmas Dinner," by Thornton Wilder; the Georgian Little theater in "El Cristo," by Margaret Larkin; the Jewish Peoples' Institute players in "The Dybbuk," by S. Ansky, and the Paquin Players in "Broken Chord," by Lawrence Paquin.

These plays will be repeated in the final round of the tournament, to be held at the Goodman theater next Sunday night. The winner that evening will be awarded the Edith Rockefeller McCormick cup. The Jewish People's Institute players have won this trophy two years in succession, and a third victory will give them permanent possession. Awards of minor prizes in the tournament will also be announced next Sunday night.

Katharine Cornell, who is giving "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" at the Harris theater, begs for the courtesy of promptness from her patrons. She states: "It is important to the complete understanding of the story of the play that its earliest lines must be heard." Night performances begin at 8:15, matinées at 2:15, and Miss Cornell follows this time schedule sharply. C. C.

Stock Pleads for Audiences, Not Big Gifts

Season Will Close This Afternoon.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Amid the glories of Beethoven, Brahms, and Wagner the Chicago Symphony orchestra played the last Thursday night concert of its season at Orchestra hall last night. It may be the last Thursday night of all time; it may not. At any rate, when it has finished repeating the program this afternoon the forty-first season will be over, and beyond that there is no news.

This season has been the most brilliant that the orchestra has had in many years, perhaps in all its existence. Whatever reason there may be for a discouraging response from the public on Thursday nights, the fault has not been Mr. Stock's nor the orchestra's. They have done their share and more. They have assembled the world's finest music and played it in a way befitting the world's finest orchestra. Their banner has been kept proudly flying.

That the discouragement has been felt by them was voiced by Mr. Stock when the program was over. After a loud fanfare by "this splendid band," as he called the men, and equally loud applause by the audience, he made a speech to the effect that what they needed was not so much a gift of money, which might be raised elsewhere, but support by the many. Andrew Carnegie told him many years ago in Pittsburgh, said Mr. Stock, that he alone could support an orchestra, but that unless other people took enough interest to attend the concerts he could see little use in making the donation. With this parting thought he wished them a pleasant summer.

In detail, the Beethoven part of the program was the third "Leonore" overture; of Brahms, the first symphony; of Wagner, Mr. Stock's concert arrangement of excerpts from the third act of "Tristan and Isolde" and the prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," music of the masters and played by masters.

Two recitals were given in the course of the evening. Catherine Saurer, pianist and composer and well talented in both points, appeared at Curtiss hall. Her playing was brisk, crisp, and accurate, a matter of good tone and good technic. Her composition, an extended work under the title of Prelude, Theme, Variations, and Fugue, was so well done that it aroused curiosity to hear something else of hers developed along a more modern and less rigid form. She also played a group of Chopin and another of selected composers.

Glenn Most, bass-baritone, gave a recital at Kimball hall. His voice, apparently a little more bass than baritone in color, is of first rate quality and of a low though not extensive range. He is good on words in three languages, and equally good in expressive delivery of both words and music. Mary Ruth Craven played his accompaniments.

Anne Boddie Wins Part in Carleton College Play

Miss Anne Boddie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Boddie of 1710 Juneway terrace, will play the part of Sir Plume in an adaptation of "The Rape of the Lock," Poe's mock epic of the eighteenth century to be given on May 14 by the students of Carleton college at Northfield, Minn. Miss Boddie is a sophomore and took part in several plays at New Trier High school and at Northwestern before entering Carleton.

Medicine Gets New Place in Gland Control

Perfected Extract Used to Guide Life.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—The medicine bottle moved up another peg as a substitute for endocrine glands in experiments reported tonight from the University of California.

Endocrines supply the body hormones, minute chemicals containing usually carbon, oxygen, nitrogen, and some other elements with a dash of sulphur. They control largely development of sex, of energy, some phases of personal appearance, and occasionally even sanity.

The California discoveries are results of effective methods of purifying the extract of one of these guands, the pituitary, so that as medicine it has nearly the same effects as the gland itself.

They are reported in Science, official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Herbert M. Evans, Kary Meyer, Richard Pencharz, and Miriam E. Simpson.

The pituitary lies between the brain and the roof of the mouth. One of its hormones is the growth control medicine, which has been given successfully by physicians to a few abnormal children. It is also a master gland, stimulating and regulating the other endocrines.

By removing the pituitaries of rats the Californians caused cachexia, a devitalized condition. Then they gave the animals purified pituitary growth hormone, freed from all of its usual sex regulating fraction.

The sick rats recovered their growth so promptly and uniformly that in size they were indistinguishable from normal animals, except for sex development.

ONE SOAP that does the work of TWO

Here's a soap that soaks heavy cottons clean—yet protects silks!

At first many women could hardly believe it. "What?" they exclaimed. "Can we use the same soap for heavy grimy cottons and fine silks?" Now they're singing the praises of the new improved Chipso Flakes.

A new kind of soap

For the first time, these women have a hard-working laundry soap that soaks stubborn dirt out of towels, play-clothes, boys' blouses—and at the same time actually preserves the original color and life of their daintiest silks and finest woolens! Now they have a speedy dishwashing soap that actually keeps hands smooth and soft!

Now you won't have to sort out your dainty underthings, the children's Sunday frocks, for special washing with a special soap. You can wash them in Chipso's rich creamy suds, and later use the same suds for heavier, grimier things . . . less rubbing, brighter colors, whiter clothes!

Your hands prove it's safe

Remember, a soap that roughens your hands when you wash dishes is hard on your clothes. It will make materials "tender"—wear them out before their time. But Chipso keeps your hands smooth, soft, young-looking. You know it cannot harm delicate colors or fabrics.

Chipso's rain-soft suds take the dirt out and give you a wash to be proud of. Everything will wear longer.

Your grocer has the new Chipso now. It comes in the same blue box with the yellow stripe, but inside the flakes are finer than ever.

"QUICK as lightning, GENTLE as rain"

SAFE FOR FINE THINGS

QUICK FOR DIRTY CLOTHES
Chipso makes clothes as white—washes as fast—as strong powdered soaps.

Don't endanger your clothes with soaps which you cannot trust no matter how attractively priced. Clothes cost money. Don't expect just any box labeled "soap chips" to give you Chipso's extra-rich suds, Chipso's safety. The few cents apparently saved on the price of cheap soaps can easily be "penny wise, pound foolish"—when you pay the price of ruined clothes, roughened hands, and lack of real suds for your money.

HAVE YOU TRIED CHIPSO LATELY?

Mrs. Fairbank to Be Guest at Dinner Tonight

Former Head of Lying-in Hospital.

since it was started in 1878, with great courage and vision.

The new president, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, has been associated with the work of the exchange for years, designing most of the lovely things for which the exchange is noted, but this is the first time the directors have been able to persuade her to take the position of president.

Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy, and Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne are the new vice presidents; Mrs. William Press Hodkgins, the recording secretary; Mrs. John L. Cochran, the corresponding secretary; Miss Janet Ayer, Mrs. Harold Beacom, Miss Elizabeth Brown, and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, new directors, and Mrs. Cudahy and Mrs. Philip Reed are Miss Gurley's associates on the finance committee.

The annual meeting will not be held until next Monday, but there will be no opposition to the ticket proposed by the nominating committee, so it is quite safe to list the new officers now.

Roger Sherman Wedding Tonight.

A wedding of interest here that is taking place tonight in the east is that of Miss Ingrid Gwendolyn Thomen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto John Thomen of St. George, Staten island, and Roger Fowler Sherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Booth Sherman of Winnetka.

The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in St. John's church, Clifton, Staten island, and will be followed by a reception at the Thomen residence. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman are in the east for the wedding and also the bridegroom's two brothers, Lucius Jr. and Stuart, and the latter's wife. Mr. Sherman and his bride will be at home after May 15 at 2123 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

Mrs. Honoré Palmer arrived in Chicago from Paris yesterday and is at the Palmer house with Mr. Palmer and her sons and daughter-in-law, Honoré Palmer Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Potter D'Orsay Palmer.

Harry Gordon Selfridge of London and his daughter Violette, Vicomtesse de Sibour, will arrive in Chicago on Sunday morning for a two day visit with their friends and relatives here. They will probably be at the Blackstone hotel.

Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks and her daughter, Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, who have been at their Lake Shore drive apartment for most of the winter, are now with Mr. Fairbanks at their Indianapolis residence.

Daniel Peterkins Enjoying Trip.

Mrs. Daniel J. Peterkin and her daughter, Miss Jeanette Peterkin, who have been vacationing in Europe since February, are expected to return to Chicago about May 12. They've been having a grand time, according to reports of their travels. They motored through Italy around Easter time and are now on their way to Berlin from Vienna. They will spend a few days in Paris, too, before going over to England to sail for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Clark of the Ambassador East have been at their Barrington estate for several days, but they will be back in town for several weeks before moving out to the northwestern suburb for the summer.

Miss Jean Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Armstrong of Winnetka, arrived at home yesterday from a year's travel and study abroad.

The junior auxiliary of the Children's Memorial hospital will conduct its annual sports clothes sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop, which is run at 27 East Ohio street for the benefit of the hospital, today. Miss Elizabeth Drake will be in charge.

Mrs. Jacob Baur will preside at a tea to be given this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Bendix galleries by the Chicago George Washington Bicentennial commission to discuss further plans for the Army and Navy Inaugural ball to be given April 30 at the Stevens hotel.

Recital at Goodman Theater Tonight.

The audience tonight at the recital to be given at the Goodman theater by Milla Dominguez, Mexican soprano, and Clarita Martin, Spanish dancer, will be a mixture of Mexicans and Winnetkans, no doubt, for in private life the singer is Mrs. Adolfo G. Dominguez, wife of the Mexican vice consul in Chicago, and the dancer is Mrs. Mellen C. Martin, wife of a Chicago lawyer and a resident of Winnetka.

The Mexican ambassador, Dr. J. M. Puig-Casaurano, and his wife will arrive this morning from Washington to attend the recital which is given under the auspices of the international relations committee (to promote understanding and good will between the people of the United States and Mexico). A reception for the ambassador and Mrs. Puig-Casaurano will be given in the lobby of the theater after the recital.

Invitations arrived in yesterday's mail for the three one act plays to be given a week from Sunday night by the Club's players' committee, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Walton. The program will begin at 9 o'clock and will be followed by supper.

Mrs. Franklin M. Miller of 1500 Lake Shore drive departed yesterday for a ten day stay in Washington. The national convention of the League of American Pen Women will take up part of her time there.

Announced for next winter are the twelve lectures of the Town Hall series, all to be given on Saturday mornings at 11 o'clock at the Drake. Among those who will be heard in the series are Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, the scientist; the Hon. V. Sackville-West, author, and her husband, the Hon. Harold Nicolson, diplomat and author; Richard Boleslavski of the Moscow Art theater, Baroness Keikicki Ishimoto, Japanese feminist; Stuart Chase, economist; Clemence Dane, English author and actress; Max Eastman, poet and psychologist, and Vicki Baum, German writer.

From Glendale, Cal., comes the announcement of the marriage of Miss Irene Louise Victor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey Victor of 1201 Sheridan road, Evanston and Pasadena, to Orrin W. Clifton, son of Mr and Mrs. A. R. Clifton of Monrovia, Cal. The wedding took place on April 16 in the "Wee Kirk o' the Heather" at Glendale, the Rev. Josiah Sibley of Pasadena, formerly of Chicago, officiating.

The bride is a graduate of the Girls' Latin school here and of Holmsby college and the bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Southern California. He also attended the University of Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton will live in Pasadena.

Synthetic Cells Are Clew to New Body Substance

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Evidence of a new explosive chemical in human protoplasm, a nitro compound resembling modified dynamite, was given to the American Philosophical society today by Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland.

He said this life nitro may account for both overwhelming shock and exquisite sensitivity. His clew came from his "autosynthetic cells," the droplets which he created in test tubes two years ago, that grow, reproduce, move about, eat, and breathe like living things.

The Crile artificial life cells were made by placing the dried and extracted proteins and fats of the brain in a salt liquid. He said that it was particularly significant to discover that for a period of eight months successive generations of these cells could be produced provided proteins extracted from the brain of the same species of animal as that from which the original extracts were secured were fed from time to time.

This suggested that the brain and other organs manufacture something specific to maintain the energy of their own type of cells.

Packed House

Members of the Chicago Woman's club packed the club theater yesterday afternoon to see the spring "thrift" fashion revue that displayed inexpensive models. There was considerable applause as the mannequins revealed ravishing frocks and coats priced from $17.50 to $49.50. Black and white prints worn with stiff straw sailors tilted in the approved new manner, end-of-the-day frocks also in prints, and the fine sheer materials in plain colors or prints with contrasting or matching straws or turbans were displayed. Particularly popular were sports costumes, for example, a white crush linen suit, blue blouse of handkerchief linen, and white hat and gloves. Brown and beige, or brown and yellow, were favorite color combinations.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The Whisperer Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. A bandit, working with few accomplices, has kidnaped and held for ransom numerous wealthy persons. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set, by means of which the bandit speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere, because death results for the captive if the directions are not carried out.

Joyce Merrow is a victim of "The Whisperer." She is engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist. In Roland's keeping are valuable jewels, donated to Sir Henry to be sold for charity. Roland is forced to steal them for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band, and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland is trailed by detectives. Chief inspector Larpent sees through his makeup, but decides to let him play his game. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is assigned the task of collecting ransom from Lord Whidden, whose wife is held captive. He completes the job, but Lord Whidden delivered plain paper instead of notes. Roland is then ordered to drive Lady Whidden out to the open country and drop her off.

INSTALLMENT XI.

AN INNOCENT MURDERER.

Roland laid down the paper.

"H'm. They've missed out all the exciting bits. Nothing about gas bombs. Nothing about the fellow firing and only handing over after I'd landed him one. . . . I suppose the police wanted to keep that part of it quiet."

That conclusion was true enough as far as it went. The police in giving the information to the reporters had deliberately said nothing about Lord Whiddon offering resistance—had suppressed the fact that the ransom had not been paid. It was done in the forlorn hope that something might go awry with The Whisperer's arrangements—that he might release Lady Whiddon before he found that he had been tricked over the ransom. But in their hearts they were convinced that the unhappy woman would be murdered.

"Good Lord! She's fainted! I'll have to get her out."

At 9:30 Roland strolled to the appointed street. At 10 o'clock exactly he passed the cinema and found the huge landau parked by the curb.

He slipped into the driver's seat and threaded his way through London to the Great West road.

Obeying instructions, Roland drove on to the Great West road and stopped to adjust the headphones. He waited no more than a couple of minutes before the voice of The Whisperer sounded in his ear.

Roland could only just hear the last words, for the voice became fainter.

"Number Six, if you cannot hear me clearly, pull down the level you will find just below the rest from which you took these headphones."

Roland felt for the lever and pressed it down. Immediately the voice became clear again.

"Number Six, you have pulled down the lever—that has registered here. You will probably be able to hear me better. I shall speak again in three minutes."

"That lorry you saw blocked the police car. Get back to the main road."

Two more turns and he was back on the Great West road and now let the great car build up its speed. He knew the road well for at least a hundred miles—knew almost every twist and turn of it. He was doing close upon eighty miles an hour when The Whisperer spoke again.

"Number Six, continue to drive as hard as you can for about twenty miles. Then stop at a convenient cross roads and let Lady Whiddon get out. You will have to open the door for her. I shall keep in communication with you until you report that you have put her off."

Twenty miles at that speed, even allowing for running slow through the villages, meant little more than twenty minutes.

After leaving Maidenhead while still some fifty miles from Reading, he ran into a stretch of deserted country that seemed good for his purpose. He slowed as he neared a cross roads, made the crossing, then stopped.

He took off the headphones. His movements now were slow. It went against the grain to leave this still young and beautiful woman alone on a deserted country road at 11 o'clock at night.

He stepped from the seat on to the road—then opened the door.

"Lady Whiddon!"

There was no answer. The coach was in utter darkness and he did not know where to find the switch for the dome light. He fumbled for a torch.

He slipped into the coach, slipped his arm under her shoulder. As he did so the torch by chance shone full on her face, on the wide open eyes.

"O, my God!"

He knew then that she had not fainted. Lady Whiddon was dead.

He sprang into the road and slammed the door, horrified and utterly at a loss. It must be heart failure or—

He reached for the headphones and put them on. Then underneath the headphones he found the instrument like a large electric torch.

He put his back to the side of the car as instructed, pressed down the lever just below the mouthpiece and then:

"Hello. Number Six. Can you hear me?"

"Yes. Are you in trouble?"

"Lady Whiddon is dead."

"Yes. You killed her when you pulled down that lever. That 'ever turns part of the exhaust into the coach. She died painlessly."

Roland felt as if he had received a crashing blow on the chest.

"You—you told me it was to hear you more clearly," he faltered.

"That was a trick, my friend! I had to take steps to prevent your betraying me. For all I know to the contrary, you may have been determined to betray me—right up to this moment. You cannot betray me now because the law cannot make a bargain with a murderer. And in the eyes of the law you are now a murderer. . . . Hello! Stop talking, Number Six. I——"

"Look here——"

"Stop talking, Number Six! . . . Hello, Number Six. I've had a message that the police car is running through Maidenhead. You probably have three or four minutes. Throw the body out and run for it. That car will go faster than any man can drive it on the road. You'll have to take a risk or two."

Roland tore off the headphones and flung them on the seat. "Throw the body out and run for it." If he were caught with the dead body he would be hanged. He took a step to the coach, touched the handle and drew back, his nerve failing. It was not the physical shrinking from a corpse—it was the moral horror of looking on the ghastly work, for, apparently, it was his hand that had done it.

He stood, one hand on the side of the car, swaying with nausea. For a moment the fight had been utterly knocked out of him.

Headlights flashed on the road coming from London. "Three or four minutes," The Whisperer had said. What did it matter?

Like a drunken man he lurched and fell into the driver's seat. The headlights of the other car were very close now. He could hear the engine—could hear the brakes.

The other car swung right across his bonnet, hemming him into the side of the road, making it impossible for him to move a foot forward. At the same time, by his own beam, he recognized Detective Sergeant Hendricks.

It was some queer little irrelevant idea that galvanized Roland Blatch—the idea that he was caught like a rat in a trap.

Quite suddenly he had forgotten The Whisperer, forgotten his own horror—everything except the paramount necessity to escape.

To move forward was impossible. With the eye of a trained athlete, he timed everything and played his part without flurry. Detective Sergeant Hendricks had leapt from the police car and was coming towards Roland—was within three feet of the car when Roland slipped in the reverse and trod on the gas.

The detective was within a foot of the running board when the landau leapt backwards. Not very fast—eighteen miles an hour, perhaps—but much faster than Detective Sergeant Hendricks could run.

The first part, Roland knew, would be quite easy. He swung around at the cross roads and headed back in the direction of London. It would be forty seconds or more before Detective Sergeant Hendricks could get back to his car and turn to follow—in that time he would be over a mile away.

Ahead was a long stretch and he pushed his speed up to eighty-five. As he neared the end of the straight stretch he saw police lights on his reflector.

"We can't make a race of it—we'll have to try monkey tricks!" he muttered. All sense of horror was now lost in the thrill of the chase. He was putting his wits, his nerve and his knowledge against picked men and there was no room for the memory that behind him lay the body of a woman most foully murdered.

The straight stretch ended in a slight bend. He slowed for the bend, taking it at forty miles an hour, ran along for a hundred yards, out of sight now of the police car—then, using his brakes to skid the corner, turned sharp left up a narrow road on a fairly steep incline.

Avoid Airing Faults of Self and Boy Friend

Remember That Silence Is Golden, Says Doris.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I don't know whether all girls do this sort of thing, but some of them deem it is smart to reveal everything about themselves in the grand Freudian manner. Pass the tip along to them, Miss Blake, that men enjoy illusions about their women, even if they have to create them out of nothing. As for analyzing us, which this same type of intellect seems to take pleasure in, we could also do without having our faults spoken out loud. JEFF."

"Jeff," you surprise me! I didn't think any smart young woman would be guilty of speaking either her or your faults aloud. It has been suggested from time to time that premarriage candor coupled with exposure of faults would minimize the number of shattered illusions. But we humans are all alike in that we would prefer to hold to the illusions as long as we can.

It is bad stuff, though, analyzing your secret self to a man. If it does nothing more than to remove the mystery of one's personality, it does enough to condemn it. Another thing, it is wiser to try to correct one's faults than to point them out boldly. Even to physical faults, it is better to keep them conversationally submerged.

Suppose, for instance, you were having trouble with your arches, and you insist upon telling about them. You work up a flat-foot picture of yourself in the listener's mind. Or, suppose your nose, your eyes, your hands are your private sorrows. Keep the fact to yourself! Only by calling attention to the feature or features frequently do you impress on the listener's mind the fact that they are all you say.

As for pointing out a young man's faults with the freedom of an analyst, it would be a procedure surely suicidal to romance. If you are out to reform the young man and his faults there are other ways to cope with them than by boldly analyzing them.

I imagine "Jeff's" contacts with the type of girl from whom his note draws inspiration must be limited. Possibly boiled down to one lone girl he wants to believe to be endowed with everything he has endowed her with. And while there is no objection to setting a man right on personal convictions and prejudices you may have, better let him hold to the illusions as long as he can.

Unwise to Force Speed in First Reading Trials

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Question: "My little boy, who is 6, reads so poorly that I am discouraged. We work so hard at it when he comes home from school. But sometimes I wonder if he is not as bright as I thought him. Is this usual?"

Answer: Yes, it is.

Reading is a queer thing. Any one who has taught little children to read realizes this. Children will plod along sometimes for a couple of years apparently making no headway—then like a flash, like getting a knack, it just comes. And they begin to read. Of course, sometimes children are poorly taught.

But you have nothing to worry about for several years! In some of the progressive schools children aren't taught to read at all in any formal way. They get it gradually and it is not unusual for them to be 9 or 10 before they read with any ease.

I would suggest that you stop working your little boy so hard at it when he comes home. It makes him overanxious when you feel as you do and minds don't work well when there's tension. Be casual about it.

Stop talking about it, except to tell him that it will come and one day he'll be reading beautifully. Many parents are struggling nervously with their little children's reading and it is a great mistake.

Question: "Have you a leaflet for children who are always getting into things? It seems I am always saying, 'Don't touch!' I am sure my little girl, who is 2 years old, gets as sick of hearing me say it as I do of saying it."

Answer: Yes, we have such a leaflet. It is called "Don't Touch—How Not to Say It." If you feel as you do, you have already taken the first step toward not saying "Don't touch," though that step is not mentioned in the leaflet!

To obtain this leaflet, write to us, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Slump in Fan Mail Worries Movie Stars

Producers Fear Interest Is Waning.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—Hollywood's biggest worry since the slump began revolves around the drop in the mail stars receive. Admirers of stars used to address 50,000 to 100,000 letters every week to every big studio. Now this barometer of public interest has dropped to 5,000 a week or less.

Passing of old time stars of the silent picture era like Clara Bow, Bill Hart, the Talmadges, Colleen Moore, Lon Chaney, Mabel Normand, and the temporary withdrawal of Tox Mix, whose mail used to come in burlap bags, is responsible of course for some of the big drop.

But the studios fear that the chief reason lies in a dwindling of public interest. This idea has made some of the studios panicky. The panic was not relieved any when queries addressed to film exhibitors around the country brought back replies which confirmed the opinion that public lukewarmness is more responsible than anything else for the fact that mail is no longer being addressed to the stars in the old time heaps.

Bill Hart, although off the screen since 1926, remains somewhat of a paradox in this connection. His fan mail has never dropped to less than 500 a week. Many of his fans are governors, United States senators, other men in public life, or in high business stations. Tom Mix's mail has begun to bulge the mail pouches at Universal City again, now that Tom is known to be definitely back in pictures. But many of the tens of thousands of small boys who used to keep up steady correspondence with Tom [which, incidentally, caused Tom and the Fox studio to pay several stenographers salaries in the old days in an attempt to get out replies] became disheartened with the movies when Tom left to join the circus, and their mail was lost to the movies in the space of a couple of months.

Harold Lloyd is one actor who remains as big a mail magnet as ever. There has been no drop in the fan letters coming to him. Lloyd, of course, has never remained off the screen for any length of time between pictures, and has never received any public mention in a disagreeable connection. These are the items which cause a star's drawing power to dwindle, no matter what frantic efforts the magnates may take to whip up lagging interest.

That's why Chaplin's mail dropped off to almost nothing. One more reason for the mail box slump is seen in the present popularity of foreign exotics like Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, and Dolores Del Rio. These foreign girls never have permitted their public to peek at their private affairs as American fandom so dearly loves to do and the result has been a perceptible general cooling in interest all along the line.

Dayton Brown, a Chicago artist, has just completed etchings of Greta Garbo and John Barrymore which have attracted considerable Hollywood attention.

Harold Lloyd finishes his newest "Movie Crazy" this week. He is winding up this picture in ten weeks, a record for Lloyd. All his past pictures required from five to nine months of camera shooting.

Lloyd has accepted an invitation to act as grand marshal of the annual Shrine parade in San Francisco on July 18, making the third time he has been the leader of the big parade for the Shriners. He also acted as grand marshal of the Elks in one annual convention parade, when the B. P. O. E. met in Los Angeles.

The moot question of which gallant holds Dorothy Lee's heart may be decided at the end of the little actress' present voyage to New York when she sees Fred Waring, orchestra leader, there, she confided as her ship pulled out of Los Angeles harbor. Until Dorothy left, it seemed as if Marshall Duffield, 1930 quarter back of the University of Southern California football team, had the inside track on her affections. Her interlocutory divorce decree from Jimmy Fidler, film business agent, becomes final here in July.

Member of Coast Guard Buys Boat for His Home

Boston, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—Hans Jorgensen is a seafarer, and to solve the housing problem he turned to the sea. Hans is chief boatswain's mate attached to the coast guard base at New London, Conn. He has a wife and four children and for years he has wanted a place of his own to live in. He wanted to be close to the sea, too. He came to Boston today and bought the old lightship No. 42 and will have it towed down to New London and fitted as a houseboat. There will be plenty of room for the younger Jorgensens as the ship has accommodations for ten persons.

Any Girl Can Satisfy Wish for Long Lashes

Store Variety Answers Maidens' Prayers.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The "mushroom silhouette" is what the girls must be striving after if they'd be in step with the latest dress edict. Thank goodness, it doesn't mean we've got to give up the last Swedish wafer to attain the mushroom silhouette. Everytime you hear about a new silhouette being launched you know it isn't going to be plumper. So, the only way it has to go, then, is on a meaner diet. But this mushroom look in the pier glass is more dress-making and hatter business than ours, it would seem.

Large hats, big sleeves and capes are the trio working on mushroom principles for our silhouette benefit. Anyway, that's what the stylists predict for us. I continue, however, with my doubts about large hat popularity. Each spring large hats are heralded as a coming event. They only cast their shadows, however, and are off the fashion map again. Not, I think, until our landlords' hearts expand in bigger clothes closet provision for us apartment dwellers can I see the return of the large flopper.

Besides, the smaller chapeau is frankly younger looking, and that fact is far more impressive than closet space shortage. It takes a woman with great chic to wear a large hat without looking slightly dowdy. Beside, it gives bulk to the picture, and if anybody thinks we women are going to pass up our chocolate eclairs for a leaner look and then turn around and crown ourselves with a bulky illusion-giver, that "any one" just isn't right in the head [or we're not right in ours.]

But what I started out to say, which had nothing to do with hats and capes and bulbous sleeves, and, womanlike, only now get around to saying, is: Fashion opines that we're all going to be batting our eyelashes overtime this season, just by way of calling attention to the sudden depth and richness of them. The report is that sixteen out of twenty Parisians at a fashionable dinner wore artificial eyelashes, and these threaten to become as important as lipstick. It's rather fun, isn't it, to be able to see what you'd look like with long, sweeping lashes and to see just how much more damage you could do with them?

Mme. Tetrazzini told an amusing tale of how a young friend appeared before her one day endowed, as she was not the day before, with long, ravishing lashes. So, the gorgeous songbird, aged 60, it is said, hied her off to purchase some. The fact that she got discouraged midway in the performance of applying them was laughingly related. But the incident suggests the longevity of our young girl desire to own a devastating fringe.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

BONNIE: NO, I DON'T CLAIM that enlarged pores can always be reduced to the pore condition of a fine skin, because skin texture, like hair, is, more or less, a hereditary thing. However, where there are blackheads, there are enlarged pores, and the skin texture can be greatly improved.

MAE: GOODNESS, MAE, I WISH you high school youngsters would not be so concerned with makeup for school wear. It seems to me there's time enough later for you to be occupied with rouge and lipstick problems. Maybe I am old fashioned, but I do like youth to look the part.

English Royalty at Birthday Party of Princess Betty

LONDON, April 21.—(AP)—The king and queen and other members of the British royal family were guests today of Princess Betty, perhaps destined some day to be another Queen Elizabeth, who celebrated her sixth birthday and insists she is "grown up now."

To prove to her grandfather, the king, to her Uncle Edward, prince of Wales, and to her grandmother and other uncles and aunts that she is really grown up, she invited them all to a tea party.

Only one grievance mars Princess Betty's happy life at "six-going-on-seven." It is that her parents won't permit her to operate the elevator which takes her to the day nursery in the rear of the Piccadilly mansion. She is permitted to operate her own radio set, play the phonograph, and otherwise has the run of the house, but her father and mother so far have been adamant on the running of the elevator.

Washington Society

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—President Hoover received Mrs. Frank B. Noyes, formerly of Chicago, today shortly after noon. Mrs. Noyes is an active worker for the Washington cathedral, the National Symphony orchestra and a number of other civic and charitable organizations and movements. The President then joined Mrs. Hoover on the south lawn when they were photographed with members from the Delaware county, Pennsylvania Floral clubs who came here as a "cherry blossom special" to see the Japanese trees in Potomac park in bloom.

Mrs. Gann attended the tea given this afternoon by Mrs. Porter H. Dale and Mrs. Warren R. Austin, wives of the senators from Vermont who entertained in honor of the D. A. R. delegates from their state.

Mrs. Brown entertained at tea this afternoon in the Washington club for the delegates from Ohio. She was assisted by wives of assistant postmasters general, Mrs. James W. Good of Chicago, widow of the late secretary of war, and by Mrs. Thaddeus Brown.

Mrs. Lamont was among the guests at dinner this evening of the Brazilian ambassador and Mme. De Lima E. Silva. The other guests included the Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debuchi, the Belgian ambassador and Mme. May, Swiss minister and Mme. Peter, and the Norwegian minister and Mme. Bachke, and the Egyptian minister, Sesostriss Sidarouss Shasha.

Mrs. Lewis, wife of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago, was hostess at tea this afternoon to the Illinois delegates to the D. A. R. congress entertaining at Chevy Chase club.

PITY THE POOR SHERIFF; HE'S BIG HORSEMAN

Nothing About Feed Bills in Writs.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—The sheriff of New Orleans has sold off a small herd of thoroughbred chargers which were left in storage at the close of the races there, and a dashing horseman who has dashed into New York from Jacksonville, with a pronounced limp in his dash, reports that there are about 200 high strung steeds eating their heads off, so to speak, at St. Johns Park.

The sheriff of that place has taken charge of the 200 spirited gallopers, under writs of attachment, and is now one of the greatest horsemen in the United States, in the matter of quantity. Unless the owners of the horses call around soon, with something on the order of money to pay the board bills of their pets, the sheriff will be compelled to sell them to the highest bidders, if any. In that case the sheriff would break to the penny in deciding between bids.

A bidder offering $1.36 cents for a standard thoroughbred would be deemed to have outbid any one offering $1.35, and would have to take the horse. These are theoretical figures, of course. The actual bids may not exceed 15 cents.

Retreat Resembles Bunion Derby.

There is said to be very little likelihood that the owners will be calling around with anything even remotely resembling money. In fact, the dashing sportsman who brings the information states that most of the owners are doing a little serious dashing themselves. Some of them have slowed down to a trudge with shinsplint from picking up their feet and slapping them down on the hard highways of Georgia, the Carolinas, and Virginia, and the retreat from St. John's Park seems to resemble one of C. C. Pyle's memorable transcontinental bunion Derbies.

The owners of the racing dogs which chased the flannel jack rabbit around the circle in several Florida tracks, improving the breed of flannel jack rabbits, were in better circumstances. Not only did they make more money than the horse fanciers, but when the sheriff came around to attach those dogs whose boad bills had not been paid the proprietors, by concerted action, outwitted him.

May Be Running Yet.

As the sheriff approached bearing leashes with which to lead the racing dogs away to the pound one of the owners released the dogs from their cages and another one turned loose a tomcat. The tomcat went away from there, heading north at a brisk rate, and disappeared up the Dixie highway with the hounds in pursuit. The owners may never get the hounds back, but, anyway, the sheriff will not get them, which is a break for the sheriff, at that.

The cat probably has climbed a tree long before this time, but the hounds undoubtedly still are running, because racing hounds have very little sense and they will have forgotten what it was that they were chasing. Any animal which will make a spectacle of himself in public six nights a week chasing a habbit stuffed with wadding and yarn cannot be expected to remember what he was chasing, and, of course, he will not stop running until he runs down or runs into something.

Land Doesn't Need Plowing.

The 200 horses appear to be a real problem to the sheriff. Under the law, he is compelled to support them in the style to which they have been accustomed and sell them for the most he can get to satisfy the claims of the feed merchants. But one of the most useless luxuries in the world to a community which is addicted to flivvers and reduced to very practical problems of existence is a thoroughbred race horse. The improvement of the breed of horses has gone so far that the racing thoroughbred cannot be used for plowing, and, anyway, the Floridians always have been very proud of their claim that their land does not need plowing.

'Just throw a box of toothpicks into your garden this evening and you will find a pine forest grown up in the morning," said the real estate

DEFIES DOCTORS

BETTY ROBINSON.

Miss Robinson Eyes Olympics; Starts Drill

Betty Robinson, who as a 16 year old high school student, skyrocketed to sprint fame in the 1928 Olympic games and who last summer was seriously injured in an airplane crash, still entertains hopes of competing in the games this summer.

Betty started her fight for a comeback at Dyche stadium this week, where for the first time since she was injured she has donned track shoes.

Last June 28 the plane in which she was riding plunged 400 feet to the ground, pinning Betty and the pilot in the wreckage. She sustained fractures of the left leg and left arm and severe head and internal injuries. For days her recovery was doubtful, but after several weeks doctors declared she would survive but would never run again.

Strength Is Gone.

Her fight back to health was long and arduous. For four months she remained in bed, her leg in a plaster cast. Upon her removal from the hospital last fall, it was found the long inactivity had caused her leg muscles to harden and contract, causing a stiffness which months of treatment have not eliminated.

The plane accident came at a time when she was just beginning to realize her true possibilities as a runner. Her victory in the 100 meter dash in the last Olympics was her first competition. The games were followed by several years of training under Coach Frank Hill of Northwestern university, where she is a student.

Never Ran Best Race.

"Betty never had a chance to run her best race," Coach Hill said. "If it hadn't been for the accident she would have far exceeded all her previous efforts and would have set marks in the 100 and 220 yard runs. This would have placed her far ahead of all contenders."

In the face of almost insurmountable obstacles Betty has resumed her training. The fleetness and perfect running form of a year ago are missing right now. All that remains is her courageous spirit but she hopes to regain the requisites which made her a champion.

SHADE IDLES HIS WAY TO DECISION OVER KILBOURNE

Crowd Boos Slow Action; Johnny Long Wins.

Fight Decisions

At Hartford, Conn.—Jack Delaney knocked out Leo Williams [1].

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Dave Shade and Jack Kilbourne engaged in 30 minutes of harmless sport last night in the White City ring. For their ten rounds 3,220 paid $5,217.30, of which Shade received $1,250 and Kilbourne $1,186.

Shade won the unanimous decision of the judges, F. L. Jackson and John Bray, and Referee Sammy Ford. Except for Shade's agility, his effective defense, the fight lacked action and at recurring intervals the fans booed. The boxers' conduct warranted any action the referee desired to take in order to make the fighters earn their wage, but neither was prodded to better efforts at any time.

Kilbourne's Punch Idle.

Kilbourne, although slow and awkward in comparison with Shade's lithe grace, might have had a chance if he had used his right hand with which he had knocked out his previous two opponents. But Kilbourne, intent on defense, fought cautiously. He did not win a round, but three might have been scored even.

Scarcely a half dozen punches were struck in the first three minutes. In the sixth round and again in the tenth both fighters took off their wraps for a few seconds.

Shade, a clever boxer, had the gangling Kilbourne completely bewildered. He taunted Kilbourne for holding and then in the last round wrestled and dropped Jack to the floor. Kilbourne immediately tried to trip Shade in return.

Preliminaries Are Good.

The other boys on the card, while fighting for ten and twenty dollar bills, saved the show.

There was Johnny Baima of Lawndale. He was knocked out by Jerry Crano of Cicero in the fourth round after taking four nine counts. Baima was outclassed completely, but he gamely kept on until the end.

Sammy Levine, west side featherweight, punched and jabbed Paul Dempsey for five rounds to gain the decision. Levine had Dempsey groggy in the fourth round but eased up on his attack.

Long Wins First Pro Bout.

Johnny Long, Gary, Ind., Golden Glove champion at 175 pounds, won his first professional bout last night by defeating Billy Gale in four rounds. Long piled up a lead in three rounds but weakened in the last.

FOXX GETS THREE HITS, INCREASES AVERAGE TO .500

Jimmy Foxx was the only member of baseball's big six who could hold the hitting pace of earlier games yesterday. He got three hits to lift his average 19 points to an even .500.

Babe Ruth and Hughey Critz slipped out of the first six, Gus Suhr of Pittsburgh and Roy Johnson of Detroit replacing them. Lou Gehrig, Freddy Lindstrom and Bill Terry lost ground, getting one hit each. Suhr made two hits. Standing:

Tunneys Receive Threat Against Little Gene

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Gene Tunney has received a letter threatening the safety of his 5 months old son, Gene Lauder Tunney, the former heavyweight champion revealed today. The unsigned threat was turned over to police. The contents were not disclosed.

HOW AND HOW NOT TO DO IT

Teacher Harry Cooper demonstrates the correct stance and grip for the putting green. Compactness is the keynote of this pose. Note the stance, with the weight resting comfortably on the heels, and the closely joined hands of the grip, the left doing the gripping proper and the right being used as a guide.

Pupil Elmer Dubb will never hole out any twenty footers as long as he attempts to putt this way. Elmer is anything but compact in the above picture. His hands are not close enough together on the club shaft to insure a proper grip, and his stance also is loose, his feet too far apart to balance his weight evenly.

How to Putt: It's Mr. Dubb's 1st Golf Lesson

[This is the first of a series of articles written by a golfing novice after taking a course of instruction from Harry Cooper, Glen Oak Country club professional.]

BY ELMER DUBB.

Well, I used a golf club for the first time yesterday, but it wasn't the one I thought it was going to be. When I arrived at Glen Oak for my first lesson I thought that Teacher Harry Cooper would start me off driving, since a driver was the first weapon in all the golf stories I had ever read. Instead, Harry took a couple of putters from a rack in the pro shop and marched me over to the eighteenth green, which lies aft of the clubhouse. This seemed to be going backward, but Harry soon explained his reason for beginning with the putter instead of the driver.

"You crawl before you run, don't you? Well, that's my system, although most professionals begin a series of lessons with the driver. The putter can be the foundation of your swing for every club, and at the same time, after you have caught the idea of it, give you more confidence in other departments of the game."

Harry began the lesson by teaching me the overlapping grip, in which the left hand grasps the club first, the thumb and index finger forming a V, the point of which is about on a line with the center of the right shoulder. The right hand is then placed on the club so that the little finger of the right hand rests on the index finger of the left when the club is fully gripped.

"Take an easy stance, bending from the waist and flexing the knees slightly, keeping your feet far enough apart to insure comfort with your weight resting mostly on your heels, and you

SPORTS ATTENDANCE.

THE WAKE never could figure by what process of reasoning sports promoters in the past were wont to exaggerate anticipated attendance, and if there was no official check, also to exaggerate the number of those present after the event was held. Possibly it was on the theory that humans are like sheep in flocking.

Even yet the practice persists in some events, but so many checks are possible through tax reports that local boxing shows give out paid attendance and gross or net receipts. If they didn't Wilfrid Smith or some other alert chronicler would go over the next day and ask the boxing commission for the official returns. Race tracks do not give out mutuel volume and attendance, but reporters have become wise through the returns made to Springfield. Baseball figures are pretty accurately guessed by experienced baseball reporters.

Normally it would seem good business to depreciate or underestimate receipts and profits, mindful of legislators ever ready to slap a tax on anything it is possible to tax, and mindful of the chiselers with their unique systems of chiseling.

In connection with the oldtime practice of exaggerating anticipated attendance, we have in mind one experiment which proved a boomerang. It was at the time of the Dempsey-Willard title bout at Toledo in 1919. To stimulate ticket sales elsewhere Tex Rickard's publicity corps spread reports of how fast the tickets were going and how soon the choice seats priced up to $60, if we remember rightly, might be gone.

This device perhaps did stimulate some sales, but many persons decided there would be too big a crowd, too much discomfort, and perhaps only a poor view available of the arena. Therefore they stayed home. The hot boards used as seats on that burning July day found the Maumee Bay arena about one-third filled.

Another incident, along the same line, had its humorous feature. Cubs and White Sox—the American league then a newcomer in the major ranks—were rivals for public patronage. One Sunday, with Pittsburgh as the opponent, attendance at the west side park was announced as more than 30,000, "official" figures being given. We learned later from the amount of money paid the Pirates that the figures were substantially correct, although including passes.

When this report was taken to the late Charles A. Comiskey, Commy smiled grimly and said, "We'll have more than that next Sunday." Although the day was not as favorable or the attraction as good a drawing card, the figures surpassed those of the Cubs. We never investigated them, for it was the old park only comfortably filled for the occasion, and we had no wish to lose respect for veracity of the White Sox management.

Club Idle, but Not Lew; He Starts Thinking.

Simons for Funk

ELIAS FUNK, Louisville outfielder, has been obtained by the White Sox in an even trade for Mel Simons, Secretary Harry Grabiner announced yesterday. Funk hit .384 in the Pacific Coast league in 1930, but dropped to .282 at Louisville last year, where Simons ranked among the association's leaders with .356. Funk will report to the Sox at St. Louis today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—Rain, which fell on Sportsman's Park during the night, caused the second scheduled game of the White Sox and St. Louis Browns series to be postponed. This gave Manager Fonseca of the White Sox time to sit around and think and think.

And Boss Lew did that very thing—and some of the time he thought out loud, as follows:

"I am not one of those fellows who can sit back patiently and figure that we'll get going after a while, just as soon as we get some of the breaks.

"Our trouble in the last four days hasn't been blamable to any bad breaks, but sheer inability to hit the ball. Yesterday we had three hits and three other balls knocked to the outfield. Sometimes a team will hit the ball hard and happen to hit drives right at the outfielders. Those games can be laughed off on the basis of bad breaks. But there is no such alibi when a total of only six balls get out of the infield in a nine inning game.

He Wants Results QUICK.

"Another notion of mine is that a major league uniform and a major league salary do not make a major league ball player. I could finish last in the American league with a team of Class D ball players drawing $200 a month. But it just happens that last place is not my goal.

"There is one thing certain, Sox supporters are going to see a lot of new faces if I don't get results and get them quick. I am not kind enough to furnish a retreat for ball players who cannot play ball and I am not optimistic enough to sit around from week to week waiting for some miracle. Right now I am living very much in the present and while I believe in building for the future, I don't believe it can be done by assembling athletes who c nnot hit a baseball out of the infield, especially in the spring when the batters are supposed to be ahead of the pitchers.

Many Are Called, but——

"Playing in the majors under a generous owner is more of a privilege this year than ever before, what with the minors setting salary limits and effecting other reforms. There are many hustling ball players in the high minors who would do a lot of bearing down in the majors and some of them are going to have a chance with the White Sox if I don't see more safe hits in the next week or so."

Manager Fonseca had planned another change in his lineup had today's game been played, he made known. Jack Hayes, brilliant fielder, but devoid of hitting talent, was to have been benched for Mulleavy, also a good fielder but pitiable with a bat, as witness his .295 last year with the rubber ball in the American association. Hayes has batted .171 to date.

.231 Is—Well, You Know.

The team in its entirety is batting .231, which is 29 points under the mark with which the Sox finished last in batting in the American league last year. And this despite a rather active splurge in three of their first four games this season.

It is planned to start Caraway in the resumption of the series tomorrow.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Although not in a hitting mood the Cubs had a keen eye for bargains yesterday. They overlooked nothing in the shape of cut rate runs and in that way collected enough to defeat the tough Reds, 3 to 2, in a battle that neither Silas Johnson of the Cincinnati forces nor Bob Smith, the home sharpshooter, deserved to lose. The former had to abdicate mainly because of the transgressions of his mates, who could have profited by following the example of the dashing Chicago fielders.

Hits were so few that they can be covered in one breath. The Cubs wound up with four. The Reds made five. But whatever edge the visitors may have earned in this respect was offset by the fact that after the second inning they collected only two singles. Smith had his troubles during these sessions, wildness being the cause, but all in all he was a whale of a workman. So were the fellows supporting his cause, the exception being a Stanley Hack error which easily could have been fatal.

Babe Gives Cubs a Hand.

For quite a spell the argument looked as if it might be settled by a slight uprising against Smith in the first inning. The Cubs didn't reach Johnson for a ht until the fifth, when Babe Herman rendered some valuable assistance by unintentionally converting the smash into an extra base drive. It let the Cubs tie the score at one. Then the deadlock persisted until the eighth when, with only one hit along with some of the Reds' gratuities, the Chicagoans slipped over a pair of runs. Thus only two safe wallops figured in all their run getting. Merely to show he appreciated their conduct Smith presented the Reds with a hitless run in the ninth.

Smith was in trouble in the opening inning as soon as Gilbert, the Reds' second hitter, bounced one safely past Hack. Babe Herman, whose bat has been a great tonic for the heretofore anaemic Rhinelanders, poked one in the same direction, but closer to the bag, and it hopped down into the left field corner. By the time Stephenson captured the ball, Gilbert had scored and the Babe was on second. When Smith hit Crabtree on the head with a pitched ball it looked as if there might be more happenings, but the next two men were suppressed.

Squirms Out of Trouble.

Smith continued to have his bad moments in subsequent innings, but developed a knack of escaping from tight spots. Durocher put Smith in the hole by opening the second with a double to left. Hack stabbed a liner by Manion, Smith tossed out Johnson, and Hack made a brilliant pickup of Douthit's hard hopper to end this threat. In the third a couple of fellows walked with two out, but Morrissey couldn't help them. In both the fourth and fifth the first hitters got on base, but double plays smothered them.

Hack walked to start the Cubs' first inning and at the time didn't realize what distinction was being showered on him. He was the only Cub Johnson permitted to reach base until Barton stepped up with a drive to right in the fifth. Babe Herman pulled one of his periodical tumbling acts in going after the ball and it bounded past him for a triple. Stephenson's fly to right let Barto... score. After Hemsley had been set down, Grimm shoved a single through short, but it didn't mean anything.

Pretty Lucky, Mr. Smith!

A'S WHIP YANKS, 8-6, ON HOME RUN WITH BASES FULL

Cochrane Smashes Long Hit in Ninth.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane whaled out a home run with the bases full in the ninth inning to give the Athletics an 8 to 6 victory over the Yankees today.

Ruffing had held the league champions to four hits in eight innings. One was Al Simmons' home run with a man on in the fourth. But wildness that had affected the New Yorker all day appeared after Lynn Lary made a two base error on a grounder by Ed Coleman, pinch batting for Mahaffey.

Ruffing walked Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas to fill the bases and Cochrane promptly hit a fast ball so far over Babe Ruth's head into the right field bleachers that Ruth merely sat down and picked a sprig of grass to chew. George Pipgras finished and was touched for another run. Jimmy Foxx hit his second triple and scored on Bing Miller's long fly. Score:

CARDINALS LOSE TO PIRATES, 7-6; IT'S SIX IN ROW

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—[Special.]—The champion St. Louis Cardinals' losing streak was extended to six games today when the Pirates gained a 7 to 6 decision in ten innings. Due to the ineffective pitching of Paul Derringer the Cardinals trailed, 6 to 1, after seven innings, but they put themselves back in the game by scoring three times in the eighth and twice in the ninth. The Pirates made the winning run off Frey with two out in the tenth when L. Waner's double scored Grace.

Iowa's Track Star Is Named Saling; He's Best in Hurdles

[This is the third of a series of sketches on outstanding university track and field stars in the central states.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The University of Iowa has a track team in one man if it were physically possible for him to make his best performance in all events in one afternoon. That individual is Capt. George Saling, one of the greatest hurdlers Coach George Bresnahan has developed.

Saling's general ability, deemed to rest almost exclusively in the hurdles, was demonstrated during the last indoor campaign. Time trials prove he is a potential Big Ten point winner in all track events, from the 100 yard dash up to the quarter mile, the hurdle races, and the broad jump.

Wins Big Ten Title.

Saling's reputation, however, rests on his speed and skill in clearing the hurdles. His latest success was victory in the Big Ten indoor championship this winter at Chicago, when he was timed for the 70 yard event in 8.7 seconds. That triumph was made unexpectedly easier because Jack Keller of Ohio State was disqualified in the semi-finals for knocking down two barriers. Keller and Saling were timed in the trials at the same mark of 8.7 seconds.

Saling's home is Corydon, Ia. He dropped out of the university last year, but returned for his senior competition last fall with the avowed intention of winning a place on the 1932 American Olympic squad.

In 1930 Saling was second to Lee Sentman of Illinois in the Big Ten indoor hurdle race. That year, the same in which Sentman won both the high and low hurdle events in the conference outdoor meet, Saling was defeated by the Illini star in the Texas relays, Kansas relays, and the Illinois indoor relays. He was unable to compete in the Drake relays because of illness. In the 1930 conference outdoor high hurdle race Saling was fourth.

Runs 440 in 49 Seconds.

The Hawkeye captain also holds the Iowa collegiate record for the 70 yard dash. At the recent indoor Big Ten meet Saling ran anchor on the Iowa mile relay team. He was timed in 49 seconds and Coach Bresnahan believes Saling can better that mark by a second outdoors. Bresnahan expects to use Saling on Iowa's half mile and mile relay teams which will compete tomorrow at the Kansas relays and next week at the Drake relays. Saling also will train for the Olympic 400 meter hurdles trials which will be held at Iowa City June 24 and 25.

Saling was born at Memphis, Mo., but his parents moved to Corydon, Ia., when he was three weeks old. He attended the high school there, competing in a half dozen track events. He is 22 years old, 6 feet 1¼ inches tall, and weighs 155 pounds. He is registered in the university school of commerce.

BARNEY FUREY, FIGHT TRAINER, IS DEAD AT 54

Barney Furey, old time Negro lightweight fighter, who in recent years had served as trainer for many well known pugilists, died yesterday afternoon in the Miami Valley hospital, Dayton, O., according to information received by Ray Alvis, who had employed Furey as trainer for his fighters.

Furey had accompanied Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion to Dayton for a match two weeks ago. Stricken suddenly he was sent to the hospital and an operation was performed on his gall bladder. Furey became worse Wednesday and died yesterday. He was 54 years of age. The body was shipped last night to Chicago for burial.

Battalino Agrees to May 21 Bout with Billy Petrolle

Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, last night agreed to fight Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., in a ten round bout at the Stadium on May 21. The weight will be 140 pounds. Petrolle already had accepted the contest.

WALTON LEAGUE DELEGATES HEAR WILKINS TONIGHT

Sir Hubert Wilkins, explorer, and Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri will be the speakers at the tenth annual banquet of the Izaak Walton League of America, in the grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel tonight. More than 1,000 delegates and members will attend.

Speakers at today's sessions of the convention will include Paul G. Redington, chief of the United States biological survey; George Hoadley, minister of Agriculture of Alberta, Canada; Dean S. T. Dana of the University of Michigan; E. A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Dr. Joseph S. Dixon of the University of California.

Lauds Outdoor Life.

"Outdoor life is the best means of recovering the sense of perspective and values which we lack at the present time," Dr. Preston Bradley, president, told the league yesterday in his presidential report. "The outdoors not only provides relief and relaxation from the cares that oppress us, but it reveals the harmony and peace which are as essential to humanity as they are to nature."

Other speakers at yesterday's sessions were M. K. Reckord, general manager of the league; Willoughby G. Walling, chairman of the league's executive board, and Dr. R. A. Green of the University of Minnesota.

Aid of the league in preventing the Winneshiek bird and game refuge from being destroyed by flooding of several hundred square miles of bottom lands on the upper Mississippi river, through construction of a dam there as part of the Mississippi river improvement, was sought yesterday by the delegation of the La Crosse [Wis.] chapter of the league.

Nystrom Wins Casting.

Joe Nystrom Jr., member of the Lincoln Park Casting club, won the national fishermen's indoor casting championship last night by scoring 97 points. Dick Gentry, California park; Nick Schroeder, Illinois Casting club, and W. Garnsey Jr., Illinois Casting club, tied for second place. Gentry won in the castoff.

CAVANAUGH IS ELECTED LEADER OF LOYOLA FIVE

Donald Cavanaugh of Gary, Ind., last night was elected captain of the Loyola university 1932-'33 basketball team. Cavanaugh has played guard for the last two years. He also is a member of the Loyola golf team.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY FRANK GRUBE.
(As told to Edward Burns.)

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—[Special.]—Athletic authorities in Pennsylvania have no such generous attitude toward pro-amateur activities in collegiate circles as exists in some sections and if there was any one who looked like me playing baseball during my summer vacations while I was enrolled at Lafayette college, it must have been another fellow.

FRANK GRUBE.

Insofar as I can remember, I was a simon-pure amateur until I completed my second year of competition in football and baseball. I was 20 years old, then, when I received my first pay for participating in athletics and for that reason I have had to work a little harder to catch up with some of the fellows who came from the southwest and similar benevolent centers where it is considered legitimate to pick up some honest dough while getting an education.

He Couldn't Catch Until His Captain Graduated.

Charley Berry, who was an all-American end at Lafayette while I was playing the other end during his senior year, was captain of the baseball team. Charley was the catcher and though I always felt that I was built for catching more than anything else, I had to play third base while Capt. Charley did his stuff behind the bat.

As soon as this discouragement disappeared, with Charley's graduation, I took up catching and never want to play any place else.

I played some pro football, but there's nothing in baseball as tough as five minutes of pro football. And speaking further of football, although I have been assistant football coach at Lafayette for three years and am going back next fall, I think that any pro team of any standing could lick the best collegiate team ever turned out.

Signed by Giants for Start in League Baseball.

Though I was better known as a football player at Lafayette than as a baseball player, I was signed by the Giants as my start in organized ball, but in the following year, 1928, I was with Williamsport; the next year in Bridgeport, and in 1930 with Buffalo.

I started out to be a civil engineer and then switched to the athletes' haven to get a bachelor of science. I'll have to do two more years to get a civil engineering degree and somehow I don't think I'll be able to spend the time from my baseball catching and my football coaching.

KAMPFER TRIES COMEBACK IN KWARIANI BOUT

Kampfer's victory streak was stopped recently by Jim Londos. Kampfer and Kwariani will go one fall to a finish, this being a new rule of the Illinois athletic commission. Hans will weigh 216 pounds, while Kwariani is three pounds lighter.

Four supporting matches have been arranged by Promoter Joe Coffey. Milo Steinborn will meet Pat O'Shocker. Hans Bauer clashes with Paul Harper, Texas collegian. Floyd Marshall, the Californian, will grapple with Steve Sznosky, Polish youngster, who is expected to give the westerner a hard match.

In the fifth match Frank Bronowicz meets Jack Roller, Pacific coast veteran. The first match will start at 8:15 o'clock.

CHICAGO TO OPEN OUTDOOR SEASON AT YPSILANTI

Michigan State Normal's well balanced track squad is expected to be too strong for the Maroons when the University of Chicago opens its outdoor schedule tomorrow at Ypsilanti. Most of the Maroon strength is concentrated in the hurdles and dashes, in which Normal is unusually well fortified.

VICTORY NO. 4 IS GOAL OF BOWEN AND LANE TODAY

Defending Prep Champs Meet Roosevelt.

Prep Games Today

CITY LEAGUE.
Tilden vs. Phillips at Buettner park.
Englewood vs. Lindblom at Gage park.
Bowen vs. Calumet at Hamilton park.
Lake View vs. Senn at Winnemac park.
Roosevelt vs. Lane at Logan Square park.
Crane vs. Harrison at McKinley park.

Morton at Proviso.

The two favorites for the Chicago Public High School league baseball championship—Bowen and Lane Tech—will be seeking their fourth consecutive victories today. Lane Tech, defending champion, will meet Roosevelt at Logan Square park in a north section game while Bowen faces Calumet at Hamilton park in a south division contest.

Five other games are scheduled today. In the west section Harrison Tech, which won the sectional title last year, will seek undisputed possession of first place when it meets Crane Tech at McKinley park. The teams are tied with two victories and no defeats.

Tilden Meets Phillips.

Tilden Tech and Lindblom, co-holders of first place in the central division, also will play today. Tilden will meet Phillips at Buettner park, while Lindblom plays Englewood at Gage park. Tilden Tech, with Sheldon Brunner turning in a brilliant pitching performance, defeated Englewood for its second victory last Wednesday.

In other games Morgan Park and Fenger clash at West Pullman park and Lake View will meet Senn at Winnemac park. Lake View, which is in second place in the north section, has won two games while losing one. Senn has suffered three straight defeats.

Open Suburban Race.

Two games will open the Suburban league race, New Trier meeting Evanston on the latter's field and Morton facing Proviso at Maywood. Tomorrow Oak Park and Deerfield will start their league season at Highland Park.

SPALDING INTRODUCES
the first golf shoe DESIGNED
Spalding--convinced that shoes could be improved in design, just as clubs and balls have been improved--took the thing in hand. The result is a definite advance in golf shoe construction--the new Spalding Full-Swing Shoe.
This shoe actually helps you to pivot correctly. The inside edges of the sole are beveled to facilitate an uninterrupted roll, and the wider heels act as sway checks.
Notice the flange on the outer edge of the heel as indicated by the shaded portion. On the right foot this flange stabilizes the back swing and encourages a fuller movement because balance is better. On the left foot it adds firmness against the force of the blow and tends to correct the premature sway of the body.
Compare the inside edge of the sole of the ordinary golf shoe (indicated by the shaded portion) with "Full Swing." The sharp-cornered extending edge of the ordinary sole may be likened to a brake on the free, easy roll of the foot. The Full-Swing actually promotes and accelerates the proper foot movement.

This new Spalding Shoe comes in the four most popular golf shoe styles--and asks no premium for its pivoting features. $10 and $12

SPRING IS IDEAL SEASON TO OPEN WAR ON CROWS

Egg Destroyers Forget to Be Cautious.

BY BOB BECKER.

M sportsmen in Chicagoland want an excuse to get out doors with a shotgun the common old black crow will provide that excuse, because this is the time of the year when the excess crow population can be taken care of most easily via the shot and shell system. Although state conservation departments are intent upon increasing most forms of bird life, the crow is one species the conservation directors have scratched off their lists.

The preference is for a decreased instead of increased crow population, because this wily and little disturbed feathered resident is one that can and frequently does prove to be a bad actor in his conduct toward other birds. When allowed to increase in farm and game countries, the flocks of crows are a constant menace to nesting game and song birds.

Crows Destroy Eggs.

Some of the land owners in northern Wisconsin who have marshy areas where they raise large numbers of wild ducks and geese find the crow the worst egg destroyer on their acreage. The mallard ducks, especially, suffer from the attacks. We know of one owner of a wild duck refuge and breeding ground in northern Wisconsin who has to put out nests of poisoned hen's eggs to decimate the egg eating crows around his property.

At this time of the year sportsmen will find that they can reduce the crow population easier than at any other period of the year. At least, such has been our experience in decoying these birds within gun range. We have found that the noisy crows respond to a crow call, attack mounted owl decoys and swing within shotgun range much oftener during the early spring [the nesting season] than later in the summer.

Need Blind in Winter.

In the winter one can bag them by shooting from a blind on their flying route to a winter roost. But to us that isn't as much fun as going into the woods in the spring and seeing the birds react to a crow call.

With a little practice any sportsman can learn the various calls crows use, and draw them within gun range without trouble as long as the gunner sits still and out of sight. The other morning when we were in a stretch of woods near Wheaton we tried out a new wooden crow call made in the south and it was such a "natural" that it all but worked itself.

We sat down in the timber, blew the crow "distress" call on this contrivance and then sat quiet for a few minutes until some 20 crows that had answered the 4-11 alarm swung within gun range. The birds were drawn from nearby areas of timber, thus demonstrating how easily one can get some shooting at this time of the year without crow decoys.

Risko Follows Levinsky on Walker's List

Mickey Walker apparently thinks he will have no trouble beating King Levinsky at the Chicago Stadium next Friday, for yesterday he signed to meet Johnny Risko at Cleveland on May 10, only eleven days after his fight with the Kingfish. He recently agreed to fight Paulino Uzcudun at New York, May 26. Walker will finish training at Summit, N. J., tomorrow. He will box with Abie Bain, Vincent Parille, Lou Jallos, Tony D'Allesandro, and Harold Henderson. Jallos, D'Allesandro, and Henderson are being used for speed.

If Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, doesn't fight Kid Chocolate at New York, May 20, he will meet Tony Herrera at the Stadium on May 13, Sammy Goldman, Canzoneri's manager, said yesterday. Goldman will arrive next week to talk terms with Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker. Herrera, a leading lightweight contender, will face Ray Collins of Erie, Pa., at the Stadium next week.

On the strength of his victory over Pat O'Brien at St. Paul last Tuesday, Costas Vassis, South Chicago middleweight, has obtained two more matches in that city. On May 24 he fights Johnny Gerardin and June 17 battles Mel Coleman. Each bout will be at ten rounds.

The weekly benefit boxing show scheduled tonight at the 24th Ward club, has been postponed until next Tuesday night because Moe Rosenberg, Ald. Jacob Arvey, and Mickey Robins, clerk of the Probate court, are attending a Democratic convention at Springfield, Ill. Tony Delissio and Mike Kamis will meet in the headline bout Tuesday.

Eddie Shea, south side fighter, boxed five rounds yesterday with Mickey Genaro for his ten round match against Johnny Datto of Cleveland at Minneapolis May 2. Shea will be making his first start since his nose was fractured in his bout with Paul Wangley at Minneapolis three months ago. He is a leading contender for the junior lightweight title and a championship match with Champion Kid Chocolate is pending.

A LITTLE TOO FAST FOR MR. JOHNSON

Bargain Day for Cubs; Win on 4 Hits, 3-2

by looking at a pitch he didn't suspect was a third strike.

Smith had better be careful about getting himself into any more jams such as confronted him in the seventh. He won't get away so easily the next time. Complications set in when Hack juggled Manion's grounder and then threw low to first with one out. Johnson slapped a single to right. Douthit's roller to Smith caused no trouble, but when Gilbert walked, filling the bases, it brought up the terrible Mr. Floyd Herman. A sigh of relief went up from the stands when Babe boosted a fly into Cuyler's hands.

The bargain but none the less acceptable eighth, began with a walk to Grimm. Jurges bunted along the first base line and Johnson, rightfully expecting the ball to roll foul, refused to pick it up. Heath prepared to take a chance. He plucked it out of the dirt and threw to Morrissey, who was covering first. The peg nicked Jurges on the shoulder and wasn't recovered until Grimm had gone to third and Jurges to second. Smith rolled out, but Hack walked, filling the bases. Bill Herman singled to center, Grimm scoring. Then Cuyler hit a fly to right and Jurges ran home.

Reds Pick Up One in the Ninth.

Smith apparently was annoyed in the ninth when Andy High, a tiny fellow, batted for Durocher. Smitty wasn't in the mood to locate such a small target, so High walked. Lucas, who is bad money with his bat as well as with his pitching arm, swung for Manion, but a fast fielding play by Jurges settled him for the day. Then Heathcote batted in Johnson's place and grounded to Grimm. Meanwhile High had sneaked around to third and he scored when Smith let loose a wild pitch. A moment later the victory became official by Jurges' dash into short left to gobble up Douthit's fly.

PETERSEN PIN CLASSIC ENTRIES CLOSE TUESDAY

Chicago's most richly endowed individual bowling tournament, Louis P. Petersen's 18th annual classic, will be conducted May 7 and 8 at the Petersen alleys, 2055 West 35th street. Entries for the tournament which each year attracts leading bowlers of Chicago and nearby cities will close on Tuesday.

A diamond medal and $2,500 is first prize. Each entrant will roll eight games across 16 alleys.

The championship of the Postoffice 65 team league will be decided on Sunday afternoon at the Gold Coast alleys, 1210 North Clark street.

SOUTH BEND WINS OVER NOTRE DAME 14-1; TIES SERIES

Notre Dame, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—South Bend's Central league team evened its series with Notre Dame today, combining 13 hits with 6 errors to win, 14 to 1.

Capt. Charley Palt started for Notre Dame and pitched three innings during which the pros made 10 runs. Only one Notre Dame runner reached third against three pitchers. The deciding game will be played tomorrow. Score:

BUSH TO FACE REDS TODAY

Guy Bush, whose only start this year resulted in a five hit victory over the Cardinals last Sunday, will try to treat the Cincinnati Reds to some bad medicine in the third game of the series with the Cubs this afternoon at Wrigley field. Larry Benton will serve for the Rhinelanders. For the final tomorrow Manager Hornsby will have both Root and Malone available.

Burleigh Grimes came to town yesterday after a session with the dentist at St. Louis. He came out the loser by one molar. The club sent him to a local specialist yesterday afternoon to make sure that no further alteration were necessary. A case of septic poisoning was discovered. It will be another week before he's able to make his Cub debut.

The doctors in charge of Woody English's broken index finger have set a week from tomorrow as the date for unveiling the injured member. After the splint is removed English will have to spend several days of treatment aimed to loosen up the digit.

The women fans can enjoy their first free gate of the season this afternoon. A total of 20,000 tickets was handed out by the club and not many, if any, will go unused.

Almost half of the 8,000 patrons yesterday displayed a preference for the bleachers, thus not only saving four bits apiece but also keeping themselves in the sun and out of the northeast wind.

When Hack's low throw on Manion arrived at first in the seventh Grimm tried to grab it by staging one of his famous fallaways. His hands missed the ball and it popped him squarely between the eyes. He rolled over on his back, but was up at the count of nine.

Only a split second kept Crabtree from catching Smith's double in the sixth. He dived with his gloved hand out in front, but the ball hit the finger tips and rolled to the bleacher screen.

Umpire Reardon stopped play in the eighth and took the ball away from Johnson. The complaint was that the pitcher was soiling the cover which is contrary to the rules. Manager Howley dashed out from the coop and delivered several yards of oratory for which he is famous, but the soiled ball didn't get back into play.

BILLY ARNOLD TO RACE MAY 8 AT ROBY SPEEDWAY

Billy Arnold will race in Chicago for the first time since he became national champion in 1930 in the opening race on the new Roby speedway on May 8. Arnold was seriously injured at Indianapolis last Memorial day when his car crashed through the outside retaining wall. He was within several miles of his second Indianapolis victory in a row at the time.

Although he has recovered from his injury Arnold is not certain of his stamina and is depending on the Roby race to get him into condition for the May 30 classic at Indianapolis.

Hotel Gets on His Nerves; Indian Sleeps on Roof

Indians set up their tepees yesterday and made camp in Chicago on the roof of the Sherman hotel. Unable to sleep in his room, Chief Crazy Horse, 84 years old Sioux, ordered junior chiefs, Little Bear and White Bear, to erect tepees on the roof. The Indians cooked their breakfast of jerked beef over an open camp fire on the roof with the loop skyline as a background. They are attending the annual convention of the Izaak Walton league in session at the hotel.

N.B.A. Learns Dempsey Had Share in Show

The Mississippi athletic commission yesterday notified Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, that it has learned that Leonard Sacks, manager of Jack Dempsey, acted in partnership with Ned Parsons of New Orleans, La., in the promotion of a "Dempsey day" boxing show at Columbus, Miss., Nov. 10, 1930, despite affidavits to the contrary.

Dempsey, Sacks and Parsons have been suspended until a fine of $300 and bills totaling $2,800, accruing from the promotion, are paid.

The report to the N. B. A. in part follows:

"Leonard Sacks signed an offer and received an acceptance signed by Ned Parsons agreeing that the 'first $2,700 of the receipts of the Jack Dempsey day at Columbus, Miss., shall be used to pay expenses of the promotion; the second $2,700 to be paid to Jack Dempsey and the balance to be divided equally between Dempsey and Parsons.' The commission therefore finds that Sacks, acting in behalf of Dempsey, made affidavits and misleading statements under oath to the commission, in that he did enter and sign a partnership agreement.

"The commission further finds that Sacks, acting in partnership with Parsons for Dempsey failed to obtain a promoter's license in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Mississippi athletic commission and that as a promoter he failed to pay the participants and the creditors."

The N. B. A. cleared Max Schmeling and his managers of misrepresenting opponents at the heavyweight champion's recent exhibition bouts in Toronto, Ont. Press reports said George Panka boxed Schmeling but Panka protested that on the night of the Toronto combats he was in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of the Canadian Boxing federation, reported to the N. B. A. that Pedro Lopez and Jack Shaw were Schmeling's opponents in Toronto, that these boxers weighed in, were examined and licensed and that no misrepresentation was made in the announcements to the public.

STADIUM SEEKS SCHAAF AND BAER BOUT FOR MAY

Ernie Schaaf and Max Baer, California heavyweight, are being sought for a ten round fight at the Chicago Stadium late in May, Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, announced last night.

The winner will be offered a match with the victor in the King Levinsky-Mickey Walker fight next Friday night, Lewis added. Baer fought Schaaf in New York last year, Schaaf winning a decision.

Lewis also announced he had definitely closed with Billy Petrolle for May 19, but that no opponent has been selected.

WOODCOCK WILL TRAIN KILMER'S DISTANCE STARS

Phar Lap Master Signs with Sun Beau's Owner.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer, who has owned two of the greatest distance horses of American turf history in Exterminator and Sun Beau, has added Tommy Woodcock of Australia, who developed and conditioned Phar Lap, to his staff of trainers.

Woodcock signed with Kilmer yesterday, according to word from Mr. Kilmer, who is at Remlick, Va.

"The signing of Mr. Woodcock to train some of my horses in no way affects the status of my other trainers," Kilmer said.

There were rumors in Chicago last night that Woodcock will take over all the distance running prospects in the Kilmer stable and will bring them to Chicago early in the summer for the rich stake events scheduled at the Arlington Park Jockey club meeting in July.

Stories were also heard that Sun Beau will be put back into training and that he will be in the care of Woodcock. If this should be the case Kilmer evidently is afraid Sun Beau's all time money winning record of $376,744, established last season, is not high enough to stand for many years.

Uncommon Gold, the chestnut horse owned by Clayton Morris of Kentucky, has been working so sensationally at the Aurora track that he has been made the favorite to win the Aurora Inaugural handicap.

This horse, which has never been given a very high rating, trimmed Sun Beau at Hawthorne last year and at times has beaten many of the other leading handicap performers. He reeled off seven furlongs at Aurora yesterday in 1:31 with a heavy boy in the saddle.

An early morning April shower slowed up the going at Hawthorne and at Sportsmen's park yesterday, where some 700 horses are in training. Yet La Golondrina worked three-eighths of a mile at Sportsmen's park in :39 and Aviator galloped five furlongs in 1:05, which shows that this old route runner is in very good condition. Despite the slow going, about 300 horses were on the tracks.

Our clocker operative at Belmont park sends word that the best bet of the whole racing season is to back To Flight to win the Woods Memorial handicap, to be run in New York April 30. Top Flight's latest training move was a half mile in :46 3-5, according to the clocker. Now, if you are not familiar with the way race horses gallop in their training drills, this is little short of flying.

A Chicagoan attempted to wager on Top Flight in the Kentucky Derby future book yesterday. He wanted 5 to 1 for his money. He was offered 3 to 1.

The race horse owner who has all he can do to dig up oats and hay for his steeds doesn't seem to be making much progress. At the Jamaica track in New York this week six races were run in one afternoon. The first was won by a horse carrying the silks of Mrs. Jock Whitney, the second went to Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's color bearer, the third to a horse owned by John R. Macomber, the fourth to Mrs. Payne Whitney's horse, the fifth to Mrs. H. C. Phipps' entry, and the last to a thoroughbred owned by J. H. Louchheim, all folks who don't worry much about feed bills.

SWIVEL FIRST AT JAMAICA

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—Before a fair sized crowd of week day turf fans, Swivel, gallant juvenile filly from the Mereworth stud, scored a decision by a nose over C. V. Whitney's Fretwork in the five furlongs of the Rosedale stakes, feature event on the program at Jamaica today. Maebee was third. The winner returned 2½ to 1 and stepped the distance in 0:59 2-5. He earned $3,925 by his brilliant victory.

Night Patrol Triumphs.

The field was off poorly. Edelweiss, a well backed filly, and Single Brig, an added starter, were the sufferers. Jockey Robertson rushed Fretwork into a long lead rounding the lower turn, with Swivel in closest pursuit. In the stretch Jockey Horn, aboard Swivel, went to work on the filly and in a gruelling stretch drive just managed to get his nose in front at the wire.

Night Patrol showed a splendid effort in the mile and 70 yards of the closing event when the Sandy McNaughton colorbearer won by a nose over Little Nap. The latter took command at the head of the stretch, but could not hold the winner in the drive.

Apprentice Shows Class.

Apprentice, from the James Butler stable, scored a well earned victory for the East View breeder when the Vulcain colt led home C. V. Whitney's Rideaway and two others in the mile and a sixteenth of the Merrick claiming handicap, secondary feature. The winner paid 6 to 1 and negotiated the route in 1:46 3-5.

SISTER ZOE PAYS $19.20

Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.—[Special.]—M. C. Murnan's Sister Zoe, oldest of the mares and fillies in the race, won the Martha Washington purse, feature at Havre de Grace today, by two and a half lengths. The Greentree stable's Delicacy was second, beating E. R. Bradley's Chicsu by a neck for place. This was the first defeat for Chicsu in seven races.

The winner paid $19.20. She ran a mile and 70 yards in 1:44 and was ridden by J. Renick. A crowd of 15,000 attended.

Late Date, the second choice, was impatient at the post, as was Brown Pet. The start was ragged, Brown Pet going out in front, Late Date following closely. Sister Zoe never was far away and in the stretch drew ahead, with Delicacy coming from far back.

Ten will start in the $10,000 Philadelphia handicap Saturday, with Equipoise declining the weight. Spinach, Lightning Bolt, Lady Broadcast, Happy Scot, B'ar Hunter, Tred Avon, Great Gun, Evening, Aegis, and Prigate Bird will start.

Cricket Loop to Open Title Drive May 12

The Washington Park team, holder of the Barrett cup, will defend its title in the Illinois Cricket association. The season will open May 12.

The cup, which is retained for a year by the winning team, has been in competition for the last decade. This is the second time Washington Park has held the title. It won the trophy in 1929 and lost it the following year by a four point margin to the International team, which lost it back to Washington last year. Washington defeated the Chicago team, 30 to 28, for the cup last year.

Ten Teams in League.

Ten teams will compete in the league, each club meeting each other club twice for a total of 18 games. The season ends about the middle of September. The cup will then go to the team with the greatest number of points. Two points are scored for a victory, one for a tie, and none for a defeat.

This year's league play will attract much attention, due to the invasion of the Australian cricket team which will play in Chicago July 23 to 26, inclusive. Players will be selected from the ten league teams to represent Chicago against the invaders. This all-star team will be chosen about three weeks prior to the Australian competition.

Winnetka Is New Entry.

Some of the players who have been competing for the last ten years are C. W. Knight, H. Watt, K. A. Auty of the Chicago team; Capt. Walter Smith, who led Washington Park to victory last year; Arthur Foster of Winnetka and George Yoxall of Lincoln Park. The Winnetka team is a new organization, taking the place of Highland Park, which withdrew at the end of last season.

The opening day schedule:

Chicago vs. Oak Park at Oak Park.
Lake Forest vs. International at Washington park.
Winnetka vs. Pickwick at Washington park.
Lincoln Park versus Washington Park at Washington park.
Melbourne vs. Lincoln Park Argyles at Boltwood park, Evanston.

LUD WRAY MADE COACH OF BOSTON PRO GRID TEAM

Boston, Mass., April 21.—[Special.]—George Marshall, president of the Boston Braves of the National Professional Football league, announced today that Lud Wray, former University of Pennsylvania football coach, has been appointed coach of the Braves next year.

Arthur Thurnblad Beats Lookabaugh in Cue Meet

Arthur Thurnblad, former world's champion, defeated Earl Lookabaugh by 50 to 30 in 39 innings in the all star, three cushion billiard tournament at the Kleckhefer Recreation yesterday. The defeat dropped Lookabaugh from a tie for the lead into a deadlock for second place with Augie Kleckhefer at 3 games won and 2 lost. Charles Morin defeated Harry Towle 50 to 44 in 64 innings.

RUDOLPH E. KNEPPER.

Golfers around Sioux City, Ia., breathed more easily when Rudy Knepper left that section of the country and came to Chicago, where he has been one of the district's leaders since his arrival. He is listed as two strokes on the Chicago District Golf association's handicap list this year.

RUDY KNEPPER.

Knepper is the fourth member of the quartet of Bob Gardner, Dexter Cummings, and Francis Blossom Jr. who brought Onwentsia one district team championship after another. The reason for Iowans' peace of mind after his departure therefrom was that Rudy had taken almost a permanent lien on the state championship, winning it in 1920, 1921, and 1922. He also captured the trans-Mississippi title in 1922.

Business has kept Knepper away from golf the greater part of the time during the last few years, but for more than a decade he has been one of the most consistent qualifiers in the national amateur. He qualified first at Pittsburgh in 1919, but it was in 1922 that he first distinguished himself. He not only qualified, but eliminated W. B. Torrance, Francis Ouimet, and Cyril Tolley, despite the fact that he was still in a weakened condition from an illness of a few weeks before. In the semi-finals he lost to Chick Evans, who had defeated him in the western amateur of that year, after Rudy had tied Harrison Johnston for the qualifying medal.

won't teeter forward when you putt. Just take it easy throughout the stroke. Bobby Jones' ability to relax, especially in putting, is what made him," Harry said.

Next, Harry spread a half dozen balls within about five feet of the cup and told me to try and sink them. This looked simple enough, but I came to grief on the first effort, the top of the shaft striking the inside of the right arm just above the wrist, while the ball wandered two feet wide of the hole.

"Keep your hands well down, letting them hang to the full extent of their reach, don't stiffen your arms, and that won't happen again," Harry admonished me, and a couple of more trials proved he was right.

Keep the Clubhead Close to Ground and Eye on Ball.

Harry then concentrated on the back swing, which he said can be used to gauge the distance to the cup and the power necessary to get the ball into it, keeping the clubhead close to the ground and eyes on the ball. I forgot the former on my first try bringing the club too far back and too far above the ground, so that I not only topped the ball, but sent it far wide of the cup. The same thing happened when I took my eyes off the ball, and attempted to follow the motion of the ball from the time I struck it until it reached the cup.

"Don't forget to draw an imaginary line through the ball straight to the back of the cup," Harry warned. "The best way to do that is to step back of the ball and use it as a transit to sight the line through the cup. If you follow that line right through the center of the clubhead, the ball, and cup, you can't go far wrong."

Of Course, the Terrain Has to Be Considered.

Meanwhile we had moved the balls back from five feet to fifteen, and then about twenty-five feet from the cup. I felt pretty foolish on the first of these, for after adhering to all of Harry's suggestions up to that time, I putted the ball and it rolled straight by the cup, about five inches to the left. He laughed and pointed out that I had not considered a small rise in the green near the hole.

"That break in the green is to the right," Harry said. "Just pretend the hole has been moved a couple of inches that way, and draw your imaginary line to that point. Try it."

I did, and you could have knocked me over with a tee if it didn't curl right up to the cup and drop in. Maybe I'm going to like this game after all.

I. A. C. Water Poloists Leave for National Meet

HORSES, HORSES! WHAT'S A SHERIFF WITHOUT STEEDS?

agents in their lectures to the customers during the boom. "Garden truck? When your congressman sends you a package of seeds you do not even have to break the wrappings. Merely toss the envelope out the window and next week you will have corn, beans, strawberries and asparagus, neatly done up in cans. This is very remarkable soil."

So there is not likely to be much of a demand for the sheriff's 200 head.

Sheep? No, Siree!

Jack Kearns was faced with a similar but much worse predicament when he was trying to get the final $100,000 of Jack Dempsey's $300,000 purse in Shelby, Mont. Jim Johnson, the cowboy mayor and banker of Shelby, came around to Mr. Kearns one afternoon and said, "Mr. Kearns, I have got thousands of sheep, and I am going to give them to you instead of the $100,000."

"Mr. Johnson," said Mr. Kearns, "I live in a kitchenette apartment where the management does not allow any pets. I could not keep one sheep, and thousands of sheep would be quite out of the question."

How Sheriff Succeeded.

The survivors of the Florida racing season, who now may be seen sitting around the Volney club in New York, rubbing their feet and awaiting the last stragglers, report an extraordinary incident concerning a racing man who was stranded and tried to hide his racing stock from the sheriff. This sportsman's line was not racing horses, however, but a stable of racing fleas. But the Florida racing law did not allow such races unless, of course, the fleas rode as stowaways on the racing dogs. So the Florida East Coast Flea Jockey club did not prosper and in time the sheriff came around with an attachment for the rent.

Still it was difficult to serve the writ. The owner would see the sheriff coming and hide his stable and it looked as if the ends of justice would be defeated until one day the sheriff resorted to strategy. The sheriff sent his little boy into the Florida East Coast Flea Jockey club leading his hound dog and the entire stable jumped aboard the hound and were carried off to the jail.

LUTHERAN SYNOD HEARS CHEERFUL FINANCE REPORT

Annual Conference of Church Opened.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Churches are being weighed today by their ability to teach and promote righteousness. This opinion was expressed by the Rev. Dr. Peter Peterson last night in his annual sermon as conference president before the Illinois conference of the Augustana synod of the Lutheran church. Sessions of the conference opened yesterday at Central Lutheran church, Sedgwick and Hobbie streets. The conference will close Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Peterson pleaded for "purposeful leadership" and urged greater cooperative effort between Christian communions. The same spirit, he said, that actuated world war coöperation is needed among the churches and in human society today.

Cites Hopeful Signs.

He pointed to hopeful aspects in the economic situation. Among these is a notable growth in church attendance, he said. In the financial report to be read to the conference this morning by Dr. Peterson a decrease of less than 25 per cent of total income will be reported. This Dr. Peterson regards as an excellent showing, which gives the synod a high rating among the denominations.

In the sermon last night Dr. Peterson pointed out a "need of great and sacrificial spirits, such as St. Francis of Assissi, who embodied the spirit of social service based on the Christian motive." The synod president applauded the work of the National Lutheran council, "which held together the threatened institutions of some of the European countries affected directly by the ravages of the great war."

Prof. Mattson Speaks.

At yesterday's sessions Prof. A. D. Mattson of Augustana seminary, Rock Island, who spoke on the subject of present day's ministerial qualifications, declared that a passion for social service is essential. He condemned emotional revivalism. This, he said, is primarily concerned with the emotions but with a disregard for the will.

This morning President Peterson will read his annual report. He announced yesterday that the Rev. Dr. C. E. Bengston, president of the American Lutheran conference, will be the speaker at the Lutheran mass-meeting Sunday afternoon.

REP. E. M. BEERS OF PENNSYLVANIA DIES AT CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Congressman Edward M. Beers, Republican representative from the Eighteenth Pennsylvania district, died today at the naval hospital following a severe attack of influenza.

Mr. Beers had been ill for about two weeks. He was 56 years old and had served five consecutive terms in congress, having been first elected March 4, 1923.

Representative Beers was a member of the house District of Columbia and invalid pension committees and was prominent in the Pennsylvania Republican organization. In private life he was a banker and attorney, and in addition owned a large farm near Huntingdon, Pa.

He is survived by his widow and one son.

WM. T. HOBART, PASTOR IN CHINA 49 YEARS, DIES

Stricken at Son's Evanston Home.

The Rev. William Thomas Hobart, for 49 years a Methodist minister in China, died yesterday of heart disease at the home of his son, Dr. Marcus H. Hobart, 621 Foster street, Evanston. The Rev. Mr. Hobart returned to the United States from China six weeks ago to seek medical treatment He was 75 years old.

He was graduated from Northwestern university in 1879 and from the Garrett Biblical institute in 1882. In recent years he was given the degree of doctor of divinity by both institutions.

The Rev. Mr. Hobart went to China first in 1883, taking with him his bride of a few months, Mrs. Emil Hatfield Hobart. Mrs. Hobart was killed in 1926 by a stray bullet in the fighting between two Chinese armies at Tainanfu.

Caught in Boxer Uprising.

The Rev. Mr. Hobart was stationed first at Pekin. He was successively presiding elder of the Methodist churches in that area and dean of the Union Theological school there. He and his family were in Pekin during the Boxer rebellion, and he helped build the barricades behind which Americans and Europeans defended themselves from their legations against the Chinese rebels.

For the last ten years the Rev. Mr. Hobart had been stationed at Tientsin, where one of his daughters, Elizabeth, is now a missionary. A second daughter, Louise, is a missionary at Peiping, formerly Pekin.

Children Born in China.

Besides the two daughters and Dr. Hobart, a second son, Chauncey G. Hobart of Evanston, also survives. All of the children were born in China.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston.

Chicago Resident Since '85 to Be Buried Tomorrow

Funeral services for John J. Sullivan, retired live stock commision merchant, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow in St. Philip Neri Roman Catholic church, followed by burial in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mr. Sullivan, who was 72 years old, died Wednesday in his home at 6848 Jeffery avenue. He was born in Laporte, Ind., and had been a resident of Chicago since 1885.

His widow, Mrs. Anna McEnerny Sullivan, and six children, Mrs. Monica Joy, Mrs. Anne McDonagh, Mrs. Helen Flanagan, Mrs. Katherine McShane, Mrs. Niceta Lavin and J. Clement Sullivan, survive.

HELD FOR DOUBLE SLAYING.

Robert Schreier, 26 years old, was held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury on charges of slaying Joseph Sincula and Stanley Butzloff, who were shot to death several weeks ago in his flat at 842 North Mozart street. Police said the three men had been partners in a small liquor business.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Progress

MURDER VICTIM

Edward B. Brinker, whose body was found on Long Island beside that of Miss Rose Welk of Flushing. The couple had been beaten to death. The crime remains a mystery.

New York, April 21.—[Special.]—With his investigation admittedly at a standstill, District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau county today gave a promise of immunity to anybody, except the actual slayers, who will come forward with information that may lead to solving the murders of Edward B. Brinker, twice married sign salesman, and Miss Rose Welk of Flushing.

Meanwhile, Inspector Harold King of the Nassau county police, continued to question Mrs. Josephina Brinker, the second wife of the murdered man. Mrs. Ruth Brinker, first wife of the slain man, was permitted to return to her home in Brooklyn after lengthy questioning.

The authorities continued to investigate the story told them by Brinker's first wife. She declared that when she met Brinker several months ago and asked him how he was feeling, he replied:

"Well, a girl friend fired a couple of shots at me the other night."

She was a native of Salt Lake City. Her husband was the late William H. Dusenberry, prominent Latter Day Saints churchman and business man.

FARM BUREAUS' HEAD DENIES RIFT WITH U. S. BOARD

Tells Need of Change in Marketing Act.

BY PAUL POTTER.

E. A. O'NEAL.

He said the federation is continuing to fight for the farm board and that it is demanding an amendment to the federal marketing act to include the equalization fee plan of crop surplus control.

Tells Need for Amendment.

"Without that amendment the act cannot do completely what its designers intended to accomplish," Mr. O'Neal declared. "I am quite confident that charges that the federation was at odds with the farm board were fabricated by an agency which, with the aid of a huge jackpot, is craftily conducting a campaign of misrepresentation, with the object of reducing the American farmer to a state of complete peonage."

Mr. O'Neal said that the farm board was "a direct outgrowth of efforts instituted by the farm bureau during its first year of existence 14 years ago."

"The coöperative movement is interfering seriously with the huge profits others have enjoyed for generations at the expense of the farmers, on whom they must depend for their ill gotten gains," Mr. O'Neal said. "Our object is to organize the farmers until we have 100 per cent control of the markets through which our products must reach the consumer."

Report Organizers' Troubles.

Reports of difficulties being encountered by farm bureau organizers in maintaining membership because of the rural attitude toward the federal farm board were made in a closed meeting of midwest state farm bureau leaders in Chicago on Tuesday. Mr. O'Neal did not deny that such reports had been considered.

Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, who represented the Illinois farm bureau during meetings of the federation executives this week, in which plans to reduce its budget were made, said yesterday that a saving of $47,000 had been made in the Illinois organization's expenses since last summer.

SEIZE THREE ON NARCOTICS CHARGE.

YANK WHO SUED CUBA FOR $9,000,000 DIES PENNILESS

HAVANA, Cuba, April 21.—(AP)—Joseph E. Barlow, American citizen whose claim of approximately $9,000,000 against the Cuban government for the seizure of land which he purchased many years ago has been denied repeatedly by courts here, died tonight at the Anglo-American hospital. He was 69 years old. Physicians said the primary cause of his death was malnutrition.

A native of Stewart county, Georgia, Mr. Barlow came to Cuba in 1898, immediately after the Spanish-American war, and engaged in the real estate business, acquiring considerable property.

Seven years ago he entered a claim against the Cuban government for more than $9,000,000, charging it had confiscated 32 city blocks in the geographical center of Havana to which he said he held title.

Unsuccessful in the Cuban courts, he had sought unavailingly to have the United States government intervene in his behalf. A sizable fortune was spent in pressing his claim until some time ago he announced he was penniless. He is survived by his widow, his mother, one son, and two daughters.

AIR MAIL PILOT KILLED AS PLANE FALLS IN INDIANA

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 21.—[Special.]—Lieut. George W. Hill, pilot for Trans-American Air Lines, was killed this morning in a crash at the municipal airport here. He was flying a mail plane from South Bend to Fort Wayne, and was circling the field for a landing, when the plane nosed into the ground. The cause of the crash has not been determined.

Lieut. Hill, 34, was married and resided at South Bend. He had been flying for Trans-American Air Lines for 5 years, was a senior pilot and had 6,000 hours of flying to his credit. When he crashed he was flying a one place, open cockpit Stearman biplane, powered by a Wright motor. He was alive when taken from the wreckage, but died a few minutes later.

DR. OTTO T. FREER, WIDELY KNOWN SURGEON, IS DEAD

Dr. Otto T. Freer, widely known laryngologist, died yesterday at Henrotin hospital. He had been in ill health for five years.

DR. OTTO T. FREER (Morrison Photo.)

Dr. Freer was born in Chicago in 1857, the son of Dr. Joseph Warren Freer, who was one of the first presidents of Rush Medical college. He was graduated from that institution in 1879 and continued his studies at the Universities of Munich, Vienna, and Heidelberg.

Dr. Freer originated the operation known among surgeons as the submucous resection of the septum, and invented the Freer instruments for the operation, which are now in standard use throughout the world. He was one of the organizers of Henrotin hospital.

He was a fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine of London and a member of numerous other medical societies in the United States and Europe. He was married in 1912 to Agnes Lee, poetess and author, who survives him. The family home is at 31 East Elm street.

Funeral services will be private, and will be held at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel at Graceland cemetery.

EASIER MONEY EFFORTS FELT IN BRITAIN, TOO

Bank of England Cuts Discount Rate.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The easy money campaign inaugurated recently by the American federal reserve authorities moved forward another step yesterday. In fact, it took on an international aspect through the action of the Bank of England in reducing its discount rate to 3 per cent, thus bringing the English rate to the same level as the rediscount rate of the New York federal reserve bank.

The English action coincided with the weekly statement of the federal reserve system, which showed that the reserve banks continued to pour credit into the money market by large purchases of government securities. The easing effect of this expanded credit on money rates was reflected in a further decline in rates on bankers' acceptances.

Keeps Funds at Home.

With English money rates at practically the same level as American rates, there is no inducement for sending American funds to England. Therefore, our expanded credit must seek employment largely at home, which is what the Hoover administration desires. On the other hand, the action of the Bank of England in further lowering its rate was attributed to a desire to check the influx of foreign funds. As these are usually loaned for short terms, any sudden recall would disturb the London money market. Moreover, the influx of foreign funds has caused sterling exchange to rise faster than the English authorities desire, as it has handicapped exporters.

The new English discount rate is exactly half of that which prevailed when England went off the gold standard last September. The Bank of England maintained a 6 per cent rate until Feb. 18, this year, when it was reduced to 5 per cent. The rate was reduced to 4 per cent on March 10 and again to 3½ per cent on March 17.

Expect New York Cut.

The lowering of the English rate, which was announced early yesterday morning, led to expectations that the New York reserve bank would cut its 3 per cent rediscount rate. However, the directors announced no change late in the day. But many bankers predicted that it is only a question of time until the rate is reduced, particularly in view of the cut in bankers' acceptance rates and the fact that the New York rediscount rate now is out of line with open market money rates.

The movement to expand credit and ease money rates in the United States was accelerated by the reserve banks in the last week. Their consolidated report shows that they purchased $93,106,000 of government securities, bringing their total holdings up to $1,078,130,000, which is nearly double the amount held a year ago.

Reduce Borrowings.

With the reserve banks furnishing a strong and active market for government bonds, the member banks were enabled to reduce their borrowings from the reserve banks. Thus such borrowings show a reduction $64,079,000, bringing the total down to $564,523,000. In fact, if the campaign is maintained for a month or

LOSS TO SWEDES IN KREUGER CASE PUT AT $60,000,000

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 21.—(AP)—Responsible financial authorities estimated today Sweden will lose as much as 300,000,000 kroner [$60,000,000] in the crash of the Kreuger companies. The paper loss probably will run as high as 500,000,000 kroner [$100,000,000], because of the general depreciation of securities, even those not connected with the Kreuger interests.

Polish Politicians Involved.

WARSAW, April 21.—(AP)—The Polish press today demanded the names of politicians allegedly found among the papers of Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king, who killed himself in Paris recently. Reports here were that several Polish politicians had been bribed by Mr. Kreuger, according to the papers found in Stockholm, in connection with his worldwide match trust activities.

Persons associated with Kreuger activities in Poland said they had never heard of a Dutch banking firm mentioned as securing the rights of th Polish match monopoly in the 1914 Kreuger-Polish loan.

W. F. Hall Printing Co. First Quarter Earnings Rise

Earnings of the W. F. Hall Printing company so far this year are ahead of the corresponding period of 1931, according to Frank Warren, president. The earnings record should justify a continuance of dividends on the common stock, he stated. Approximately 80 per cent of the company's entire business is being done under long term contracts and volume is running about the same as last year, he stated.

California Oil Output Shows Slight Upturn

Daily average crude oil production in California in March was 502,449 barrels, compared with 504,030 in February. Stocks of all products held by principal marketing companies in Pacific coast territory totaled 170,488,987 barrels at the end of March, a decrease of 1,093,203 barrels during the month.

FARRELL SEES BRIGHT FUTURE FOR INDUSTRY

Talks at Banquet of Steel Chiefs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—James A. Farrell, retiring president of the United States Steel corporation, said tonight he had lived through serious depressions during his career of more than half a century. He could see no grounds in the present situation for despondency regarding the future. Nothing has robbed him of his faith in "the essential soundness of our industrial system," he said. He spoke at a dinner of the American Iron and Steel institute in his honor.

"We have lost nothing of our industrial technique and efficiency," he said. "Our industries are ready at a moment's notice to meet trade recovery. We have only scratched the surface of trade possibilities in a world in which hundreds of millions of people will not indefinitely remain satisfied with a standard of living on the border line of bare existence."

Commerce as Civilizer.

"World commerce," he continued, "is the greatest incentive to improved standards of living. Where commerce flourishes, there will be found centers of higher civilization. It is our destiny, I believe, to aid in raising the standards of living throughout the world in an age when international commerce is more and more regarded, in the words of James Russell Lowell, as 'a great intermediary and vehicle of civilization.'

"If I were asked to name the factors essential to business success I would emphasize the importance of friendship. Out of a long experience I have found no substitute for friendship as a lubricant of the ways down which we launch our business enterprises.

"Whether it be in the steel works, mines or the office, or in the relations betwen buyer and seller, I have found nothing more conducive to success than the friendship which springs from an understanding of the other man's point of view and a recognition of the place of humanity in all our industrial activities.

Puts Experience Second.

"Next to friendship as a factor essential to business I would place experience. It is the backbone of industry.

"The serious depressions in the past seemed at the time to be charged with grave disaster to all our hopes of expanding progress, but we found that at those pauses in our advance were followed by years of increasing industrial growth and social progress."

Mr. Farrell urged people to "aim at a more uniform rate of progress unhampered by reckless speculation and extravagance." He said he was moved by the friendship expressed by Charles M. Schwab, president of the institute and chairman of the dinner, together with the speeches of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel corporation; H. W. Phelphs, president of the American Can company; E. J. Buffington, president of the Illiois Steel company; George G. Crawford, president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation.

Mr. Farrell said he passed from the scene "with the knowledge that the traditions bequeathed to us by those who have gone before are and will be safely and securely held in trust by their successors."

British Starting New Tariffs Monday Night

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, April 21.—Revealing Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain's budget plan regarding additional tariffs, a sweeping plan of new import duties including 33 1-3 per cent on semi-finished steel and 20 per cent on certain iron and steel products was diclosed in a special treasury order issued late tonight and coming up for confirmation in the house of commons next week.

The new duties, which are to be imposed on the recommendation of the tariff advisory committee, relate almost exclusively to articles solely or mainly manufactured, also embracing certain agricultural goods. All of the duties will take effect from midnight next Monday. The abnormal imports duties which have been in force the last two months cease when the new order takes effect.

The new plan covers a wide field at varying rates, a heavy burden being placed on luxuries. These include a total duty of 30 per cent on jewelry and goldsmiths' and silversmiths' wares, oysters and caviar, artificial flowers and toilet preparations, furs and apparel. There is a 25 per cent duty on articles including fruit, pipes, pulp, sporting guns, ammunition, sports goods, leather trunks, bags, etc.

Steel Trade's Special Status.

The advisory committee considers the steel trade as being in a special position of national importance and the government has decided to accept the committee's recommendation of an additional duty of 23⅓ per cent—making 33 1-3 per cent altogether—for a temporary period of three months on semi-finished steel to check importations until the government is prepared to deal with the matter in a more permanent way.

France Revising Quotas.

PARIS, April 21.—(AP)—Some of the French quotas restricting American importations have been revised through the efforts of Ambassador Walter E. Edge. That was announced today. It was the general impression that a solution of Franco-American trade difficulties may be worked out through consultation.

It was revealed that the ambassador had a frank talk with Premier Tardieu before the latter left for Geneva last night and gave him the American viewpoint.

Ambassador Edge was reported to have emphasized that the United States does not question the right of France to establish a quota system. He contended, however, that the yardstick employed by France in rationing importations, worked to the detriment of the United States, and, therefore, should be modified.

It was indicated that a solution may rest in an agreement with France to consult American trade interests more than in the past.

German Loan Extended.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—Germany has secured a prolongation of the $125,000,000 credit granted in October, 1930, by a banking consortium headed by the Reichsbank and Lee Higginson & Co.

Nine-tenths of the credit is prolonged until Nov. 10, 1933, at 6 per cent. Twelve million dollars, due in the current budget year, will be paid in foreign currencies. The balance will be paid in installments, but only if the Reichsbank is satisfied with the currency position.

ASK MILLIONS FROM INSULL UTILITY GROUP

United Public Service Sued in East.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—Legal steps to recover millions of dollars invested by New Jersey residents in the Insull controlled United Public Service corporation were under way today with appointment of John Milton of Jersey City and Hurst F. Bloom of Montclair as receivers by Vice Chancellor John J. Fallon.

The court ordered the company's statutory agents, the Corporation Trust company of Jersey City, to surrender all records, and further instructed the receivers to obtain possession of the corporation's assets, and, specifically, to recover $5,000,000 in assets allegedly transferred to another Insull corporation, the Middle West Utilities company.

May Involve Billions.

"This is a very important case," the vice chancellor said, "involving probably billions and not mere millions."

Regarded as one of the largest of Insull companies, the United Public Service corporation was declared insolvent on complaint of Howard J. Umland of Brooklyn.

Vice Chancellor Fallon criticized action taken in the Illinois Federal Equity court by Chicago lawyers, who obtained a decree for the appointment of a receiver by the Federal court while the case here was delayed from Monday to Wednesday at the request of the corporations lawyers in New Jersey.

Favor Reorganization.

A committee headed by Ralph A. Bard which was formed on April 9 as the result of a meeting of the principal distributors of securities of the United Public Service company and its subsidiaries, announces that it is working on plans of a reorganization for United Public Service company, United Public Utilites company and Southern United Gas company with a view to cleaning up the situation and getting the companies out of receivership as soon as possible.

The question of caring for the April 1 default with respect to interest payments on United Public Utilites company first lien bonds is one of the matters being considered by the committee.

ACTION IN CHICAGO TOO.

A bankruptcy petition was filed yesterday against the United Public Service company in the United States District court here by the law firm of Moses, Kennedy, Stein & Bachrach, acting on behalf of three small creditors with claims aggregating $1,500.

The plaintiffs allege that the company is insolvent and charge that among other alleged acts of bankruptcy it transferred to Middle West Utilities company on Dec. 31 last assets amounting to more than

St. Paul Road Earnings Drop Below Charges

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad earned a return of only 1.07 per cent on its investment last year, its pamphlet for 1931 shows. This compares with an average return of 1.86 per cent for roads in the western district last year and 1.19 per cent average return in the northwestern region in which the Milwaukee is grouped. The rate fixed by the interstate commerce commission as a fair return is 5.75 per cent.

Freight revenue declined 21 per cent or $24,246,023 in 1931 to a total of $91,392,070. The largest declines were shown in agricultural products and forest products which were down 25 and 40 per cent, respectively.

Income Below Interest.

Earnings for the year were $4,689,074 short of interest requirements on fixed interest bearing obligations. After accrued interest on the convertible adjustment mortgage there was a deficit for 1931 of $13,812,759. This deficit was $8,927,349 larger than in 1930.

Taxes of the road took $8,723,000 of the total operating revenue of $22,154,325. The decline in taxes from the previous year was only 8.2 per cent against a decline in total operating revenues of 21.8 per cent.

March Level Maintained.

Henry A. Scandrett, president of the railroad, said yesterday that April gross revenues were running about as far behind 1931 as they did in March.

"We look for a small ore movement this year," he said, "for steel operations are low and there are large stocks of ore on hand. Moisture conditions in our territory are better than a year ago. So far there are no signs of a pickup in lumber traffic."

The road has purchased 14,000 tons of rails, or enough for its 1932 needs.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—With the big bears away—most of them down at Washington for the senate's short sales inquiry—the bulls made bold to play a little on the stock exchange today. It was a rare experience for them and they made the most of it in the circumstances.

The rally was virtually unanimous and resulted in price mark ups of from a fraction to 3 points. Railroad shares again showed the way, but some of the utilities enjoyed good demand and a number of specialties, like International Business Machine and Allied Chemical and Dye, were bid up quite briskly. United States Steel common varied the monotony of its string of bear market lows by counting itself in on the recovery to the extent of a point or so. American Can did twice as well as the old Bellwether and most of the other pivotals went through the motions of group leadership.

Causes for Cheer.

Short covering—due to the publication of the list of short sellers and their holdings and prospects of further disclosures—was the mainspring of the upturn.

The market undoubtedly has been technically in line for a rebound for some time—ever since last week's little rally. Some brokers thought that the "bear list" disclosure today was more of an excuse than a real cause for the rally, serving merely to set in motion a turnabout thoroughly overdue. Be that as it may, the shorts did not seem so terribly frightened.

The total sales, including such deals as may have been made to cover outstanding commitments, were only about 1,100,000 shares, which is about a millrun average for these dull times.

N. Y. Traction Issues Gain.

New York traction issues were steamed up a bit in the afternoon dealings on the reappearance of old rumors about the city planning to proceed with the unification of the different lines. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit rose more than 3 points and Interborough added a couple of points to its board rating.

Heavy selling in Royal Dutch American and Standard Oil of New Jersey was a feature of the early dealings. Both stocks dropped to the lowest levels on record. Sales of the two issues accounted for about one-fifth of all transactions during the first two hours of the session. Both recovered a part of their losses before the finish, but neither was able to shed the

STOCK DECLINE OF DUTCH SHELL STIRS DETERDING

Russians Plot for World Oil, He Says.

LONDON, April 21.—(AP)—Weakness of Royal Dutch stock on the Paris bourse today was ascribed by brokers the day's drop in Wall street. London brokers ascribed the decline to doubts about declaration of a dividend. The Evening Standard said tonight that the market does not expect more than a 5 per cent distribution.

Sir Henri Deterding said tonight that weakness of Royal Dutch Shell stock on the Paris bourse today was caused by persistent efforts of Soviet Russian oil interests to smash the company, which he heads, and capture the world market. He added the Russians were operating through a syndicate of bear traders in Paris.

The market here was cheered by the reduction in the bank rate. Gilt-edged securities hardened andhelped brighten the rest of the market until continental selling and lack of support caused recessions. The closing was easy.

Amsterdam Blames Shorts.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, April 21.—(AP)—No definite reason was advanced today for the recent drop in prices of Royal Dutch Oil shares. It was suggested in financial circles here, however, that rather heavy short offerings, partly from America, rumors that no dividends would be paid, and reports of bigger exports coming from Russia may have been partly accountable.

British Persian Oil Pact.

BAGDAD, Irak, April 21.—(AP)—A contract for a great oil concession was signed today between Premier Nuri Pasha and a representative of the British Oil Development company, whose chairman is Sir Edward Mountain. The company obtained the rights for full exploitation for 75 years of a vast area on the west bank of the Tigris understood to include a zone 200 miles square.

While British, French, German and Italian capital are involved, the contract was reported to stipulate that control would remain in British hands.

Berlin Market Strong.

BERLIN, April 21.—(AP)—Prices on the boerse were firmer on expectation of a reduction in the Reichsbank rate following that of the Bank of England. The market closed sustained.

Reject Some of Red Cross Flour Sent to Baltimore

Two carloads of flour out of a shipment of twenty carloads sent to Baltimore by the Red Cross Relief association were condemned by the flour inspector there as unfit for food. The other eighteen cars of the lot were declared to be low grade and unfit for bread.

W. H. Baxter Jr., in charge of the Red Cross distribution of wheat and flour, whose headquarters are at Chicago, said he was unable to understand why the flour had been rejected. He was making an investigation.

Laboratory tests of both the wheat and the flour showed that there was nothing wrong with it, he asserted, except that it had a slight odor which was not thought to be harmful. He did not consider that there was any reason for the action of the Baltimore inspectors. The flour was said to have been ground from No. 2 hard winter with only 4 per cent damage, which is permissible for that grade by the inspection department. The odor, he said, was found to disappear in baking.

Tri-Continental Corp. May Acquire Investors Equity

Assets of Investors Equity company, Inc., having a present market value of $5,500,000, would be acquired by Tri-Continental corporation, under a plan to be submitted to stockholders of the former concern at a special meeting May 18. Tri-Continental proposes to assume $5,128,900 of 5 per cent debentures of Investors Equity, due in 1947 and 1948, and to issue 290,469 shares of its common stock to the latter's stockholders on the basis of one-half share for one.

BOSTON EDISON OFFERING NOTES FOR $30,000,000

City Itself Has Issue for $24,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—Two issues of notes of the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston aggregating 30 million dollars were offered to the public today by a syndicate headed by Lee, Higginson & Co. The group also includes the First National Old Colony corporation, the Harris Trust and Savings bank of Chicago and others. An issue of 10 million dollars one year 4½s was priced at 99.76, to yield 4¾ per cent, and 20 million dollars of three year 5s were priced at 98.79, to kield 5.44 per cent.

Largest Recent Issue.

It was the largest issue of new corporate securities in several weeks, and bond dealers were considerably encouraged by the financing, interpreting it as a further evidence of improvement in the investment market.

While the purpose of this financing was not stated by the bankers, it is presumed that this is the first step in a program for retiring 70 million dollars of notes, twenty million dollars of which mature on Oct. 1, 1932, another 20 million dollars on Nov. 1, and 30 million dollars on Jan. 15, 1933. The October maturity is a 4½ per cent issue.

The Boston Edison management took steps early in March to put itself in a position to offer stock subscription rights to stockholders during the summer, if it were thought desirable to use this means of meeting next winter's maturities. On March 30 the stockholders authorized the company to apply to the department of public utilities for authority to issue 178,292 shares of stock, which would be offered to stockholders at the rate of one new share for each three held.

Conclusion of negotiations for the purchase of a 24 million dollar issue of 4¼ and 4¾ per cent bonds of the Boston Metropolitan district, which had been held up awaiting approval 85 days by the Massachusetts department of public utilities, was announced by a banking syndicate headed by Chase, Harris, Forbes corporation. Public offering of the issue is expected shortly.

The bonds are dated March 1, 1932, and mature serially from 1933 to 1953. Or the total issue $20,855,000 is to be in 4¾ per cent bonds, and the balance of $3,145,000 in 4½s. The bonds are callable at $102.50 after five years.

The proceeds of the sale of the bonds are to be used to refund notes sold a year ago to finance purchase of 40 year 6 per cent bonds of the Boston Elevated Railway company, issued by that company to retire its preferred stock.

GEN. FOODS CORP. PROFITS 4 MILLION IN FIRST QUARTER

General Foods corporation reports for the three months ended March 31, net profit of $4,433,775, after charges and expenses, and provision for income taxes. This is equal to 84 cents a share on the 5,277,746 shares of common stock outstanding March 31, and compares with net profits of $5,572,299 for the corresponding quarter last year, or $1.05 a share on the 5,257,407 shares then outstanding.

"The 84 cents a share earned in the first quarter this year," says C. M. Chester Jr., president, commenting on the report, "does not include General Foods' portion of undistributed earnings of an affiliated company, the Best Foods company, Inc., which was formed Jan. 2, 1932. From the first quarter earnings of 1932 there has been deducted a reserve for federal tax at the increased rate, as embodied in the tax bill passed by the house of representatives. The regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, payable May 2, has been declared on the common stock, there being no preferred issues."

ALUMINUM CO. LOSES POINT IN 9 MILLION SUIT

Hartford, Conn., April 21.—(AP)—Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas today denied a motion of the Aluminum Company of America, defendant in a $9,000,000 damage suit brought by the Baush Machine Tool company of Springfield, Mass., to dismiss the action for lack of jurisdiction.

The Baush company charged the Aluminum company, a Pennsylvania corporation, with monopoly and price fixing in selling its products, which are similar to those made by the Massachusetts firm.

The Baush company asks damages of $3,000,000, which, under the anti-trust act, would be trebled if the suit is won.

Lake Shipments of Coal to Be 30% of the Normal

Cleveland, O., April 21.—(AP)—Coal and ore shipments on the nation's inland seas will be only 30 per cent normal this season, members of the Lake Carriers' association estimated at their annual meeting today. About 25,000,000 tons of coal and 15,000,000 tons of ore were moved Like last year, when a ratio of 26 years' standing was reversed, more coal will be handled than ore. Originally, ore shipments are about twice those of coal, but this year a large tonnage of ore is still stored at lower lakes docks.

PRICE OF WHEAT RALLIES LATE AFTER DECLINES

Inflation Talk Boosts the Market Here.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A much more friendly feeling toward the buying side of wheat was in evidence yesterday, following a dip to a new low on the current movement shortly after the start. Several local professionals expressed themselves as impressed with the possibilities on the long side which would develop if the repeated efforts being made by some interests at Washington to bring about moderate inflation in the currency were successful.

Owing to the unusual liquidity of the grain markets the belief prevailed that if inflation were attempted grain prices would advance long before the effect was felt in the stock market. There was also some buying early on rumors that the proposition to transfer $100,000,000 of Finance Reconstruction corporation funds to the department of agriculture to facilitate exports of wheat might become an actuality.

Wheat Has Strong Rally.

Overnight news generally was rather unfavorable to holders of wheat futures, and sufficient scattered selling devoloped to cause a decline of around ⅝c from Wednesday's finish. Buying on resting orders by commission houses absorbed the surplus in the pit around 59¼c for July. Later when the inflation talk and the prospect of the farm board getting additional funds to help dispose of its surplus started there was general buying. Longs who recently sold out reinstated their lines to some extent and there was also short covering on the way up.

Little attention was paid to crop reports on wheat during the day Closing trades were at net gains of ½@⅝c, with May at 57⅛@57⅝c; old July, 60⅜@60¼c, and old September, 62⅝@62¾c.

A house that frequently acts for the government financed coöperatives was a persistent seller of May wheat, but it failed to have the effect this class of selling had had the previous day. The favorable report by the senate banking and currency committee on the Goldborough bill designed to restore commodity prices to the 1926 level also attracted some attention. It was felt that this and other bills might be enacted into law in some form or other.

Little Rain in West.

No rain of consequence was shown in the west and southwest over night except at several points in Kansas, but the forecast indicated general showers over the winter and spring wheat areas. A spring blizzard resulted in as much as 4 feet of snow falling in some sections in the Calgary-Alberta district Wednesday night.

Pressure of North American offers of cash wheat had a depressing effect on Liverpool which closed ⅜@⅝c per bu lower. May in the English market was 58¾c at the time it closed or 1½c over Chicago. Winnipeg advanced ¼@⅜c for the day, with May at 63⅝c in Canadian funds. Export demand was disappointing.

Corn Sold for Export.

Several small lots of American corn were sold for export at the seaboard late Wednesday, but at relatively low prices. According to those who should be in a position to know the grain was disposed of at a figure 2¼c below what it was offered from Chicago and at about 1½c above the price asked for Argentine corn afloat in nearby position. However, there were inquiries for export corn in the market again yesterday.

While the United States sold some corn abroad South Africa shipped 25,000 bu to Canada this week, making 231,000 bu that has cleared for North America during the last three weeks.

Corn futures had a small decline early, with the September selling at 37¾c, a new low on the crop. Short covering and buying induced by the strength in wheat and also prospects of export business brought about a good rally, with May leading, and the close with ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower, the latter on September. May closed at 32½c; July, 35¾c, and September, 38@38¼c. The country sold 78,000 bu to arrive, while shipping sales were 36,000 bu.
